West Chester Teacher's strong ball club moves into Kibler Field today to meet the Shoremen nine in what promises to be one of the best diamond contests of the year.

The Shoremen, fresh up from two wins in the first two games over American University of Washington, D. C., and Hortwick College of New York, will be put to a real test in today's encounter with the perennially strong West Chester Teachers.

The Teachers handed the Shoremen their only defeat of the 1940 season, when they took over on Kibler Field and bested Washington's Ace hurler Addis Copple, now with Harrisburg. That victory stained an otherwise perfect record and Kibler is out with his men to avenge this set back of last year, and to keep in tow this season's undefeated, short but impressive record.

By the looks of the baseball displayed by the home club in the two games to date, Washington College again has a good chance of bringing up with a great record and again being crowned the Maryland State Champions.

There is little doubt in our mind that Washington College will not again grab the mythical state title that it has held for many years. The brand of baseball here is just as good this season as in past seasons. The club seems to be a better balanced aggregation than some of the past. The lineup does not show any Copples, Nicholsons, or others of that category, but is powerful as a team. In Joe Bremer, Fetter, and Jim Stevens, Washington College has three unusual men that would be hard to replace anywhere but they are not "shining stars" but rather team players that make the team as a whole click. The lineup does not show great power nor does it look like a great ball club, but it is a fighting aggregation that will manage to get more runs than the other team all year.

To-days game with West Chester is one of the most important contests of the year. The home team's record for the entire year will be at stake, since many feel that if the Teachers can be taken, an undefeated season is not too far away. It is a real test for a ball club that only has two games under its belt and several new faces in the lineup, but we pick the Shoremen to win under pressure.

On the mound for Washington today will probably be either Selby or Rayne. Rayne is the most logical choice on his performances to date. Being a veteran member of the team, thus getting the nod over Maguire or freshman Dick Lynch, he has looked better than Selby, who should be the most dependable hurler on the squad, but has shown a little trouble in getting started. Last Tuesday against Hartwick he was nicked for two runs in the ninth inning. They didn't amount to anything since the Shoremen had piled up a 6-1 lead by that time and could afford them, but it served to show that he was not quite ready. If he is in shape he is hard to beat and will start tomorrow but if he is not Rayne is the logical choice.

One hurler due to see plenty of action this season is Dick Lynch who took turns on the mound in both games and looked good enough to start some contests this season. He is tall and lanky, has a lot of stuff on the ball and good control.

Some of the highlights of the Hortwick game were: Jim Bush's surprising power at the plate rapping out a double and two singles in three trips; Charley Fetter's fine defensive play on first base; the fourth inning threat of Hortwicke when catcher Gibe caught a man attempting to go to third on a passed ball and threw to Brenner who put him out—and in that same inning Samele's throw to the plate to catch a runner attempting to score on a single with Gibe making the putout. That big inning where, with the bases chucked full of Washington runners Charley Fetter dumped a Texas Leaguer over the short stop's head and the Hartwick Club started throwing the ball all over the lot and didn't stop until Fetter was on third and three runs were in—Hartwick's hurler, who had plenty of stuff on the ball and knew how to use it—Washington's Lynch, Selby, Rayne and Maguire who all did themselves justice on the mound. All went together to make a swell ball game.

Next week the club travels into the Western Shore to meet Mt. St. Mary's on Tuesday and the Western Maryland Terrors on Wednesday. The tennis team goes along too to meet the same clubs. Let's hope they both have luck. See you at the ball game today.
