SATURDAY, JANUARY 26, 1895.

The royalists of Hawaii have made an attempt to overthrow the Republic. Fighting occurred and Charles Carter, who was one of the commissioners sent by the Provisional Government to Washington, to negotiate a treaty of annexation, was killed. A number of the insurrectionists were also among the slain and they were forced to retreat. The Republic seems strong enough to maintain its power and authority. Undoubtedly the insurrection was the result of the policy pursued by the administration at Washington and the encouragement of British influences. Action on several resolutions in favor of the Republic, introduced in the Senate, has been prevented by Cuckoo Senators, who realize that American sentiment is overwhelmingly against the course of the administration in relation to Hawaiian affairs.

The strike of the motormen and other employees of the trolley lines in Brooklyn, N. Y., during the past week, has been attended by much rioting and bloodshed. The police force was utterly inadequate to preserve the peace and the military has been called into requisition to protect the property of the companies and prevent interference with men willing to work on their terms. The situation is very trying to the authorities. The treatment of the employees has been harsh and unjust and public sympathy is with them. It is said that few of the strikers are engaged in the riots, but those who have volunteered to take the places of any of them have been exposed to much peril which even the large number of militia under arms cannot prevent. The situation has been very serious for several days.

An Untenable Reason.

The Baltimore Saturday Evening News, in its political notes referring to the contest among Democratic aspirants for the Gubernatorial nomination in this State, says that the old Confederate soldier element "has begun to work for the nomination of their comrade during the war, Private Spencer C. Jones. These gentlemen claim that in addition to Mr. Jones being fully competent in every respect to fill the office of Governor he has a large personal following in all parts of Maryland who will ask for his nomination on the ground that the men who went South and fought for their principles and the principles then held by a large majority of Marylanders, are entitled to have the office of Governor at least once."

Of all reasons for urging the nomination of any individual as a candidate for the chief executive office of this State, that here offered is the least tenable. In the first place, the principles of Mr. Jones and the other men who went South and fought for the Confederacy were not those "then held by a large majority of Marylanders." It was demonstrated beyond a doubt by the result of the special election for members of Congress in June, 1861, that a large majority of the people of Maryland were in favor of maintaining the Union. The First and Fifth Districts, which embraced the principal slave holding territory in the State, both elected pronounced Union candidates to Congress—John W. Crisfield in the First and Charles B. Calvert in the Fifth. Mr. Calvert appeared before the convention which nominated him and said: "I am in favor of maintaining the Union of the States—peaceably, if we can; forcibly if must," and that was the sentiment of the convention. The northern and western sections of the State were more overwhelmingly for the Union than the districts referred to.

When Mr. Jones went South he elected to desert and fight against his own State, a piece of inconsistency which neither he, nor any other Marylander who did likewise, has ever been able to explain. It was secession theory that the individual allegiance of the citizen was due to his State and not to the General Government. It was this theory that made Lee the commander of the Confederate Armies. He resigned from the U. S. Army and retired to Virginia because he was unwilling to appear in arms against her, and his next step was to take up arms in her defence.

Mr. Jones, and other Marylanders, who, like him, entered the rebel army, followed precisely the opposite of the principle which governed Lee in his action. They took up arms against the State of which they claimed to be citizens, for the purpose of coercing her into acceptance of their views. They became her invaders and enemies, but they failed in their assaults and she maintained her fealty to the Union unbroken.

If Mr. Jones' friends have no better argument than his having helped to make war upon the State, to promote his candidacy, he should withdraw from the canvass.

An Ungracious Appeal for Help.

From the Baltimore Sun, 21st inst.

Republicans in Congress can find in Senator Sherman's "bond and security bill" a measure which will enable them to get rid of their present character as obstructors of needed legislation. On Mr. Sherman's bill as a basis they can, if patriotic, join with the democrats to cure the evils created by republican laws. The bill provides for the issue of 3 per cent. bonds to maintain the reserve or meet current expenses; authorizes "certificates of indebtedness" of small denominations to bear 3 per cent. interest and run five years, to be used for like puroposes; allows these certificates to be used as security by national banks and increases the circulation of such banks to the par of their securities.

This expression of the Sun may be fairly construed as an appeal to the Republicans to help the incompetent Democratic majority in Congress out of its unfortunate dilemma. Thus far the majority has not, though backed by the active assistance of the Secretary of the Treasury, and the urgent efforts of the President, been able to formulate, much less pass, any remedial legislation for existing evils, and the Sun now appeals to the patriotism of the Republicans to assist in the enactment of a measure, emanating from a Republican source, which, it may be fairly inferred, that paper regards with favor. But in making that appeal the Sun attributes the evils to be cured to Republican laws. This, to say the least of it, is ungracious. The existence of the evils complained of would, in themselves, be sufficient ground for appealing to patriotic sentiment for their cure, without undertaking to hold anybody responsible for their origin.

But the accusation is, in fact, only the expression of a biased partisan judgment, and is historically erroneous. The Democrats have been warring for years against the systems of finance and revenue inaugurated and pursued by the Republicans. These systems had been in operation for a quarter of a century, during which the progress and prosperity of the country were without a parallel in the world's history. The revenue laws yielded more than sufficient income for the ordinary and extraordinary needs of the government, and the existence of a surplus in the Treasury was the object of constant denunciation by the Democrats. During the four years of the last Republican administration the public debt was reduced to the extent of two hundred and sixty millions of dollars. The excess of revenue, over and above the actual requirements of the Treasury, was so great that a new revenue law—the McKinley bill—was passed and the income of the government reduced about sixty millions of dollars per annum. Prior to the election of Mr. Cleveland, in 1892, sufficient revenue was collected under that law to meet all demands upon the Treasury, but a speedy change followed that event; the revenues declined in consequence of the anticipation of a radical change in the tariff policy of the country, and financial depression ensued as a consequence of this cause, combined with apprehension of a similar change of policy in relation to the currency.

President Cleveland called a special session of Congress in 1893 and recommended the repeal of the Sherman Silver Purchase act, as a panacea for the financial ills of the country. While holding that the repeal could at best afford only temporary relief, the Republicans rallied to the support of the President's views and assisted in passing the repeal bill over the opposition of well nigh one-half the Democratic Representatives in Congress. The result was, however, as they predicted. The progress of the financial crisis was not stayed because, as the Republicans pointed out, radical tariff legislation was projected and carried through by the Democrats. This legislation, which according to Democratic predictions, was to inaugurate a new era of prosperity, had, as the Republicans had predicted, been productive of just the opposite effect. Then came the election and an overwhelming Republican victory, followed by marked evidences of returning confidence, until Congress met and took up the currency question. The wildcat schemes suggested and urged by the administration have thoroughly unsettled the public confidence again and clouds of doubt and uncertainty darken the financial sky.

These are the causes of the evils which afflict the country and their existence can be traced directly to the impracticable measures and schemes of the incompetent Democratic majority. Senator Sherman has stepped in with a measure intended to tide over the emergency and maintain the public credit. It is not a revenue measure, but is simply designed to provide, by extraordinary means, for the payment of accruing national obligations until such time as revenue laws, which will yield sufficient to meet these obligations, can be framed and adopted. In other words, it provides for borrowing, on the best possible terms, the money necessary to supply the deficiency constantly arising under the tariff law enacted by the Democrats. The extent of that deficiency for the current fiscal year is a mere matter of speculation and opinions vary materially concerning it. Some optimistic Democrats assert that it will not be great, although it already amounts to many millions. Mr. Gorman, the Democratic leader in the Senate, in his recent speech, made no attempt to disguise his belief in the insufficiency of the law to provide the necessary revenue, and, it may be remarked incidentally, asserted that for the first time in the history of the country, more revenue is being levied by direct taxation upon the people than by customs duties. All this goes substantially to prove, by Democratic testimony, that the Sun is wholly wrong in charging Republican legislation with the evils for which a cure is now so earnestly desired. The responsibility for this condition of things belongs to the Democratic party, only, and the Sun should have the manliness to admit it if it really wants the Republicans in Congress to come to the rescue of the imperiled finances.

The Gettysburg, Pa., Star and Sentinel has put on a new dress and appears as neat as a pin. It is one of our most valued exchanges, being an admirable local newspaper as well as a strong and able defender of Republican principles.

"PENNSYLVANIA LIMITED" CONNECTION FOR ST. LOUIS.

In order to accommodate the growing travel between the East and the West and Southwest via St. Louis, the Pennsylvania Railroad beginning Sunday, January 20, established through sleeping-car service on the Pennsylvania Limited between New York and St. Louis, arriving at St. Louis at 3.00 P. M., and leaving that point at 1.00 P. M. The time of this train, being the fastest in effect between the East and St. Louis in both directions, the convenient hours of departure and arrival, and the superior accommodations afforded by the Pennsylvania Limited, will no doubt prove highly acceptable to the traveling public. Connection of this train with parlor car to Harrisburg leaves Baltimore (Union Station) 11.40 A. M., daily.

Mr. Joel F. Vaile, of Colorado, contributes to the February Forum an article entitled "Colorado's Experiment with Populism," in which he shows that Populist ascendancy in Colorado was purely accidental and did not represent the great mass of citizens. He declares that nowhere in the union "will there be found a stronger spirit of business integrity and faithfulness in financial obligation than among those who bear the burden of taxation" in Colorado, and that Colorado is not likely to repeat her experiment in Populist government.

NOVELTIES IN EVENING TOILETTES.

Now that the season of social gatherings, balls and theatre parties has fairly set in, every woman's interest is once more centered on the appropriate evening toilettes. The bodice is a mass of some filmy fabric, the ultra-fashionable ones—irrespective of skirt made of another material—being invariably of crepon or embroidered mousline de soie, made over a foundation of silk which, in color, matches the skirt. Rosettes of lace usually finish the bodice. Jewelled corselets are very popular. They have a silk foundation and are frequently set with real gems. The crepes afford an opportunity for producing, at a moderate price, very artistic effects. They come in all tints. The ribboned crepe is a very dainty novelty. Sleeves remain as wonderful as ever in size. They are of the same fabric as the skirt. As for the latter, it is conspicuous for its plainness and its pronounced flare. A great variety of models are to be found in the McDowell Fashion Magazines. These unequalled periodicals offer an inducement in the way of special coupon patterns which always follow the latest, the most practical styles. Both "La Mode de Paris" and "Paris Album of Fashion," cost $3.50 per year, or 35 cents a copy: "The French Dressmaker" is $3.00 per annum, or 30 cts a copy. As for "La Mode," it costs only $1.50 a year, or 15 cents a copy. If you are unable to procure either of these journals from your newsdealer do not take any substitute from him, but apply by mail directly to Messrs. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

Representatives of the Woman's Christian Temperance Unions of Carroll county will meet Friday, February 1st, at 2, P. M., in the M. P. Church of Westminster, to reorganize the county. All interested in this work are invited to be present. Mrs. Haslup, State President of the W. C. T. U., and Miss Anne Rothwell Stewart, State Organizer of the "Y's," will be present, also Madam Layyah Barrakat, who will give a Bible Reading. At 7.30 a mass meeting will be held at which Madam Barrakat will lecture on the "Three Sacred Covenants." Madam Barrakat is a Syrian woman, who was converted at an early age, (and is a powerful and stirring speaker.) She will lecture in Manchester, January 31st: subject, "Modern Egypt and my coming to America."

We rob the tombs of antiquity, we dismiss with easy reflections our contemporaries, but the language of Omar in the presence of his lifeless leader, "How can he be dead? by God, he is not dead!" is the ever recurring thought toward those with whom we have been closely associated. So subjective is immortality. But neither fear of neglect nor hope of fame could ever untranquilize the subject of this memorial. His ambition, curbed by a sound judgment, set no mark beyond self-achievement. He aimed at a sane satisfaction and left the quest of teetering happiness to the puerile. He traded not for flatteries, he posed not for honors,—and he got none. The real virtues, he practised without ostentation, and without a reference to the sanctions of superstition. If the rays of reason fell upon his inherited prejudices, he smiled, if he did not concur. He guarded no ark of conceits with menaces of death. None but a fatuous and self-foiled few ever impeached his integrity. Frailties he had; but canonizations and deifications have proceeded on a moiety of his merit. And the fortune which seemed to favor him through life enabled him by a sudden death to avoid the inanities and weaknesses that wait on disease and dotage and unconsciously to glide into the universal quietude of Eternity.

AN OPEN LETTER.

WESTMINSTER, April 10, 1890.

Mr. Jos. B. Boyle:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but temporary relief. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try your Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost instant relief, but a permanent cure. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am,

Truly yours,
EDWARD LYNCH.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

1895.

Foremost of American Weeklies.

Circulation 168,000 Copies a Week.

First to rally from the overwhelming defeat of 1892, THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE patiently labored for two years to awaken the sleeping judgment of the Nation. Possessing an enormous circulation, equipped with a staff of competent and honest students of public questions, and itself having no object to serve except the welfare of the masses upon the farms and in the shops, scorning lies and sensational appeals, and satisfied merely to place the truth before its readers, THE TRIBUNE has sent to half a million earnest and reflecting people, weekly, a budget of honest facts, sensible arguments and friendly suggestions which have at last borne fruit in the elections of 1894. The work of the people is, however, only half done. It is necessary in 1896 to place in the Chair which Grover Cleveland has not adorned, a constructive statesman of the Republican faith. To this task THE TRIBUNE now addresses itself, and invites the support of every American citizen who desires a return of the "good old times."

Roswell G. Horr, ex-Congressman from Michigan, but now of New York City, will continue to discuss Tariff, Currency, Coinage and Labor questions in THE TRIBUNE. By all odds the most witty, earnest and well-informed speaker upon the stump, he is every year sent by THE TRIBUNE to aid the local campaigns in every part of the country. He keeps in constant touch with the people, knows their wants, and addresses himself in THE TRIBUNE directly to the thoughts which are in their minds, and makes himself understood. He will gladly answer questions, asked in good faith, by readers.

All the regular features of THE TRIBUNE will be continued. For Western readers, a special array of Western news is supplied. For Eastern readers an Eastern edition is printed.

It is the intention to make the paper especially helpful to farmers and mechanics. Each class has its separate department in THE TRIBUNE; and the new inventions of mechanics, who lack the means to exploit the product of their brains, are advertised free of charge in the hope of aiding them to find a purchaser or a partner.

The market reports of THE TRIBUNE, long acknowledged to be the best in the country, will maintain their old standard; and the usual variety of foreign news letters, essays upon home topics, book reviews, articles on chess and checkers, and miscellany will be presented every week. The editorial pages of the paper sum up the most important news of the day, with comments.

THE TRIBUNE also prints, for the ladies, the very latest fashions from Paris and London, and there is a department of "Answers to Questions," conducted by a capable writer, in which all the questions of the people on miscellaneous topics are carefully answered.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE is an incomparable paper for residents who live beyond the range of THE DAILY TRIBUNE, but find it necessary to keep in touch with the best thoughts and higher interests of the world at large.

A few premiums are offered to readers and club agents.

Any friend of THE TRIBUNE is cordially invited to send for sample copies and terms, and make up a club of subscribers. We would be especially pleased to see a large circle of readers in every workshop.

THE WEEKLY, $1; THE SEMI-WEEKLY, $2; THE DAILY TRIBUNE, $10 a year. THE TRIBUNE Almanac for 1895, ready in January, 25 cents a copy.

THE TRIBUNE, New York.

ST. NICHOLAS

FOR YOUNG FOLKS IN 1895.

EDITED BY MARY MAPES DODGE.

The greatest year in the history of this magazine, now without a rival in its field, is the one just closing. Plans for the coming year assure even greater success than in the past.

RUDYARD KIPLING

wrote his famous "Jungle Stories" for St. Nicholas, and it is a welcome announcement that these will be continued in 1895.

NAPOLEON FOR YOUNG READERS.

While the Century will have for its leading feature the new Life of the French Emperor by Prof. Sloane, one of the most popular of St. Nicholas writers takes the same character for his inspiration.

A BOY OF THE FIRST EMPIRE, BY ELBRIDGE S. BROOKS, is the story of a little lad from the streets of Paris (but of good family) who renders a service to Napoleon, and becomes one of his pages and finally an aide. He is with him at the most critical times of his life,—at the departure for Elba, in the glories of the life at Fontainebleau, and finally at Waterloo. The story glows with pageantry, and is a truthful and accurate account, based upon the best authorities and verified by the latest information, of the life of "the man of destiny." It is really a delightful story-history of Napoleon.

WEST POINT AND MAN-OF-WAR LIFE will receive attention, Lieutenant Putman writing of cadet life at the military academy, while Ensign Ellicott, of the flag-ship "Chicago," will describe the experience of our hardy seamen on the modern ships of war.

INSPIRING TALES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Theodore Roosevelt will write a series to be called "Hero-Tales from American History," recounting famous deeds of heroism about which young people ought to know. Prof. Brander Matthews will include in his entertaining papers on "The Great American Authors" accounts of the lives of Bryant, Emerson, Longfellow, Hawthorne, Whittier, Poe and Lowell. Stories of Famous Horses in history and mythology—Bucephalus, Napoleon's and Sheridan's horses, etc.—will be told by James Baldwin, author of "Stories from the Northern Myths." City Fire Departments will be treated, and there will be two or three papers on The Boys' Brigade. The Serial Stories are many. One called "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp" recounts the marvelous adventures of a modern boy who became the incidental purchaser of Aladdin's lamp and summoned the jinn while cleaning it. A delightful story of college girls, "The Three Freshmen," will appeal to every girl; and "Teddy and Carrots," James Otis's serial of newsboy life, will be read by every boy. A serial story by Frances Courtenay Baylor is one of the features.

of St. Nicholas is 25 cents a number or $3.00 a year. New subscriptions should begin with November, the first issue of the year. Subscribe through dealers, or remit by check, draft, or money-order to
