John Wolfe, the wounded burglar, was formally held, by Justice Moore, for the action of the grand jury, on Tuesday last. His real name is Robert Gillette, John Wolfe being an alias. As an evidence that his wanderings have not been confined to a narrow section of country, it is interesting to note that he wore a mackintosh cape-coat, purchased on the installment plan, in Elmira, N. Y. The purchase ticket was found in one of the pockets.

PRESIDENT REIFSNIDER'S REPORT.

Office of the Westminster Cemetery Co.,
Westminster, Md., February 5th, 1895.

To the Lotowners of the Westminster Cemetery Company:

It has been the custom of the present management, at the end of each fiscal year, to make a statement showing the condition of the Cemetery Company and the operations for the year just closed. This is important and should be done at the expiration of each year, thus giving the lotowners such information as it is proper they should have.

It gives me pleasure to state that the condition of the Company is very satisfactory, and the general appearance of the cemetery grounds improving from year to year. The hedge fence which we put in several years ago has not made rapid progress, but is now growing nicely, and will soon afford a most beautiful and substantial enclosure for the cemetery.

We have, during the past year, been giving attention to some of the principal roads, and have had placed upon them five carloads of blue limestone properly crushed, thus greatly improving them as public driveways. We think this plan should be gradually followed up until all the roads over which carriages pass are thus treated. This would greatly improve the appearance of the cemetery, and would very much reduce the cost of keeping the roads in order.

There was in the treasury at the close of the last fiscal year, $374.05. The receipts during the present year have been $106, making a total of $480.05. The disbursements for the year have been $301.88, including $130.43 for the stone placed upon the roads, leaving a balance in the treasury at date of $178.17. There have been 27 interments during the year. All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN L. REIFSNIDER, PRESIDENT.

Charged With Forgery.

Sheriff Peter S. Good and Deputy Sheriff Fred. Knott, of Byron, Ill., arrived in this city on Sunday, having in custody Harry C. Mort, who was arrested on the charge of forgery on a warrant issued by Justice Aloysius E. Orndorff, of Taneytown. Mort is a young man twenty-four years of age, a farmer by occupation and a native of Frederick county, Md. One charge against him is that on the 27th of March, 1894, he obtained from George H. Birnie, of Taneytown, the money on a note for $23 purporting to have been signed by Stephen Harner and George M. Morrison, dated March 3, 1894, and drawn for six months after date to his own order, indorsed by him. Mr. Birnie found out by correspondence that Mort was working as a farm hand for Jacob Welty, near Byron, and having notified State's Attorney Charles E. Fink of the fact, Sheriff Good was instructed to make the arrest. The Sheriff says that when he went to make the arrest Mort saw him go to the house, and having his suspicion aroused made a dash for the barn. The sheriff followed, but found the barn locked. He effected an entrance, however. Mort was on the the ground floor and made a further dash for liberty at another door, but only to run into the arms of Deputy Sheriff Knott, who was stationed outside. Mort stated to the sheriff that he had been living there six months and acknowledged his identity. The sheriff left Byron on Friday morning with his prisoner handcuffed. Other charges will be brought against Mort. Stephen Harner, whose name is signed to the note, was arrested at Keysville on Monday on the charge of complicity in the forgery. He was brought before Justice Moore in this city, and in default of bail committed for a hearing yesterday. Mort waived an examination and was committed for the action of the grand jury.

Capture of Charles Wells.

Charles Wells, the notorious burglar, who escaped from the jail of this county, in company with Joseph Cost, on the night of December 17th, and has since been terrorizing the people of various localities in Carroll and Baltimore counties, and between Carlisle and Harrisburg, Pa., was at last brought to bay and compelled to surrender, on Saturday last, after a hot fight with the police department of Harrisburg, and a number of citizens who joined in the pursuit. The capture was really made by Patrolman Block, of Harrisburg. Lieutenant Holstein and Block were pursuing Wells, and a companion named Charles Johnson, in a sleigh. Wells shot their horse, which ran away and Block was thrown out of the sleigh. He got behind a fence and opened fire on the robbers with a shotgun. Fifty shots were fired at Block who fired nine loads of buckshot. The ammunition of the robbers became exhausted and they surrendered.

They had perpetrated several robberies in Carlisle, Pa., and stealing a couple of horses had driven to Mechanicsburg, where they boarded an eastbound Cumberland Valley train. They left the train at Bridgeport, Saturday morning, and started to walk to Harrisburg. Suspicions concerning them had been aroused among the people on the train and in the village, and word was telephoned to the police station in Harrisburg warning the officers to look out for them. Prompt action was taken and they were met by a number of officers at the bridge over the Susquehanna. The robbers were thoroughly armed with revolvers, which they immediately drew and commenced their retreat. Numbers of country people joined in the pursuit, but the pursuers were cleverly eluded and the pursued finally got back into Harrisburg, when the whole police force was called out and they were hunted down and captured as stated.

Detectives Hussey and Ward, of Baltimore, who had been tracking Wells and Johnson since the robbery of Evans' store at Carrollton Station and had them located, went to Harrisburg and took them to Baltimore, with the consent of the Pennsylvania authorities, and they are now in the Baltimore city jail, where they will remain until they can be tried at Towson—Wells for assault with intent to kill Policeman Terence Doyle and for participation in the Pikesville and other robberies, and Johnson for all the crimes referred to except the first.

Wells acknowledges that he and Joseph Cost were the men who shot officer Doyle and that he was engaged in the burglaries charged to his account, including the recent robbery of Evans' store. He denies, however, that he had anything to do with the robbery for which he was first arrested and committed to the Carroll county jail.

Joseph Cost made a full confession to State's Attorney Fink last week, of his participation in the shooting of Policeman Doyle, but the fact was not made public for prudential reasons. Wells will be tried in Baltimore county for that and other crimes, but Cost, being in the custody of the Carroll county authorities, will be tried for the offences committed within their jurisdiction, which are sufficient in number to require six separate indictments.

Some criticism has been indulged here that Wells was not surrendered to the custody of Sheriff Arnold by the authorities of Baltimore. Detectives Hussey and Ward, who were tracking him, were employed at the instance of State's Attorney Fink, Carroll county bearing their expenses. Wells' crimes have been so numerous in this county that nine separate indictments could be framed against him, at least two of them being for assault with intent to kill. While Baltimore county offered a considerable reward for the capture of the burglars, Carroll took the practical method of employing detectives to hunt them down, Baltimore city furnishing the officers and Carroll paying for them. Courtesy to this county, it seems, would have required that Wells, at least, should have been turned over to the custody of its officers. Doubtless, however, the reward offered by Baltimore county exerted greater influence than the mere claims of official courtesy. We presume the taxpayers of the county will not murmur at this proceeding. For the present, at least, they are saved a heavy bill of costs for trying the charges against Wells and by the time he gets out of the penitentiary, after Baltimore county is through with him, there will be little probability of his arraignment in the court here.

Cost says that Wells' real name is John Hall. He is a daring desperado, full of nerve and resources, and a very dangerous man, being apparently devoid of moral sense. He claims that since his escape from the jail of this county he has fallen from 200 pounds to 140 pounds in weight, on account of the exposure incident to his life. The history of his doings and experiences is like a chapter of romance. The account of the events connected with the Carrollton Station store robbery, published in the SENTINEL, are, in the main, confirmed by his admissions.

The Hunt for Wells—An Amusing Episode.

PATAPSCO, February 5th, 1895.

MR. EDITOR.—Now that the notorious desperado, Charles Wells, is actually in limbo, and no doubt can be entertained about the fact, a number of amusing incidents are recalled in connection with the search for him after the daring robbery of Evans' store at Carrollton Station by him and his companions, one of whom was brought down by a shot from the rifle of valiant John Valentine, and captured.

Ever since the robbery our citizens have felt considerable timidity about venturing out after sundown and have kept their houses well secured and themselves armed for a possible midnight raid from the marauder. Numerous reports have been circulated as to Wells having been at different places, and as there are a number of unoccupied houses in this vicinity, situated in localities seldom visited, a number of our braver residents armed themselves and laid in a good supply of ammunition with the intention of visiting these deserted houses on the lookout for the daring robbers, having not only in view the excellent reward offered in cash for his arrest, but desiring to emulate the heroism displayed at Lovell's Retreat, or by Captain Molly, of Revolutionary fame.

One of these searching parties, numbering six or eight persons, visited a house of the description referred to, when owing to a thaw their footprints were made visible. Shortly after they left, the owner of the building was accidentally passing the place and concluded to see that the doors and windows were properly secured. He discovered the tracks of the previous visitors, leading upon the porch, and without stopping to ascertain whether there were retiring footprints, concluded that Wells and his companion were hidden in the house. Laboring under great excitement he ran to the nearest store, about half-a-mile distant, where he arrived completely blown and gave the alarm, as well as he could do when out of breath.

Then a hasty arming took place. Guns and pistols were gathered and the brave posse took up the march for the field of glory. It was remarked that several of those in the crowd were not in very good health, all at once, and found excuses for lagging behind, so that the nearer they came to the scene of action the less in number they appeared. However, the house was finally reached and one member of the crowd plucked up sufficient courage to make an attempt to enter. As the door was securely barred he concluded to try a window. Every movement was performed quietly, so that the supposed burglar would not be aroused. A window was raised and the robber-hunter proceeded to climb into the house. When half through the window, down came the sash upon him catching him like a hawk in a steel trap, and he could do nothing but flap his arms like wings, scratch the weatherboarding with his toes and yell: "He's got me! He's got me!" His frightened companions fled, leaving him to his fate and to the mercy of the hunted robbers. Braver counsels prevailed, however and in a short time they returned and extricated him from his uncomfortable predicament, and then all joined in hearty laughter over their fright. All concluded, however, that if Wells would let them alone they would not go to as much trouble again to capture him.

Hampstead Items.

Our citizens sleep with less uneasiness since the capture of the notorious Wells and his companion. The terror and anxiety produced by the daring exploits of this band of robbers spread to this community and with our old muskets repolished and reloaded and new ones purchased, we were prepared to offer an armed resistance to these defiant transgressors of the law if they had attempted to endanger our lives or property. It is needless to say, therefore, that we come in for a share of the rejoicing over their capture. Our merchants, however, will continue to exercise the same vigilance for some time over their store goods, by means of locks, burglar alarms, special watchmen and other methods of protection.

The statement of your correspondent last week that the title of the Corporate Town of Hampstead is being recognized as of legal significance, was recently confirmed. The town council levied upon a horse belonging to one of our business men, for taxes unpaid for two years. After consulting a legal advisor the defendant decided that he would pay the costs and his assessment and settle the case. It was hoped by a few whose taxes are unpaid that another attempt would be made to annul the charter.

One of the members of the last season's base-ball team, Mr. George Houck, has been offered a salaried position in the Virginia State League for the season of 1895.

The snow which fell ten days ago has furnished excellent sleighing ever since.

The mercury reached the lowest point here for ten years, on Wednesday morning. The lowest temperature noted was 10° below zero.

Greenmount Items.

We have had still another week of the merry jingling of sleigh-bells and the tingling of cold ears and fingers, and at present there are no indications of milder weather.

An epidemic, which the doctors pronounce scarletina, is prevailing among the pupils of Greenmount public school. The disease commences with a cough, similar to that in cases of croup and in a few days the bodies of the patients are covered with a scarlet rash. Fortunately the epidemic is in mild form and no serious cases have occurred, although in some instances whole families suffer with the disease. At present few of the pupils are able to attend the school.

A number of people are complaining that their flowers have been frozen and that during the prevalent cold weather frost has penetrated the walls of their cellars and frozen their potatoes. Some of our old inhabitants claim that this is the coldest winter since 1856, when snow fell about Christmas and there was good sleighing till April.

Our people are elated over the capture of the Pikesville and Carrollton robbers and hope they will receive the full penalty of the law for their misdeeds.

Fierce Storm and Arctic Weather.

Wednesday last was the coldest day in this locality during the previous 10 years. The mercury touched 6° below zero at 7 o'clock in the morning, and did not rise above 10° during the day. Sunday morning 3° below zero was reached but the temperature moderated during the day and was quite mild Monday morning. Monday afternoon the cold wave arrived with a piercing northwest wind and Tuesday was very cold, the wave culminating at 7 o'clock, Wednesday morning, when the lowest temperature of the winter, to that date, was reached.

During Wednesday the mercury did dot rise above 10° and went down to 3° during the night. Thursday snow began falling about 8 A. M., and continued during the day and night, with slight change of temperature during the day, the highest point reached having been 8° at noon. Then it went down steadily until yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, when it was again 6° below zero and still falling. The indications at present are that before the cold wave subsides we will have the severest weather in the last fifteen years. With the snow and low temperature of Thursday a violent wind storm arose after nightfall and is still raging. Railroads and public highways are blockaded by drifts and travel is almost at a standstill. The fast mail train from Baltimore yesterday morning reached here two hours late, having three engines attached, and was sidetracked to await the arrival of the Union Bridge Accommodation, which was struggling with the drifts between this point and New Windsor. Through trains will probably only get over the mountain by shoveling. The storm may fairly be termed a blizzard, and, considering the very low temperature, has never been paralleled in this locality. The storm extended all over the country.

Taken altogether the winter has been one of the severest for many years. The ground in exposed places was frozen to a depth of over 18 inches a week ago, and the frost must, by this time, have gone down to well nigh two feet.

Harney Items.

We are passing through the severest siege of cold weather that we have experienced for a number of years. Last Sunday morning the thermometer, in some places, stood at 14 degrees below zero, while at other places it was only 4 and 5 degrees below.

One of Mr. Snider's houses, situated about two miles from here, narrowly escaped a conflagration last Sunday. The family who occupy the house were absent and at noon a neighbor went there to do the work, when he found one room ablaze, but succeeded in extinguishing the fire before any further damage was done. The woodbox and a portion of the floor were burned. The fire was caused, no doubt, by sparks escaping from the stove.

Manchester Items.

On Thursday evening, 31st ult., Mrs. Barrakat, the Syrian lady, was with us and lectured in the Sunday School room of Trinity Reformed Church. A large audience was out to hear her talk on "Modern Egypt, and why I came to America." Her graphic description of oriental life, and her miraculous escape from the iron grasp of Mohamedanism held the large audience spell bound for more than an hour, after which a collection was taken for her benefit.

Society was all astir during Thursday evening, getting in readiness for the grand hop given by the Manchester Orchestra, in the I. O. O. F. Hall. During the early evening sleighs began to arrive at the different hotels and by 9 P. M., when the orchestra struck up the grand march, they had in the promenade representatives from Westminster, Hanover, Littlestown, Oxford and Hampstead, with a large company of young folks from this place, who danced to the best music ever heard in the hall. Sociability reigned supreme and the event was so pleasant that it will be long remembered. The orchestra is now in rehearsal for a musical and literary entertainment to be given in the I. O. O. F. Hall on Saturday evening, 16th inst., which promises to be first-class in every respect and well worthy the patronage of our citizens. On Saturday evening members of the orchestra go to the residence of Mr. B. F. Bosley, Greenmount, and give him and his family a musical rehearsal and receive their hospitality in return. They expect to give a concert in Hampstead in the near future in conjunction with the quintette of that place, which will be followed after a short interval with a combined concert at this place.

In spite of the piercing blasts and drifting snow of Monday afternoon, making travel very difficult, two sledding parties left here towards evening—one for Westminster, and the other for the home of Mrs. Mary Palmer, Bachman's Valley, enjoying most beautiful moonlight rides and most frigid weather. One party remarked to us that he thought it was about 117° below zero sometimes, but all got home safe about 2 A. M.

Mr. W. C. Stick and wife were at Hanover on Monday last and signed articles of agreement for the Riley Hotel at that place, which Mr. Stick will take possession of in the spring. Who will become proprietor of the Hotel de Stick is yet to be determined.

On Tuesday night our young folks were represented at the social gatherings at the homes of Mr. Geo. Gummel, of Cranberry and Mr. Geo. Theiret, of Ebbvale, in which dancing was the principal feature of the evening's pleasure.

The many friends of Dr. John A. Shower will be sorry to hear that he was compelled to give up his practice in Baltimore about Christmas, and was quite ill at his Woodberry home for some weeks. It was feared at one time he would lose the sight of his right eye, but the last report to his immediate friends here was that he is able to sit up and to correspond with them. He has the general sympathy of his many friends here, that his bright hopes were so seriously interferred with, and their best wishes that he may soon be able to successfully attend to his professional duties.

A Surprise.

A very pleasant surprise was given at the residence of Mr. George Schaeffer, of Silver Run, Wednesday evening, 6th inst., in honor of his sister, Miss Mollie. The surprise proved a perfect success. The hostess was expecting a party of friends from the vicinity of Westminster, but an hour before they came her friends from nearer home appeared on the scene, and gave her a perfect surprise. After having indulged in vocal and instrumental music and games of various sorts, we were invited to the dining-room, where we found a bountiful supply of good things. After all had done ample justice to the viands, they bade their hostess a happy good night, and retired to their homes, feeling that they had spent an evening that would not soon be forgotten. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Schaeffer and son Carl, Misses Mollie Schaeffer, Annie, Sallie, Stella and Carrie Lawyer, Carrie Dutrer, Lizzie Byers, Miraud Nusbaum, Gertie Bankert, Laura Browne, Kate Frock, Mamie and Lizzie Yingling, Kate Kump, Birdie Mark, Celia Burgoon, Ada Bowersox, Mattie Dutrer, Minnie, Effie and Bessie Schaeffer, Mollie and Lydia Sterner, Sue Ebaugh, Annie and Agnes Essich, Blanche Dayhoff, Nettie Bell, Messrs. On Saturday morning last Messrs. A. Riffle and Wm. Shank tracked what they supposed to be a fox to his den, and dug faithfully all day without reaching the animal. On Sunday our hotel proprietor, Mr. E. A. Fox, heard about this other fox, and bargained with Mr. Riffle to pay him $2.00 for sly Reynard, when caught. Mr. F. waited patiently until Wednesday for news of his purchase when he heard that the fox was two opossums. The date for the expected chase has not been set.

Some time in December the Advocate gave an explanation of Mr. Henry Pool's hog melt weather sign, and said that Mr. Pool predicted an easy winter, the last part, however, to be the worst. Well, the first part has been the hardest for many years, and now Mr. Pool wants the people to tell him what kind of weather the balance of the winter will bring. We Silver Run boys don't believe the hog melt knows anything about it. It has certainly been far out of the way thus far this winter.

Shipley Items.

Mr. Burgess N. Williams, our much esteemed friend, whose demise occurred on the 30th ult., was laid away to rest on the 1st inst., in Deer Park Cemetery. He was 64 years, 8 months, and 14 days old. His funeral was one of the largest that ever congregated at said church to pay the last tribute of respect to a deceased relative. The funeral services were conducted by Revs. John E. Forester, of Deer Park circuit, and Wm. A. Crouse, of Westminster. He leaves a widow and five grown children, one son and four daughters.

The mad dog scare has become prevalent again. A dog visited the home of Mr. John Schnieder one day this week and bit a very valuable shepherd dog for him. The dog got away. This is the second instance of this kind we have heard of during the week.

The weather here is the coldest for years. The thermometer on Wednesday was below zero, but the true report of Wells and Johnson's capture helps us to breathe better and our blood still circulates freely.

Missionary Day at Stone Chapel.

On last Sunday the people from far and near assembled at the historic spot to be entertained by the scholars of this place. It was Missionary Day, and a day that will be long remembered by both scholars and congregation as a very pleasant one. An excellent program was rendered without a mistake, as the many plaudits gave evidence. The writer was one of the congregation and will say that never before did he hear little children acquit themselves so admirably, not only one but all. The church was crowded, persons having been present from Frizellburg, New Windsor, and Sam's Creek. The singing was by the choir of the Church, accompanied by Miss Addie B. Manahan, organist, and Louis M. Sellman, cornetist. The program was followed by an address by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Cross. The collection amounted in all to $14.41, including the amount collected by the collectors.

Coasting is indulged here to an extent never heretofore known. Everybody seems to have the coasting mania, and the exhilarating sport is pursued night after night by large crowds of men, women and children. Before the moon became so brilliant the hillside was strung with lanterns to avoid the danger of accidents and collisions.
