There was been no new developments this week in the much discussed substitution of bus passenger service for rail service by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., although there is little indication of any possibility of the bus service. The only official action taken to date has been a preliminary application made by the railroad to the Public Service Commission to discnotinue the train passenger service. Local organizations and individuals are planning to protest the application unless a more suitable substitute is assured. Even then there is considerable opposition to the discontinuance of the passenger train as this train, in addition to passengers, carries mail, parcel post, milk, express and some freight. This train carries thousands of baby chicks via parcel post and express from the two local hatcheries. These chicks have to travel in heated compartments which is not provided with truck service. There are evidences that numerous protests will be made at the hearing and the possible result is that things will continue to go along. In the meantime there is no indication of improved passenger service by rail, bus or boat which leaves the transportation problem in a worse condition than it was 50 years ago when the old Chester River Steam Boat made daily trips to Baltimore. What traffic is moving by automobile is going out of the State rather than to Baltimore due to ease of travel.

The effort ni Congress to repeal the neutrality act had a set back on Thursday when some former supporters of the measure signified their intention of voting against it because of the continued toleration of labor racketeers. In other words they favored handling a serious local situation before dealing further with international affairs. The proposed nation-wide railroad strike scheduled for December 7th is nothing short of a threat of revolution during this time when the President has declared that a national emergency exists. The strike is being used in an effort to secure a raise in wages for railroad workers and the time selected is a time when transportation is such a vital link in National Defense. It is a typical example of putting personal interests over national welfare at a time when national welfare is threatened. It will be remembered how similar action was taken by railroad employees in another national crisis in which case the employees won. Their position now is not at all popular and the pickings might not prove to be so good. Railroad employees on the Kent County branch are among the highest salaried employees within the county.

Mr. Isaac George, Executive Secretary of the State Defense Council, in a talk at the Legion Banquet Tuesday night, outlined civilian defense plans so elaborate that there is a job for every man, woman and child in case of an invasion. He quoted Mayor LeGaurdia, National Head of Civilian Defense as saying that there is a ninety per cent chance that this country will not be invaded but the ten percent is worth the effort to be fully prepared. In addition to fire companies, aircraft listeners, there are fire wardens, aircraft wardens, auxilary firemen, fire spotters and a hundred and one other things that assures a job for everyone who wishes to volunteer. As one hears the program outlined he wonders if things are not being carried a little too far at this stage of the game. A well organized small group in each county to direct this civilian defense and with the well organized fire companies and aircraft listening posts it appears that other work might wait until the danger is a little closer. It may be better to be over than under organized yet there is a question as to whether the present efforts are not causing a great deal of unnecessary alarm. Much of the civilian defense activity is patterned after that in practice in England and has proved to be successful, yet the entire British Isles are in a total war and within a comparatively few mlies of the enemy territory. Lets be mindful of defense but not over excited about it.

Wild fowl hunters in Kent and Queen Annes Counties are still falling prey to the Federal Law interpretations of the enforcement agents. Arrests and sealing of blinds have become so general that those who are still free are just lucky. The people in this section of the country have not developed that constant fear of a police officer's badge but efforts are being made to force it. We have yet failed to secure or even to see a printed interpretation of the Federal law as the department is enforcing it so we repeat that all who take part in that age old sport of hunting wild duck and geese and who are not under arrest, are just lucky, or are you. As things develop, if you have not been arrested by a Federal Game Warden you might be considered "Nobody."

Refrigerator Ice Creams For After School Treats

Such a great variety of delicious frozen creams can be made in the freezing trays of your refrigerator that you could have ice cream every day of the week—or twice a day with out repeating the same flavor twice during the week. Grand ice creams these are—taking little time and very little trouble but so good—you'll find the children arriving home from school in quite a hurry if they know there is ice cream to be had too.

PEACH CREAM

2 cups crushed canned peaches
½ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1 or 2 drops almond extract
1 cup milk
1 cup coffee cream

Crush the peaches, then measure two cups. Add sugar and lemon juice. Combine with the milk and coffee cream, stirring until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Pour into freezing tray and freeze firm. Remove to chilled mixing bowl and beat with beater until mixture becomes light and creamy. Return quickly to freezing tray and allow to finish freezing.

STRAWBERRY CREAM

½ cup preserved strawberries
2 cups coffee cream

Heat strawberry preserves before putting them through a puree strainer. Then measure ½ cup. Add cream slowly. Beat with rotary egg beater. Chill. Pour into tray and freeze firm. Remove to bowl and whip with electric or hand beater until light and creamy. Return quickly to tray and finish freezing without further agitation.

There are several different varieties of melons—cantaloupes, honeydews. Persian melon, and honey balls. Honeydews or Persian melons, usually cost more than the cantaloupes, but are often large enough to be cut into four to six sections. Serve salt with melons. They may be decorated with cherry slices or mint.

Keep a bar of silver soap on the shelf near the sink, to be used for rubbing off egg stains or any other daily discolorations. If the flat silver which is used daily is look over as it is washed and the stains immediately removed, it seldom becomes necessary to clean all the flat silver at one time; then only those pieces which have not been in daily use will need routine polishing.

Raw walls or ceilings must be sized before calcimine is applied with a patent glue size or shellac. There are new cold water calcimines on the market that are self-sizing and valuable.

Different types of poultry are in season, and usually cheaper at different times of the year, for example—fowl, all year. Broilers, April to September. Capons, winter. Fryers, June to December. Roasters, September to March. Ducks, March to September. Squab, April to January, Turkey late fall and through the winter, best in December and January.

Some Helpful Hints

FOR TELEPHONE USERS

In the rush of business, domestic and social duties, the simple little things which must be done to get the most satisfactory telephone service are sometimes forgotten. The hints given below are not new—they are just reminders:

CONSULT DIRECTORY

Memory is often faulty. Look up the number when in doubt.

WHEN ANSWERING

Always answer pleasantly. It may be your best friend. It may be someone who will get a lasting impression of you from a first call.

BE SLOW—BE FAST

Be slow to hang up. Give the person you're calling time to answer.

Be fast to answer when your telephone rings. The person calling you will appreciate it.

PAD AND PENCIL

You'll save time and steps and have a written record of important messages if you keep a pad and pencil by the telephone.

IF YOU WOULD BE UNDERSTOOD

Keep your lips about one inch from the mouthpiece and speak directly into it, clearly and naturally. Chewing gum, pencils, cigars, pipes and cigarettes make it almost impossible for your words to flow clearly into the transmitter.

HANG UP GENTLY AND CAREFULLY

It may annoy the person at the other end of the line if you hang up roughly. Also, if your receiver doesn't rest properly on the hook, people who call you will get a "busy" until this condition is corrected.

There's always time to use the telephone properly and to keep a smile in your voice.
