WESTMINSTER, MARYLAND.

W. L. W. Seabrook - Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

SATURDAY, MARCH 9 1895.

Mr. Gorman still expresses the opinion that there will be a deficiency of sixty millions of dollars in the revenue of the government for the current year. He bases his opinion on the experience of the first six months of the new tariff law and it is, unfortunately, true that the statistics favor his view of the case.

The Fifty-third Congress expired by limitation at noon on Monday. It would be difficult to find a cause for any words of praise concerning it. The history of the country does not furnish its parallel for inefficiency. Most of its acts were detrimental to the interests of the country and it failed in all legislation calculated to afford relief from the financial and industrial distress brought about by its mischievous doings.

While it is true the Wilson-Gorman tariff law makes large reductions in the rates of duty on many articles, it is also true that a large quantity of merchandise previously admitted free is on the dutiable list. From this fact the average rate of duty on imports does not vary materially from that under the McKinley law. For the three years immediately preceding the passage of the McKinley bill the average rate of duty on imports was 29.54 per cent. During the existence of that law it was 23.33 per cent. For the first six months of the new law it is 22.81 per cent. The people may well wonder what they have gained by the adoption of a law that has wrecked their business enterprises, prostrated their industries and destroyed their prosperity, yet saved them only a half per cent. in tariff duties.

The apologists of Mr. Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle defend their recent remarkable financial proceedings by declaring that the country was on the verge of bankruptcy and that it was necessary to stop the withdrawals of gold at all hazards. It was this that led to the bargain with the London and New York Syndicate, by which $62,000,000 of bonds, which the people would gladly have taken at a premium of 116 to 119, were sold for 104½. The excuse is a lame one. The trouble with the administration has been that it has never trusted the people and has constantly withheld from them and their representatives such information as they should have had concerning the financial and other affairs of the nation. The people who poured out thousrnds of millions of dollars to maintain the government in its struggle with secession, could have been safely trusted to supply all the means necessary to maintain the public credit.

The Electric Railway.

The leading editorial of the Advocate last week was an interesting review of the project for an electric railway from Union Mills to Reisterstown, and an earnest plea for the construction of the road, as a connecting link in the line from Gettysburg to Baltimore. The Advocate claims to have "pretty thoroughly studied the enterprise," and does not hesitate to express the opinion "that the road can be built for about $10,000 a mile," or $190,000 for the nineteen miles of line proposed. The estimate appears to be reasonable. Little grading will be required and the material required for its construction can be procured at a very low price, to say nothing of the reduction in cost of labor. Now is the time to build the road.

About its value and convenience to the people residing near the line there would seem to be little room for differences of opinion. Its advantages could not well be overrated, and if it can be constructed for the sum suggested by the Advocate, subscribers to its stock would almost certainly find it a paying investment.

The Value of Protection.

No single item of the McKinley tariff law excited more opposition from the disciples of free trade than the duty imposed upon tin plates for the purpose of affording protection sufficient to encourage the establishment of tin mills in our own country. It was made the objective of all sorts of attacks, and every possible effort was made to bring it into disrepute and make it odious with the people. In the congressional campaign of 1890 peddlers were employed by the Democratic party, in some States, who went about hawking tin utensils at double the usual prices, and asserting that the increased cost was caused by the additional duty. Men of national reputation and leaders of the Democracy descended to carrying tin cups around and used them as object lessons in their speeches against protection; and the poor man's dinner pail was made to serve the same purpose, although the cost of these articles to purchasers had not been enhanced in the slightest degree. Every speech on the subject was more or less mendacious.

Then the erection of tin mills began, and the actual manufacture of plates soon followed. But the mendacity of the free traders was equal to the emergency, and reputable Democratic newspapers treated all assertions to that effect with contempt and ridicule, scouting the idea that such a thing was possible. Col. Ayer, a thoroughly trustworthy agent of the Treasury Department, made report after report, upon personal observation, showing the rapid growth of the industry and the production of bright as well as black plates. But readers of the leading Democratic papers continued to be deceived by lying denials of a patent fact, and many of them are to-day under the impression that tin plates cannot be made in this country, and that no serious attempt has ever been made to produce them here.

The Fifty-third Congress repealed the McKinley tin-plate schedule and restored the old rate of duty, although there was a specific contract with manufacturers that the protective duty should remain in force till 1897, to afford an opportunity for a thorough test of the ability of our own people to produce the plates. The repeal was a downright breach of faith with those who had invested large sums for the establishment of tin plate plants; but, fortunately, the four years of genuine protection afforded by the McKinley law resulted in such development of the industry that a fair prospect of its permanency exists, in spite of the withdrawal, in large measure, of that protection.

The following item from the local columns of the Baltimore Sun of Monday, which has been among the leading opponents of protection to tin plates and other American manufactures, must have been interesting reading to those who have followed its course in relation to this subject. It shows that McKinley protection has been the means, not only of making the production of tin plates in the United States possible, but that it is about to add a large and important industry to the manufacturing enterprises of Baltimore. It is a forcible exhibition of the value of protection. Here is the item referred to:

> The lot on which the Norton Tin-Plate and Can Company will erect its Baltimore plant is bounded by Boston, Hudson and Luzerne streets. This lot has a frontage of six hundred and sixty feet on Hudson street, eight hundred and seven feet on Boston street and five hundred and forty feet on Luzerne street. The tin-plate mill to be erected there will be two hundred and seventy-five feet long and the tin-can factory will be two hundred and sixty feet long.
>
> Special shipping facilities have been arranged, so that half a dozen cars can be loaded at once direct from the factory, tracks being laid on both sides of the buildings. The capacity of the tin plate mill will be four to five thousand boxes a week, while the capacity of the tin-can factory will be three hundred thousand cans in ten hours.
>
> The Baltimore plant will be a duplicate of Norton Bros'. plant at Maywood, Ill. It will be completed by June 1 or earlier, and in active running order.
>
> Mr. Edwin Norton has been in Baltimore during the past week supervising the preliminary arrangements for the construction of the buildings. The factories will be equipped with an electric light plant, so that in busy seasons they can be run at night, thus doubling the capacity.
>
> The capital stock of the company is $600,000, all paid up. The corporation is organized under the laws of the State of Illinois. Mr. J. C. Taliaferro will be superintendent of the factory and Thomas G. Cranwell & Co. will be the exclusive sales agents. Mr. Cranwell is the only Baltimore director of the company.

Frederick County Officials Indicted.

The following article was in type last week but was omitted for want of room:

It is Frederick county now that has an official scandal. An investigation of the affairs of Montevue Hospital, by the grand jury, has resulted in the indictment of Mr. Tobias F. Main, until recently superintendent of the hospital under appointment by the board of county commissioners, for bribing members of that body, and also in the indictment of Messrs. Frank House, James H. Delauter and William Morrison, of the board, for bribery and malfeasance in office. The tax-collector was also investigated, but the facts elicited were not sufficient to justify an indictment. One of the jurors is credited with having said: "We had our opinion regarding some other officials of the county, but it was impossible to get at the facts."

The indicted officials are all Democrats and the three commissioners are members of the board who were elected in 1891 for two yeas and had their terms extended to six years by the outrageous and arbitrary action of the Legislature.

Frederick correspondence of the Baltimore Sun says: The description Tobias F. Main, the ex-superintendent of Montevue Hospital, gives of his dealings and barter for his office with the three county commissioners is amusing. Mr. Main is a plain, unassuming farmer. He resided near Middletown, Frederick county, before he became superintendent at Montevue Hospital. He has always been above suspicion and was looked upon in the community where he resided as a man of the strictest honor. He has not an especially active mind and not very comprehensive of figures. He said that the three county commissioners told him he could make $1,300 or $1,400 out of the superintendency of the hospital (the salary of which is only $800,) that he went to see them and they produced a paper and all looked at it. They told him they could not exactly understand what it meant, but that they could make from it that Mr. Derr, his predecessor, had made $1,300 or $1,400 out of the place. This seemed to satisfy Mr. Main for the time. But he afterwards said he could get but $800 in payment for his services as superintendent, and that when the promise of the commissioners to give him the office for two or more years was not carried out, he knew he had not been fairly dealt with and made up his mind to tell all he knew about the matter to the grand jury."

Two of the commissioners, Messrs. Wm. M. Gaither and Melville Cromwell, do not appear to be implicated in the scandal, which is, however, the natural result of the ring methods that have prevailed in the Democratic party of Frederick county for years. Open bribery at elections has been, it is said, a common occurrence. Such proceedings cost money and it is reasonable to suppose that candidates who furnish means to debauch the ballot and corrupt the voters in defiance of law, will not have many conscientious scuples against getting their money back by equally unlawful methods.

It is gratifying to note that political influences have not been sufficient to shield the inculpated officials against an investigation, and that the grand jury has discharged an important public duty without apparent fear or favor.

Daniel J. Moran, a member of Good Will Fire Company No. 1, of Lonaconing, is the first beneficiary under the act of the Legislature appropriating a sum of money for the benefit of injured volunteer firemen. The amount is not large, but it is a substantial recognition of the services of this class of citizens, who have done so much at their own personal cost and risk for the protection of property from destruction by fire. In running to a fire in Lonaconing, Mr. Moran met with an accident by which his arm was broken. He receives for the injury $10 from the State and $10 from the State Firemen's Association, with which his company is connected. The Act of Assembly establishes a schedule of rates for injuries, ranging from $10 to $100. $100 is also given to the family of a fireman at his death.

Still Interested in Education.

The Baltimore American of Tuesday week says:

"Deputy Collector James A. Diffenbaugh returned to his post at the Custom-house yesterday, after a week's absence attending the National Educational Convention at Cleveland, O. Before taking his present position, Prof. Diffenbaugh was Carroll county's school examiner, and is yet a member of the State Board of Education. His interest in educational matters has not been encroached upon through the demands of his new position, and his part in the Cleveland convention was active."

We are permitted to publish the following incidental allusion to his trip to Cleveland, made by Prof. Diffenbaugh in a business letter to a gentleman in this city: "Our trip was a very enjoyable one. We left here last Monday morning for Buffalo, N. Y., spent the night there at the Iroquois Hotel, one of the best I ever saw. Spent Tuesday at Niagara Falls, grand now with mountains of ice; went to Cleveland Tuesday evening and put up at the Forest City Hotel. Left there Thursday evening and came home by easy stages via Lehigh Valley Railroad from Buffalo. The party consisted of Hon. E. B. Prettyman and myself, of our State Board of Education; Henry A. Wise, Supt; John E. McCahan, Asst. Supt., and Wm. J. C. Dulaney, of Baltimore; John C. Bannon, Clerk Circuit Court; F. Eugene Wathen, Examiner; Charles Himelheber, Asst. Examiner, and Dr. W. C. Claude, of Anne Arundel county, and H. G. Weimar, Examiner of Allegany county. The next meeting will be held next February at Jacksonville, Florida."

The first session of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the United Evangelical Association commenced in the Evangelical Church on King street, York, Pa., on Thursday, Bishop Stanford of Harrisburg, Pa., presiding. This is the branch of the Evangelical Association that is favorable to Bishop Dubs. There are about one hundred and fifteen ministers in the conference, which stretches from Williamsport, Pa., to Baltimore, and from Altoona to Sunbury. In Maryland it includes the counties of Baltimore, Harford, Carroll, Howard, Washington and Frederick.

The Methodist Episcopal ministers who are in attendance at the Baltimore Annual Conference, which commenced its sessions at the Mt. Vernon Place Church, Baltimore, on Wednesday, were greeted with a hearty welcome by the pastor and members, on Tuesday evening. Many of the ministers were accompanied by their wives. Dr. L. T. Townsend, the pastor of Mt. Vernon Church, delivered an address of welcome to which Rev. Job A. Price responded. Dr. Henry W. Wilson also delivered a welcome address. After the exercises in the church lunch was served in the lecture room.

The Baltimere Sun says: "It is not generally understood by those to whom the income tax law applies that it is necessary to give their residence and postoffice address on the return made to Internal Revenue Collector Vandiver. The collector has been unable to return for correction a number of blanks that have been improperly made out, as the persons have simply given their names and the collector does not know where they live."

A CONCERT AT THE COLLEGE.

The Glee Club of Western Maryland College, assisted by the Banjo and Guitar Club, will give its annual concert in college auditorum on Friday evening, 29th inst. While a charming entertainment may be expected the occasion will have unusual interest for another reason. Some time ago a prize of $25.00 was offered for the best song to be submitted to a committee for decision, the winning song to be adopted as the regular Western Maryland College song. The air selected is "Maryland, My Maryland," and quite a number of songs is now in the hands of the committee and the decision will be rendered on the evening of the concert. The contest for the prize was open to all teachers and ex-teachers, and all students and ex-students of the college and several of the songs submitted are said to be unusually meritorious.

Readers of Marion Crawford's novel, "Casa Braccio," now appearing in The Century, will be interested in knowing that the story, as printed so far, is true, except that the scene of the actual occurrence was in South America instead of in Italy. The nun, who really escaped from a Carmelite convent with a Scotch surgeon, was the niece of a bishop. A skeleton was placed in her bed, when it was fired, instead of a body as in Mr. Crawford's story. After much suffering the surgeon and his wife reached the sea-coast, and were taken aboard an English vessel, whence they sailed to Scotland and lived for many years in Edinburgh. The part of Mr. Crawford's story still to appear, portraying the punishment visited upon the pair for their sin, is imaginary.

THE LENTEN SEASON AT ATLANTIC CITY.

The City-by-the-Sea with its balmy climate, exhilarating saline atmosphere, moderated and softened by the proximity of the Gulf Stream, making out-of-door exercise a delight in its fresh and bracing air on the board walk, which is a distinctive feature of the place—with hotels comparing favorably with any in the country offers a most attractive place to spend a portion of the Lenten Season. The Pennsylvania Railroad with its double lines to the sea, presents the quickest and most desirable route to this popular resort by their trains leaving Union Station, Baltimore, 11.05 a. m., and 12.05 noon week days, with parlor and dining cars, making close connection at Philadelphia with Express trains with parlor cars, reaching Atlantic City at 3.30 and 5.30 p. m. respectively. Excursion tickets are now being sold by the company from Baltimore to Atlantic City at a moderately low rate.

ODD FELLOWS' HALL, FRIDAY NIGHT, MARCH 15th, 1895.

W. Scott Heywood the Cornetist, with the Dewey Heywood Concert Company, has at the age of 24 years held the position of Cornet soloist with three of the largest musical organizations of this country: Gilmore's Band of one hundred musicians, Brooks Symphony Orchestra and the "Iowa State Band" during the entire period of the World's Fair where he delighted thousands every day by his charming playing. At Manhattan Beach he was so popular with the vast throngs and with Mr. Gilmore himself that at the close of his engagement he was presented with a beautifully designed Gold Medal by Gilmore and his band as a token of their esteem and good will. He had the distinction of being selected to render the cornet solos in the "Court of Honor" at the World's Fair, Tuesday, July 4th, the greatest day of all and it is a fact that at that time he played to more people than was ever played to at any one time by any soloist that ever lived. He will be heard on Friday Night, March 15th, under auspices of Charity Lodge K. of P., with the Dewey Heywood Concert Co.

LADIES' FANCY WAISTS FOR EARLY SPRING.

With the growing taste for fancy waists wholly independent of the skirt the problem of economical dressing becomes susceptible of an easy solution this season. The same skirt can be made to serve more than one purpose, and on the other hand, the bodice not being compelled to conform in style to the latter, may be put to several uses. This distinction between the two parts of the costume is greatly facilitated by the new materials. Thus, the highly artistic broche crepon of latest importations is admirably suited to skirts both stylish in appearance and practical for every-day wear. The McDowell Fashion Magazines just received contain many designs of new models of bodices as well as skirts which render them unusually attractive this month. A practical feature of these journals is their special coupon patterns which are purposely adapted to the popular taste for novelties in combination. "La Mode de Paris" and "Paris Album of Fashion" are the leading Fashion Magazines. They cost $3.50 each for a year's subscription, or 35 cents per copy; "The French Dressmaker" is always the great favorite among professional as well as amateur dressmakers. It costs $3.00 per annum, or 30 cents a copy. "La Mode," a Magazine of unsurpassed popularity, is only $1.50 a year, or 15 cents a copy. If you are unable to procure either of the journals from your newsdealers do not take any substitute from him, but apply by mail directly to Messrs. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Street, New York.

AN INTERESTING MAGAZINE.

Mrs. Shakespeare sounds a bit odd to our ears, and that is why thousands of people will read with curiosity the article under that title in the March Ladies' Home Journal. The paper is extremely interesting. It is by Dr. W. J. Rolfe, the Shakespearean authority, who gathers together everything that is known about Shakespeare's wife, her courtship, her married life and her children, and presents his material in a popular and most fascinatingly-interesting article. Conan Doyle, in the same magazine, tells what he thinks are the "Literary Aspects of America"; while William Dean Howells is particularly entertaining in his literary autobiography this month in telling of Thomas Hardy and Tolstoy, and of the greatest literary passion of his life. Dr. Parkhurst fulfils the promise of his first article, and is very strong in what he says of "The Unit of Society"; while Mrs. Burton Harrison is instructive in fixing many of the little courtesies of social life, about which everybody likes to be right. Mrs. Jeanette H. Walworth tells a good Southern love story under the title, "The Three Miss Merritts." An excellent glimpse is afforded of the family and home life of Bill Nye, by Augusta Prescott. Whether women should be allowed into men's clubs is treated humorously by John Kendrick Bangs. Just what women will wear this spring in hats, wraps and gowns, and the correct shades, are made a specialty by the Journal's fashion editors, and their work, and that of the artists, is well done. The music and words of a very good devotional song are also given. And there is much more—too much, really, to menton—in this issue of the Journal. It is a good umber in every respect, and a beautiful one as well, clothed in its artistic cover by Albert Lynch, the French artist, whose chaste girls are exquisitely portrayed on this Journal cover design. The number costs only ten cents, and is published by The Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia.

Order of Publication.

NO. 3330 EQUITY.

In the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity.

Margaret R. Shipley, vs. Haziel T. Shipley.

The object of this suit is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the Plaintiff from the Defendant.

The Bill of Complaint states that the plaintiff was married to the Defendant about twenty years ago and that they resided in Carroll County until about five years ago and that the Plaintiff still resides in Carroll County.

And that the Defendant, without just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the said Plaintiff more than three years before the filing of said Bill of Complaint and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

The Bill of Complaint further states that the parties to this suit had four children born to them who are now under the age of twenty-one years and who are still living at the time of the filing of said Bill.

The Bill of Complaint further states that the said Defendant has left the State of Maryland and is now a non-resident and that said Plaintiff does not know where he resides, and that the said Defendant has failed to contribute towards the support of the said Plaintiff and their children, and on the Petition of the said Plaintiff to this Court an order of Publication was granted against the said Defendant as a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 21st day of February, in the year Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-five, ordered by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the Plaintiff, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Carroll County once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of March next, give notice to the said Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill of Complaint, warning him, the said Defendant, to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 15th day of April next, to show cause if any he has why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.
