The Tongues of Birds.

Every naturalist, says Nature, is acquainted with the elaborate spring-like mechanism by which the woodpeckers and the humming birds are enabled to protrude their tongues with such rapidity for the capture of insect prey. These remarkable instances of adaptation have been more than once described, and some other special modifications of the avian tongue and its bony supports will be recalled by ornithologists. In a recent number of Der Zoologische Garten, Herr Schenkling-Prevot redescribes these cases after a renewed investigation, and also supplies a quantity of interesting information on the form of the tongue and hyoid apparatus of birds in general. The old idea that the woodpecker transfixes its prey with its sharped-tipped tongue is probably not yet extinct, but Herr Prevot adds his opposition to this opinion, and states that the insects are agglutinated to its tongue by the sticky secretion with which its surface is copiously covered.

Although the form of the tongue usually corresponds to the shape of the bill, there are exceptions to this rule, as, for example, in the waders, kingfisher, and hoopoe, which, in spite of their long bills, only possess small cartilaginous tongues; in the pelican, indeed, the tongue is altogether rudimentary. In most birds, whose food consists of seeds, the tongue is dart or awl shaped; in others, spatulate; rarely, vermiform or tubular. In some birds, such as the owl, which swallow their prey entire, the tongue is broad and serves as a mere shovel. In the hedge sparrow, nuthatch, woodcock, and the others the tongue is bifid or trifid at its apex, while in the hummingbirds the tongue is split into two branches almost to its base, and is used for actually gripping the small insects on which these resplendent little creatures subsist. In a family of parrots (Trichoglossidæ) the tongue is provided at its apex with a brush of some 250 to 300 hair-like processes. In the parrots, the tongue is thick and fleshy, devoid of horny barbs or papillæ, and is even suspected to possess sense organs of taste. Herr Prevot concludes his concise but interesting paper with some remarks on the influence of the form of tongue in birds on their varying powers of articulation. It is interesting to note that the parrots, the form of whose tongues most closely resembles that of man, are able to imitate his language more clearly than any other birds.

What is the real cause of the dishonor in which we hold the lottery, the drinking-bar, prize-fighting, and certain kinds of speculation? In it not that they in no wise promote the welfare of humanity, but only transfer money from one pocket to another, or develop some of the lower and more brutal instinct? Infinitely more valuable and honorable is the work of the humblest laborer who ploughs a furrow or mends a road or cleans a street, thus contributing his share to the health or comfort or nourishment of mankind.

Rich food is essential to secure the maximum produce from the animal, but such food should be fed to stock that can utilize it to the best advantage. Some animals may not consume as much as others, but will more completely digest and assimilate the food, and thus avoid loss of proportions that would be valueless to animals that are unable to convert food into more than the average proportion of available produce.

There are a great many people who love under a mistake. They bring to the persons they love what they love. They flood them with their own imagination. They make them beautiful by that which they passionately imagine of them. Then, aster a little while, when they come to realize, love falls off, and they find that they have made the greatest mistake of life.

The enormous size and massive structure of the native houses is among recent surprising discoveries of explorers among the villages—inhabited by numerous warlike tribes—scattered along the streams of New Guinea. Houses 300 to 400 feet long and 100 feet high—among the largest in the world—are reported to be not uncommon.

All work which crosses the track of conscience promotes unrest. Work which a man has to make allowances for and which puts him on the defensive with his own conscience is wearisome. To rest well, a man must be on good terms with himself. If apologies are necessary, it is not possible to have an idle mind.

Silence may be golden, or it may be leaden. It may be the silence of wisdom and self-mastery, or it may be the silence of stupidity and cowardice—the silence of the owl or the silence of the sphinx.

Sprinkling ordinary salt over coal either in the bin or as it is put into the furnace, will make it burn more evenly to a clean ash, and will also prevent clinkers.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Castoria promotes Digestion, and overcomes Flatulency, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhœa, and Feverishness. Thus the child is rendered healthy and its sleep natural. Castoria contains no Morphine or other narcotic property.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 South Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From personal knowledge and observation I can say that Castoria is an excellent medicine for children, acting as a laxative and relieving the pent up bowels and general system very much. Many mothers have told me of its excellent effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"For several years I have recommended 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., 125th Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach."

AN OPEN LETTER.

WESTMINSTER, April 10, 1890.

Mr. Jos. B. Boyle:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but temporary relief. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try your Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost instant relief, but a permanent cure. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am,

Truly yours,
EDWARD LYNCH.

Look to Your Interest, People.

Big Slaughter in Wall Paper.

MY PRICES RANGE FROM 12c. TO 30c. PUT ON WALL. GILT 20c. TO 25c. ALL PAPER 8 YARDS LONG

These are not living prices. You may say how do I live. I have no rent to run a store and fuel, &c., and do all of my own work. I don't pay any hands one year to do three months' work in season. This is a chance to get papering done cheap. Take advantage while you have a chance. I will do as before, done by me. I can give the best references in the county.

Guarantee All Work

There has been a great deal said about me being a scab workman, but it was only said by those who can't compete with me in price and workmanship and who are afraid of me—never by a party that I did work for. Write for sample and price, or I will come to see you in person and tell you what your job will cost. I can be found 300 yards from the limit of Westminster on the Littlestown turnpike.

Thankful for past favors.

Very Respectfully,
jun-28 L. GLADHILL.

ATTENTION FARMERS AND FRUIT GROWERS.

I have a fine assortment of all kinds of Fruit Trees, Grape Vines, Dewberries, Blackberries, Raspberries, Strawberries, Gooseberries, and Currants; Flowers of all kinds; Shade and Ornamental trees, all of my own growing. Come and examine my stock, get low prices and see that stock is true to name and first-class.

My trees will be ready to dig about the 25th day of October. Thanking my customers for their past patronage, I beg to say that if any sold has died it will be replaced, with satisfaction to both parties.
