"TIME BRINGS ROSES."

When from my mountain-top of years I gaze
Backward upon the scenes that I have passed,
How pleasant is the view! and yet how vast
The deserts where I thirst! I many days!
There, where now hangs that blue and shimmering haze,
And there, and there, my lot with pain was cast.
Hopeless and dark; but always at the last
Deliverance came, from unexpected ways.
And now all past grief is as but a dream;
Yet even now there loom before my path
Shadows whose gloomy portent checks my breath.
But shadows are not always what they seem—
God's love sometimes appears to be his wrath,
And his best gift is the white rose of death.
John H. Boner in the June Century.

House Nerves—A Bad Ailment.

Energetic, care-free individuals laugh at the suggestion of such an ailment as house nerves and say it is only imaginary. But thousands of women, says the New York Press, will testify otherwise.

People of sedentary habits, who spend all their time indoors, frequently become morbid, brooding and irritable. The failure of any member of the family to reach home at the usual time brings forth gloomy forebodings of disaster. The absence of any one at night causes floor walking, and tears, even though such person be of mature years, sound health, and abuddant ability to care for himself. A projected journey is overcast by recitals of horrible accidents. Meals are unsatisfactory, clothes never fit, no one sympathizes or condoles with the sufferer.

The reasons of house nerves are legion. Introspection is one. Let a woman sit at home day after day, week in and week out, and analysis of everything and person within her ken naturally follows, herself included. A woman who studies herself, her wants and desires, her ailments and loneliness, is on a fair road to an asylum, did she but know it.

Some women it is true, are tied down by children and household cares to a ceaseless indoor life, but they are not generally the ones who succumb to house nerves, one reason being that, forced out of contact with others, they yearn always for the privilege of mingling in some sort of society, embracing every chance thrown in their way toward that end. But the woman who stays at home because she might get sick by venturing out in the cold or because her neighbor can entertain better than she can or dress better, or perhaps the habit has become fixed by degrees to that extent that it is like parting with a tooth to get out of the routine—this is the woman who broods and fancies and gries over mental pictures of catastrophes that never happen and meets troubles which will never come.

Any parent who owns a highly imaginative child owes it to society at large to throw it in with healthy merry companions, who always effect a complete cure, for mirth is infectious. But if the unhappy owner is repressed and kept indoors, some family in the future will feel the effects.

The cure is simple, but few follow it. Throw away your medicine and go visiting. Patronize all the gayeties that your pocketbook affords. Take long walks in the sunshine, and whenever a morbid thought comes think up a necessary errand, and it will dissolve like mist before the sun. House nerves can be cured, but only by natural laws. Medicines dull, but do not cure.

Tobacco Smoke Kills Microbes.

From the St. Louis Republic.

M. Tassinari, a Parisian scientist, has been experimenting with the smoke of tobacco and finds it to be one of the most perfect germicides and disinfectants ever used. In proving his claims smoke from a cigar was blown across a strip of linen which had been dipped in a fluid containing thousands of virulent microbes. When the cigar was finished, the linen was immediately placed in a bowl of beef broth, where common microbes are expected to breed and multiply very rapidly. To the surprise of the doubters, it was found that the smoke had had the effect of delaying the growth of the organisms, that the majority of them were dead, and that those which managed to live never fully developed.

Deceit is the sign of inferiority. It runs toward animal conditions of life. It is a sign of weakness. In the order of nature, that which cannot be done by discretion nor by strength, animals do by craft or by deceit; and in the lower stages of human development deceit is common.

The mill cannot grind with the water that is past. As little can it grind with what is to come. It can grind only with what is passing through it. We can make no use of time past. As little use can we make of time to come. We can make use only of the passing moment.

Do you suppose that the world would be as wicked as it is if Satan was so indolent in doing evil as many Christians are in doing good.

If we thought of ourselves as others think of us, we would sit up nights wondering what we were born for.
