The Fate of the Rural Town.

From the Boston Standard.

We have heard much in late years of the development of our mountain towns. We have thought the trouble to be in their elevation and the hardness of the soil; but Mr. Fletcher is now telling us in the April Forum that a similiar fate is visiting the rural town in such States as New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa. Indeed, the blight is peculiar to no one section, but extends to every part of the country. The population of the whole country has immensely increased, while scores and hundreds of the rural towns have steadily declined in population and wealth. In view of these facts, we must look for a deeper cause, and that cause we find in the new facillities for travel and transportation. The railway is an immense centralizing power. We are only beginning to awaken to the tremendous significance of this recently introduced material force in our civilization. In its presence all things pass and the whole world is made anew. The immediate results from the introduction of steam as a motive power were felt long ago; the remoter consequences are now being revealed in every cause and in every line of business. The change is nowhere more clearly seen than in the relation of the inland town to the commercial metropolis. When men reached the interior by horse power, by the ox team, or on foot, the rural town had a living chance to advance in population and wealth. For the industrial army which had moved into the wilderness or the open country, the rural village was the new base of supplies. The commissariat must go along with the columns. The large center was too far away. But the coming of the railway abridged distance. It brought the village ten or twenty miles away in touch with the great city, making it a sort of suburb. The outlying depot of supplies is no longer needed; the railway train has taken the place of the country storehouse. Does the change mean the destruction of the rural town? Not at all. The rural town is as important as ever, but in a new way. The railway took up the old base of supplies and carted it away as of no further use. The fortifications around it have been pulled down, and the soldiers of industry who had occupied them have been drawn back to the main base. The industries now find their center, not in the rural village, but in the city a little farther away. What is taken out of the town is simply drawn back into the city. The fictitious importance of the rural hamlet has disappeared, while the agricultural value of the land remains. The agricultural resources of the country must forever be the bulwark of the city. The only peculiarity now is that the city reaches out farther, drawing its supplies, by the aid of steam, not only from an area of five or ten, but of a thousand or three thousand miles around. It draws from the cheapest market, without respect to distance.

Incubation Period of Diseases.

The Clinical Society of London, wishing to establish a period of incubation for various diseases, instituted a series of investigations with the following results:

Diphtheria.—In this disease the incubation period does not as a rule exceed four days and is more often two days. It may also extend to five, six and seven days. The infection may take place at any time in the course of the disease. Mild cases may spread it.

Typhoid Fever.—This may vary within wide limits twelve to fourteen days, but not infrequently it is less. As the disease is usually introduced into the system by food and drink, it is not carried from one person to another, but several may get it from the same source. Contaminated water and milk is the usual cause.

Epidemic Influenza or "Grippe."—The shortest incubation period in this disease is from a few hours to three or four days. It generally strikes suddenly and without warning. A patient may carry infection throughout the whole course of the disease.

Measles.—The incubation period of measles is usually short. It is counted from the date of the eruption, which decides the disease.

Mumps.—The incubation period of mumps is rather long, from one to two weeks, and the chances of infection diminish daily.

Rubeola, Rotheln, or German Measles.—This has a long incubation period, like ordinary measles, and its infectivity diminishes in a day or two after the rash disappears.

Variola or Smallpox.—The incubation period of this disease is from one to three days.

Varicella, or Chickenpox has a period of incubation slightly longer han variola.

THE CENTURY
IN 1895.

Taking advantage of the general revival of interest in the Great Emperor, The Century will print during 1895

A NEW LIFE OF NAPOLEON, MAGNIFICENTLY ILLUSTRATED.

The Century is famous for its great historical serials, and never in its history has a greater one been projected than this new "Life of Napoleon," written by Prof. William M. Sloane, of Princeton, who has spent many years in preparation for his work. Thus far no biography of "the man of destiny" has appeared in either English or French that is free from rancor and attentive to the laws of historical criticism. The Century has secured it—the great, all-round, complete and interesting history of the life of one of the most marvelous of men. No matter how much you already know of Napoleon, you will want to read this;—here is the concentration of all the lives and memoirs. The illustrations will be magnificent—the wealth of the Century's art department will be lavished upon them. Two members of the staff have just returned from Paris, where they have been securing all that is best of Napoleonic material. New portraits will be printed, great historical paintings reproduced, and Castaigne and other modern artists have drawn anew some of the great scenes of Napoleon's life of this history.

In addition to this there will be

A NEW NOVEL BY MARION CRAWFORD.

The title is "Casa Draccio," and it is a romance of Italy, full of human passion and exciting episode.

A NEW NOVEL BY MRS. BURTON HARRISON

will be published during the year. It is called "An Errant Wooing," and is a tale of wandering (and love) among new scenes of travel in Northern Africa and Southern Spain.

OTHER FEATURES

will be several familiar papers on "Washington in Lincoln's Time," by Noah Brooks, who was on terms of unusual intimacy with the War President; "The Cathedrals of France" by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, with illustrations by Joseph Pennell. Many more serials will be announced later.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

contributes his First American Story to the December number of The Century.

THE PRICE

of The Century is $4.00 a year. "No home is complete without it." Begin subscriptions with November number. Whatever other magazines you may take, you must have The Century. All agents and dealers take subscriptions, or remittance may be made directly to

Harper's Bazar
IN 1895.

Elegant and exclusive designs for Out-door and Indoor Toilettes, drawn from Worth models by Sandoz and Chapuis, are an important feature. These appear every week, accompanied by minute descriptions and details. Our Paris Letter, by Katharine de Forest, is a weekly transcript of the latest styles and caprices in the mode. Under the head of New York Fashions, plain directions and full particulars are given as to shapes, fabrics, trimmings, and accessories of the costumes of well-dressed women. Children's Clothing receives practical attention. A fortnightly Pattern-sheet Supplement enables readers to cut and make their own gowns. The woman who takes HARPER'S BAZAR is prepared for every occasion in life, ceremonious or informal, where beautiful dress is requisite.

An American Serial, Doctor Warrick's Daughter, by Rebecca Harding Davis, a strong novel of American life, partly laid in Pennsylvania and partly in the far South, will occupy the last half of the year.

My Lady Nobody, an intensely exciting novel, by Maarten Maartens, author of "God's Fool," "The Greater Glory," etc., will begin the year.

Essays and Social Chats. To this department Spectator will contribute her charming papers on "What We are Doing" in New York society.

Answers to Correspondents. Questions receive the personal attention of the editor, and are answered at the earliest possible date after their receipt.

Send for Illustrated Prospectus.

The Volumes of the BAZAR begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the Number current at the time of receipt of order.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1.00 each. Title-page and Index sent on application.

Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.

GREATEST FAMILY WEEKLY.
THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

The National Tribune is now entering upon its 17th year of phenomenal success.

No other family weekly in the country has had such a growth, and maintained it so steadily.

It goes into every County in the United States, and has clubs of subscribers at nearly every Post-office.

It has gained this proud position solely on its merits as a highly interesting family newspaper.

FOR THE YEAR 1894

It will be made much better and more attractive than ever. While retaining all of its present popular features, it will constantly add new ones.

ITS FEATURES.

War History, by men who actually served and fought in the struggle. Short Stories of Romance, Travel, Experience and adventure, by leading writers. Editorials upholding the cause of the veterans, and maintaining the highest loyalty to the Government, and the promotion of the best interests of the whole people. Washington News. Full accounts of what is taking place at the seat of Government; careful reports of all important matters in Congress and the Executive Departments; gossip about public men. Household Department, Edited by a lady of National reputation. G. A. R., W. R. C., and S. of V. News, more full and complete than published by any other paper. Agricultural Department, carefully edited by practical men. General News, carefully compiled.

The National Tribune is strictly non-partizan, and thoroughly American. It believes in the greatest good to the greatest number of our people, and the highest development of our institutions—in National unity and exalted loyalty. Price

$1 a Year Payable in Advance.

It claims to give more and better matter for the sum of Two Cents a week than any other publication. Every line that appears in it is written for it, and has appeared in no other paper. It uses no syndicate or boiler-plate matter. Address—
