ALBANY, Nov. 1.

FROM THE NIAGARA.

We have certain advices, that 1500 men of Brown's divifion marched for Sackett's Harbor on the 24th. Gen. Izard's forces were encamped oppofite Black Rock, and were expected to crofs the river laft week. The volunteers and militia under Gen. Porter, and through him to his corps, a complimentary address; and they were alfo thanked and complimented in a general order from head quarters.

From our Correspondent.

LEDGER OFFICE—NORFOLK, November 1, 1814.

The Enemy returning.—A flag which has been up to the British Commander in Herring Bay, (between Patuxent and Annapolis) returned last evening; yesterday she was boarded from the Dauntless frigate, in company with four transports, and a schooner, from Halifax; the frigate and transports were full of troops; the whole stood up the Bay after the flag parted company.

The force of the enemy now in the Chesapeake is two 74's, 6 frigates, 1 brig, 5 transports and 8 schooners. The Havanna and Madagascar frigates (included above) are in Lynhaven bay.

This force whether from Halifax or not, is no doubt the vanguard of a much larger; it would be idle in us to offer an opinion as to the enemy's designs, we hope all will be prepared.

We have not before heard of the Dauntless being on this station; may she not be the van of Lord Hill's force.

We have a Steel's List to Feb. 1813, and find no such frigate as the Dauntless; there is a sloop of war of that name. The officer must have given a wrong name to the officer of the flag, no doubt with design, to prevent ny conjecture of the place from whence the roops came.—F. Gaz.

EXPECTATIONS.

About the middle or latter end of the present month, we may expect to hear some certain intelligence of two important circumstances, in the consequences of which, we, as a nation, have a deep interest.

The first is, the result of the Congressional proceedings at Vienna—Without the gift of prophecy, we may venture to foretell, that the Combined Sovereigns are not planning the safety of Republics, nor the extension of civil and religious Liberty—Wherever the English Minister plays a part, these will be no objects of his care—he has other plans in agitation; and the weight of his purse will add force to the strength of his arguments—Vide, the new French Constitution, and the conduct of Ferdinand of Spain; for which notable things, certain Hon. and Rev. Gentlemen made such famous rejoicings!—In future times, the infame festival at New York, and the barbarous burning of Washington, will be placed in the same picture.

The next is, the arrival of the Great Lord and his army at Bermuda, from which place we must expect a thundering stroke upon some part of our coast, upon some one or more of our "assailable places," in order to "cripple us for the next fifty years"—An opinion seems lately to prevail, that the great stroke is meant to fall upon New Orleans, in conjunction with a Spanish force acting towards Mexico—The English Minister has cast a longing eye upon the Mississippi; and Lord Hill, who is to be the Americanus of the age, is to conquer that part of our territory—For this purpose, the British Commander, Nicolls, lately issued his invitation to the men of Kentucky, to join the outlaws at Barrataria, under that modern Charles de Moore, Mons. La Fitte!

If Lord Hill does go to that part of the continent, he will meet two formidable enemies—a killing climate, and Old Hickory Jackson at the head of the South-western men.

P. S.—With respect to the late intelligence said to be brought by a Scotch gentleman from Aberdeen, we place no reliance on it—It may be a fabrication to put us off our guard, or a vague report in a remote town in Scotland, 6 or 700 miles from London—Until we hear the result of the proceedings at Vienna, we cannot form a correct judgment of the destination of Lord Hill and his army; whether they have proceeded to America, or have been sent to Flanders, either to foment new discord, or support new coalitions with "the legitimate Sovereigns of Europe."——Still let us be on our guard, and be well prepared to meet the foe.

THE CAMPAIGN

Appears, as we apprehended, to have clofed at leaft on our part. We learn by the newspapers, in the abfence of information from official sources, that the main body of our army on the Niagara is about retiring into winter quarters at and about Fort Erie. The enemy, reinforced by means of his ascendancy on the Lake, appears to have become too ftrong to be driven from those pofitions, which he now occupies and maintains, after the lofs of thoufands of his beft and moft approved soldiers. Our youthful heroes have fnatched from the Britons, who acquired them at Talavera and Vittoria, the laurels they have entwined around their own brows. They have fought the good fight, and are entitled to a repofe more tranquil than they are likely to enjoy on the hoftile fhore of Erie.

No praise can be superlative that is applied to that part of the Northern Army, which has fo often faced the enemy this Summer, so repeatedly met and conquered fuperior force. They have nobly maintained the character of our arms; they have eftablifhed the equality of American soldiers to thofe who learnt the art in the accomplifhed fchools of Europe. They are the leaven which is to infufe fpirit, emulation, and difcipline through our whole army. In one word, they have entitled themfelves to the thanks of their country, which Congrefs has beftowed with an unanimous voice.

The fuperior force of the enemy on the shores and in the vicinity of Lake Ontario, will, we prefume, enable him to act offenfively even during the enfuing winter. If fo, he will probably make an attempt on Sackett's Harbor if not on other points. Wherever his arm may fail, we doubt not he will meet the fame reception he experienced laft winter at Sackett's Harbor, and lately at Plattfburg. Such demonstrations will in the end be more injurious to him and beneficial to us, than half a dozen pitched battles.—Nat. Int.

THE CAMPAIGN,

It will be seen by our accounts from the Niagara, has probably closed in the north, unless the enemy shall protract it by attacking our posts. It is neither our province nor intention to cast any blame upon Gen. Izard, for his apparently tardy and indecisive movements, which gave time to the enemy to reinforce upon the Niagara—nor shall we pretend to scan the motives for his sudden retrogade movement after he had forced a passage over the Chippawa: yet we cannot but observe that public expectation has been highly disappointed. The General is amenable to the government for his conduct, and as they censure or applaud, he will rise or fall.

We have nevertheless ample cause for congratulation on the events of the campaign.—The enemy's forces have been augmented from 30 to 40,000 men, and he has been enabled by the peace in Europe, to direct all his force and resources against us singly. Our regular forces have not, on the contrary, been superior, if equal, in point of numbers, to what they were in the campaign of 1813. Yet with all this disparity, he has been unable to make any serious impression upon us; and whenever he has attempted an invasion, (except in Maine, where he met with very little resistance,) he has paid dearly for his temerity. At Baltimore, at Plattsburgh, &c. he has fled before an undisciplined force, composed principally of militia, and often inferior in numbers. But it is on the Niagara, in particular, that the enemy has been shorn of his military laurels—laurels which had cost him millions of treasure and thousands of lives to acquire. There the renowned veterans of the peninsula have been obliged to knuckle to Yankee valor, and to yield the palm of victory to men whom they had been taught to contemn—men new in arms, and uniformly inferior in numbers. There the reputation of our arms has acquired a brilliancy and glory which will give lustre to the latest page of American history; and which will perpetuate, as examples to admiring posterity, the names of the heroes of Chippawa, of Bridgewater, and of Erie.

Thus far the enemy has gained neither in reputation nor in territory, by the events of this campaign on land, if we except the undisturbed occupation of a part of Maine; and in stating the account of loss in killed and prisoners, the balance will be found to stand some thousands in our favor.

And what has the enemy gained upon the water? What American bosom but dilates with heartfelt pride at the recital of our naval achievements? With a few frigates and sloops of war, we have captured or sunk three of the enemy's vessels of war on the ocean, and a whole squadron, superior in men and guns, upon lake Champlain. To balance this, with more than a thousand ships of war, he has taken from us one solitary frigate, the Essex—and even that was a victory more honorable to the conquered than the conqueror.

Albany Argus.

THE NORTHERN CAMPAIGN

Is now rapidly drawing to a close, and we should have been agreeably disappointed had not its results verified our predictions. We are now, at the end of the third campaign of the war, not advanced one step nearer its object (an honorable peace, through the conquest of Canada) than we were at the end of the second campaign. We have reaped a rich harvest of glory and of military experience. Our raw recruits have been transformed into veterans, and officers have been trained in this practical school, fitted to contend with the elaborate science and skill of Europe. The virtue and valor of the American people have been proudly displayed, and their ability to defend the precious heritage of independence, incontestibly proved. But instead of of carrying the war to the walls of Quebec, and striking at the heart of the enemy's dominions, we are still acting on the defensive. Had any man predicted, at the end of the last campaign, that the enemy's squadron would now ride triumphant on lake Ontario, and thus keep up the chain of his communication with the peninsula, would he not have been pronounced insane, or a wicked, wilfully false prophet of evil? We have frequently expressed our conviction, that this state of things was to be attributed to the want of an effectual naval co-operation with the left division of our gallant army. But it is not sufficient, nor would it be satisfactory, thus to stop at second causes; it is our duty to go on and inquire—to what is this non-co-operation to be attributed? The responsibility thereby incurred has long enough vaciliated between the Navy Department and Com. CHAUNCEY. It is time, and the people expect it should be fixed somewhere. If it be true, as we have frequently stated, and as is confirmed by gen. BROWN'S letter of the — September, to com Chauncey, that he (Brown) was induced, in consequence of assurances from the government that our squadron would be ready to sail in the first week of July, to move prematurely across the Niagara; and if, on the other hand, it be equally true that the Secretary of the Navy had reserved to Com. Chauncey "a higher destiny" than that of co-operating with the army, we may easily trace the source of our disappointed hopes up to its origin. Be this as it may, the people expect, and we have no doubt they will be gratified, to see an impartial investigation, by their representatives, of this serious matter, and the remedy applied with a firm and steady hand to the root of the evil. The existence of this evil does not comport with the honor and safety of the republican party. The war is essentially their war; its glory or shame belongs to them; and though posterity will never acquit the opposition of having contributed, during the two first campaigns, and of still contributing, in a certain degree, to mar the success of a contest in which are involved the dearest rights and most valuable interests of our country, yet it is incumbent upon those by whom the war was declared, to shew that they have left nothing undone to bring it to a glorious conclusion.—Nat. Advocate.

The Rev. Mr. Duncan having returned to the city, divine service will be rendered in his Church as usual, at 11 o'clock in the morning, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

AMERICAN MARINE LIST.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—On the evening of Thursday last, arr. at N. Bedford, schr. Clementine, from Dennis; about 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning, near Wood's Hole, was boarded by a boat from the privateer Retaliation, with 5 men, who ordered the captain and crew, consisting of 5 persons, to "pick up their duds and go ashore." While pretending to be complying with their orders, the crew of the Clementine watched a favorable opportunity and each seized his man, and secured them, and have delivered them to the Commandant of the Garrison at Fairhaven.

Boston, Nov. 1.—On Friday were brought to this town, from the Vineyard, the sailing master; acting as 2d lieut. and a prize master, belonging to the British privateer sch. Retaliation, capt. Potter, of Liverpool, NS.——While lying in Tarpaulin Cove, she captured Oct. 21, two open whale boats, from New York, with flour and corn, which were taken out, and the boats demand. On the 26th, in the afternoon, they were fitted out with 15 men, and went in pursuit of several other boats, all of whom except one laden with 18 or 20 bushels of apples, escaped. This boat was run on shore near the Wood's Hole, and deserted. The enemy got her off, and attempted to tow her to the privateer, but the wind blowing fresh from the S. and a hard sea, they were unable to make much progress and consequently run into a small creek and landed. In the mean time several boats had been fitted out, and sent in pursuit of the privateersmen. The three boats were re-captured, and the above two men made prisoners, the rest having previously made off by land, and it is supposed succeeding in getting on board the schr. by hailing her.

The Lieut. of the Rattlesnake states, that they sailed from Liverpool, Sept. 30th, and Shelburne, Oct. 7th. On the 13th arrived in Long Island Sound, in co. with the Saturn razee from off Sandy Hook.——Continued cruizing there until the 20th, when she was dispatched to the Vinegar with letters for Capt Hope of the Endymion, and next day anchored there. The Retaliation has taken nothing but 3 or 4 open boats, and the sloop Lord Wellington, from Rhode Island for N. York, cargo. She left the latter with the squadron in the Sound, and supposes she would be restored. The Retaliation mounts 8 guns, and when she sailed had a crew of 27 men, 3 of whom were impressed by the Wasp brig soon after sailing. She left the Vineyard, on Thursday.

By the Committe of Vigilance and Safety

NOVEMBER 4, 1814.

To the inhabitants of the City and Precincts of BALTIMORE,

FELLOW CITIZENS,

Among the most arduous, as well as the most important, of the duties which have devolved upon this committee; has been that of procuring and organizing labour for the erection of works of defence, under the direction of the military authority. The committee, in the discharge of this duty, have called freely on the public spirit of their fellow citizens, and they acknowledge with pleasure, that their calls have been liberally answered, thereby enabling those who have had the charge of our defence to throw up such works, as are believed to have answered a most valuable purpose in the recent attack upon our city.

Although much has been done in the desirable work of preparation for defence, much remains to be done; and, as the season for labor is rapidly passing away, the committee are required, by every consideration of duty and of interest to procure, with the least possible delay the greatest possible quantity of voluntary labor in aid of the very patriotic and extensive assistance which the committee gratefully acknowledge to have received, and to be daily receiving from the different military corps. To complete the duty of preparation, very extensive works have been designated by the competent authority requiring all the labor which can be furnished by the City and Precincts; when, however, it is believed, that the effect of this labour will be, as it is considered, to render our beloved homes, impregnable to any force which can be brought against them, the Committee feel confident, that to receive the have only to ask what may be required; and under this impression, they call the attention of their countrymen to the following arrangement:

That the members of the Committee, aided by George Grundy, James Carroll, Adam Welsh, Isaac Phillips, Horatio B. Berry, Wm Krebs, and Alexander Robinson of the Western Precincts; George Decker, Charles Bonn, William W. Taylor and Joseph Karrick of the 1st Ward; Richard H. Jones, Luke Tiernan and Robert Miller of the 2d Ward; Henry Schroeder, James Mosher and James Campbell of the 3d Ward; Jacob Myers, James Martin, Frederick Leypold and Wm. Campbell of the 4th Ward; James Hindman, Chas. Wirgman and John Gooding of the 5th Ward; John Hillen, John Mackenheimer, and John Diffenderffer of the 6th Ward; Philip Moore, Joseph Holbrook, Ludwick Herring and Nathaniel Hynson of the 7th Ward; Peter Galt, John Snyder and Thomas Cole of the 8th Ward—and Henry Pennington, John McElderry, Dr. C. Stevenson, William Vance and Philimon Dawson of the Eastern Precincts, will on Tuesday the 8th inst. in their respective wards and precincts, call personally on all the inhabitants thereof, and ascertain from each how many days of labor they will personally engage to perform.

That public notice will be given by the committee designating the days on which the voluntary labor of the several Wards will be required; that the superintendant of Laborers shall be furnished with the names of those who are to labor, and shall be required to make a return in writing of those who shall have failed to comply with their engagements.

That each inhabitant shall be permitted to substitute a subscription in money, in lieu of personal labor; the Committee engaging as they hereby do, that money thus received, shall be applied exclusively to the hire of laborers.

That it is the opinion of the committee if this application for labor be as productive as is expected that our citizens may expect to be protected, from the ravages of war; and that even in the event of another attack, we will again be enabled to say in the words of an eminent divine of our city that "after a night of awful darkness, interrupted by the yet more awful fires of Bombardment, while the thunders of hostile squadrons poured its long and terrific echo from hill to hill around our altars and our homes, our wives and our children, the flag of the Republic waved on our ramparts; scattering from every undulation, through an atmosphere of glory, the defiance of the fire and the gratitude of the delivered."
