FOR SALE,

A TRACT OF LAND, containing 222¼ acres, situated on the Philadelphia road, a little above Herring Run, adjoining to Gen Smith's. A new Turnpike lately located little to the left of the present one will pass through it, which will shorten the distance from town to about 3½ miles. Moores Run passes through the tract, the greatest part of which is covered with wood. There is a most beautiful eminence on it, and in the opinion of the best judges the above tract is superior in quality to any in the neighborhood, having 100 acres well covered with large trees, and might be turned into meadows. It is believed that the wood if cut might pay for the land. A long credit may be obtained, or it will be exchanged for property in the city of Baltimore. For further information apply to

FOREIGN NEWS.

Continuation of Foreign Intelligence received By the Cartel Schooner Chauncey.
From the London Times Oct. 26.

The London Times contains a copy of the Declaration of the Allied Powers, dated at Vienna the 8th Oct. which may be seen in our paper of Tour day last.—The following is the Editors comment on that important document:—

The state paper, which we allude to announces the postponement of the opening of Congress until the 1st of next month, and states the reasons for this delay. The treaty of Paris had declared in general terms, that all the powers engaged on both sides in the late war should send plenipotentiaries to Vienna, in order to regulate, in the general Congress, the arrangements necessary for completing the enactments of that treaty—but it is evident, that before such assemblage could take place, many preliminaries were to be settled One was to determine who were to be considered as entitled, under the general description of "Powers," to send representatives to the Congress. We have heard of the booksellers of Germany authorising a deputation to appear on their behalf; and, what is perhaps more ridiculous, of the extinct order of St. John of Jerusalem (which many years ago expired felo de se at Malta) wishing to resume the functions of vitality. It was necessary that some authority should determine questions of this nature, and no authority could be so proper as that of the Courts who signed the treaty of Paris itself. They therefore have assembled, and have agreed that they could not better fulfil the duties imposed on them than by establishing in the first instance free and confidential communications between all the plenipotentiaries. By these means, they will not only settle who are fit to appear at the General Congress, but what matters are proper to be there discussed. The French Chancery, we have learnt, is extremely active on this occasion. It will, no doubt, improve every minute of the time thus gained to set forth its pretensions in the fairest light. We hope our own statesmen will not be less alive to the necessity of diplomatic exertion. We have not only great interests of our own at stake, but we must act the part of zealous patrons and advocates for those powers who look up to us in those characters. Portugal, as has been more than once hinted in these pages, is one of the nations which have, with the fewest exceptions, adhered faithfully to our course of policy. At the peace of Amiens it cannot be denied, that we were rather inattentive to her interests, in regard to the definitive settlement of the boundaries of Guiana. Let those limits be fairly and distinctly settled according to the true spirit of the treaty of Utrecht. Already has the French government directed its attention to Guiana. An expedition is fitting at the present moment, to carry out thither General Carra St. Cyr as Governor and Victor Hugues as Civil Commissioner. The choice of these persons very clearly proves, that no political prejudice will stand in the way of plans calculated for the amelioration of the French colonies. Col. Malantant, speaking of occular inspection, asserts, that Guiana is superior to St. Domingo —that it needs nothing but hands to work the soil, which is here on the [illegible] of St. Domingo [illegible] ble their capital there in six years.

When the insanity which the colonists of St. Domingo have propagated in France has subsided, it is probable, that the suggestion of Malantant's will be attended to; and in proportion as the value of the colony is felt, the desire to extend its limits will naturally arise in the minds of Frenchmen, who seem in general to think but little of the text, "cursed is he that removeth his neighbor's land mark." It will be for the benefit and tranquility of all parties, to obviate all such causes of future dispute, by a distinct and unequivocal arrangement. At the same time, we are far from saying, that our influence should be exerted for those who will not show themselves worthy of it.

The Prince Regent of Portugal has had the good sense not to imitate the Kings of Spain and Sardinia, in restoring that disgrace to this age, the bloody tribunal of the Inquisition a name odious to English ears from the days of Queen Elizabeth. We may justly stipulate, that he shall adhere to the wise and enlightened policy which he has already pursued in this respect:—and we may on like principles, urged a more distinct renunciation of the Slave Trade, than is contained in Lord Strangford's noted treaty. Thus shall we build up to ourselves a claim to the admiration of future ages, if we only make use of our political influence for purposes of general civilization and benevolence. We have formerly noticed the speech of M. Laine on the subject of St. Domingo. That eloquent orator, more in compliance with popular prejudices, we are persuaded, than from the dictates of his own judgment, talks of our wishing to dictate to France in morals, to employ a compulsion towards her in respect to the Slave Trade, contrary to the national dignity and faith of treaties. For our part, we are too sensible of the value of the true sentiment of national dignity to wish it to be violated; and the faith of treaties is certainly far too sacred to be infringed. We have gratuitously restored to France the colonies which we possessed. We might have dictated the price or have withheld the concession; but we did neither; and now we stand before her only as appellants to her sense of humanity and of moral duty No man in England has dreamt of infringing the Treaty of Paris——but we have thought that in reference to the colonies which we gave to France, we had a right to express wishes dictated by pure benevolence. We have thought that in the cause of human nature we had a right to plead with zeal and earnestness, that France should not disgrace herself by a return to tyranny and barbarism. It is true, as the journalist who records M. Laine's opinions observes, that our own colonies would many them be ready to support the arguments urged by those of St. Domingo. Interest strongly warps opinion in all countries, and the persons alluded to maintained their cause in England for many years with great obstinacy; but it is the blessing of an independent representative Government like our's, that all great political questions may be fully and fairly discussed; and where full and fair discussion exists, there truth must at last prevail. So may it be in France. Meanwhile we trust much to the negociations which will doubtless be carried on at the Congress. Our minister will not do his duty to his country, unless he maintains the points which are so near the hearts of his countrymen with firmness and perseverance but a spirit of hostility, a spirit of arrogant superiority towards France, as it is no part of the duty imposed on him by his station, so we are convinced it will be found in no part of his proceedings.

BRIGADE ORDERS.

Head Quarters, 3d Brigade.

Ordered, that Colonel Harris institute a Regimental Court of Enquiry, to take into consideration and Report to him their Opinion of the conduct of Lieut. John S Stiles, of the Union Artillery, relative to his behavior in the battle of the 12th inst. at North Point.

(Signed) JOHN STRICKER,
Brig Gen. 3d Brig. M. M.

REGIMENTAL ORDER.

A Court of Enquiry to consist of three members, will convene at Baltimore on Friday, the 30th inst. to investigate the conduct of Lt. John S. Stiles in the late engagement with the enemy near this city. The court is authorised and required to express an opinion of the conduct of Lieut. Stiles. Major Matthew M'Laughlin is hereby appointed President of the Court of Enquiry, and Upton S Heath, Recorder.

Major Matthew M'Laughlin, President,
Capt. Abraham Pyke, } Members.
Lieut. Lyman Adams, }

The Court will meet at 10 o'clock, A. M. at the office of Upton S. Heath, New Church st.

By order of Lieut. Col. D Harris,
U. S HEATH, Adjt.
1st Regt. Ar 3d Brig. M. M.

OPINION.

The Court of Enquiry convened at the instance of Lieut. JOHN S. STILES, to investigate his conduct in the late engagement with the enemy, having examined a number of witnesses, and duly considered their testimony, is of opinion that the conduct of Lieut. Stiles throughout the action, and more especially when commanding a detachment of Artillery on the left of the 39th regt. was brave, correct and officer-like.

The Court finds that he ordered this detachment under his command, which he had stationed between the 39th and 51st Regiments of Infantry to retreat; but this order, under existing circumstances was in the opinion of the court correct, inasmuch as the whole of the the 51st regiment and that part of the 39th regiment immediately on the right of the detachment had previously to the order from Lieut. Stiles being given, retreated and left it entirely unprotected and unsupported. This order was given too at a time when the enemy were rapidly approaching, and would probably in a few minutes have succeeded in taking the detachment. In the opinion of the Court there was no other mode by which the detachment and its pieces could possibly have been saved—Although the court does not discover any thing in the conduct of Lieut. Stiles that evinced the slightest alarm or discomposure, it must however express its regret that he should have permitted an assumption of authority by Maj. Wm. B. Barney, which ought to have been instantly resisted, as the major had only been accepted by capt Montgomery as a volunteer, a private individual and had no right to [illegible] can discover, to give orders to any artillerist, more especially to a commissioned officer of the artillery.

In justice however to Lieut. Stiles, the court must observe that his conduct in this respect may perhaps be attributed to an erroneous impression which Lieut Stiles appears to have entertained, that Major Barney was acting on the occasion, as the aid of Gen. Stricker.

Upon the whole the Court is of opinion that in the conduct of Lieut. Stiles, there was nothing that evinced any deficiency in either courage, judgment, coolness or deliberation. Given under my hand this 7th day of October, 1814.

PATRIOTISM.

The following note has been received by the Committee of Vigilance and Safety:

Gentlemen—Gens. WATSON FOSTER and ADAMS proffer to the Committee of Vigilance and Safety, the gratuitous labor of parts of six regiments of the Pennsylvania Militia, of 350 to 400 men each, to labor on the works of Fortification. Officers will be detailed with the men, whose labor shall be performed as directed by the Superintendant set over the work—The Committee are requested to appoint the days (Sundays excepted) and places where the labor is required, and it shall be attended to, on information being lodged at Gen. Watson's head-quarters. Respectfully,

NATH'L. WATSON,
Maj. Gen. Pennsylvania Militia.

Nov 22, 1814.

To the Committee of Vigilance and Safety, Baltimore.

To which the following reply was sent:

Baltimore 23d Nov. 1814.

SIR—The Committee of Vigilance and Safety have directed me to express to you and the officers and soldiers under your command, the very grateful feelings excited in them, by your generous proffer of the gratuitous labor of six regiments to work on the Fortifications intended for the defence of this city. They request you to accept their thanks, and convey the same to your division, for this important and highly useful service; and they wish you to commence with the first detachment on Thursday next, and continue the same as mentioned in your communication, wet weather and Sundays excepted.

RICHARD FRISBY, Esq. a member of this Committee, who will hand you this, will make the necessary arrangements.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant, E JOHNSON,
Chairman of Committee of Vigilance & Safety.

To Maj Gen. Nath'l. Watson, Pennsylvania Militia.
