British force in and about the Bay. I commenced my observation on Back River and continued along the Beach to Old Point, and all the force reported in my last letter have gone out, except two 74's and one brig. The ships are laying off the Capes at anchor; the brig considerably nearer shore sailing about."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.

Copy of a letter from Major General Andrew Jackson, to the Governor of Tennessee.

HEAD-QUARTERS, 7th Military District, Tensaw, Nov. 14.

SIR—On last evening I returned from Pensacola to this place. I reached that poston the evening of the 6th. On my approach sent Major Pierre with a flag to communicate the object of my visit to the governor of Pensacola. He approached Fort St. George, with his flag displayed, and was fired on by the cannon from the fort—he returned and made report thereof to me. I immediately went with the adjutant general and the major with a small escort, and viewed the fort and found it defended by both British and Spanish troops. I immediately determined to storm the town, retired and encamped my troops for the night, and made the necessary arrangements to carry my determination into effect the next day.

On the morning of tha 7th I marched wish the effective regulars of the 3d, 39th and 44th infantry, part of Gen. Coffee's brigade, the Mississippi dragoons, and part of the West Tennessee regiment, commanded by Lt. Col. Hammonds (Colonel Lowry having deserted and gone home) and part of the Choctaws led by Major Blue, of the 39th, and Major Kennedy of Mississippi territory. Being encamped on the west of the town I calculated they would expect the assault from that quarter, and be prepared to rake me from the fort, and the British armed vessels, seven in number, that lay in the bay. To cherish this idea I sent part of the mounted men to show themselves on the west, whilst I passed in the rear of the Fort undiscovered to the east of the town. When I appeared within a mile, I was in full view. My pride was never more heightened than viewing the uniform firmness of my troops, and with what undaunted courage they advanced, with a strong fort ready to assail them on the right, 7 British armed vessels on the left, strong blockhouse, and batteries of cannon in their front, but they still advanced with unshaken firmness, entered the town, when a battery of two cannon was opened upon the centre column composed of the regulars, with ball and grape and a shower of musketry from the houses and gardens. The battery was immediately stormed by captain Levall and company, and carried, and the musketry was soon silenced by the steady and well directed fire of the regulars.

The governor met Cols. Williamson and Smith, who led the dismounted volunteers, with a flag, begged for mercy, and surrendered the town and fort unconditionally; mercy was granted, and protection given to the citizens and their property—and still Spanish treachery kept us out of possession of the fort until nearly 12 o'clock at night.

Never was more cool, determined bravery displayed by any troops; and the Chactaws advanced to the charge with equal bravery.—On the morning of the 8th, I prepared to march and storm the Barancas, but before I could move tremendous explosion told me that the Barancas, with all its appendages, was blown up.——I dispatched a detachment of two hundred men to explore it, who returned in the night with the information that it was blown up, all the combustible parts burnt, the cannon spiked and dismounted, except two: this being the case I determined to withdraw my troops, but before I did, I had the pleasure to see the British depart. Col. Nicolls abandoned the fort on the night of the 6th, and betook himself to his shipping, with his friend Captain Woodbine, and their red friends.

The steady firmness of my troops has drawn a just respect from our enemies. It has convinced the Red Sticks that they have no strong hold or protection, only in the friendship of the U. States—the good order and conduct of my troops whilst in Pensacola, has convinced the Spaniards of our friendship, and our prowess, and has drawn from the citizens an expression that our Chactaws are more civilized than the British.

In great haste, I am respectfully, sir,

ANDREW JACKSON,
Major Gen. Commanding.

GEORGETOWN, Col. Dec. 23.

IMPORTANT.

Extract of a letter from Annapolis, dated Wednesday, Dec. 21.

It is almost reduced to a certainty, that an attack on Annapolis is meditated by the enemy. They have been sounding the channel, almost within range of the cannon of the little fort, at the edge of the town; and Cockburn is known to be lying in Herring bay, with his Rappahannock fleet, being only a few hours sail of the town.

SAVANNAH, Dec. 16.

FROM THE SOUTH.

Extract of a letter to gen. John Floyd, dated St. Mary's, Dec, 10.

SIR—I hasten to communicate to you the information that I have recieved yesterday at Darien. The English frigate Macedonian is at anchor outside of Doboy; 8 of her barges are stationed in the sound, and the gig of the captain with a whale boat, are stationed at the entrance of the inlets, so that the communication is entirely interrupted. As many boats are expected in Darien from the vicinity of Milledgeville, fears are entertained for their safety.

Extract of a letter to the same, dated Tukersville, Dec. 12.

"Before this you have heard of the murder of Isaac Johns by the savages on the frontier of this country. The mail being about to close I have just time to inform you, that last evening I received information on which a reliance may be placed, that on Thursday last, Jonas Bivan, Thomas Winder and Ruben Cottle, were killed and scalped, while after their cattle, above Traders Hill:—their horses were killed also."

Nashville, Dec. 7.

FROM THE SOUTH.

We learn by gentlemen late of General Jackson's army, who have just returned home, that none of the Tennessee troops were killed in the taking of Pensacola.—Two officers of the regular army were wounded, and 7 or 8 soldiers killed. Capt. Deaderick's company of artillery have been discharged; and it was the determination of the General, we learn, to discharge gen. Coffee's brigade of mounted volunteers—it being impracticable to support the horses in that quarter. Gen. Jackson intended to remove his head quarters to New-Orleans immediately. Nothing from that place by last Friday's mail.

BALTIMORE: Monday, Dec. 26.

The Conventionists have met in Connecticut—They first said their prayers in public; they then shut the door, and, like old Noll, "began to look for the cork-screw."

Faction is the lever of this political machine, but what is to be its fulcrum, is not yet ascertained, whether the will of the people of America, or the golden promises of the English Minister—We suspect, that the latter is the original and moving principle of the machinists, and we trust, that the honest men of the New-England states will disappoint their schemes, and frustrate the manœuvres of his Lordship's agents and emissaries.

On looking over the list of these Conventionists, we remark, that they are "all honorable men"——It is the Hon. Mr. A. the Hon. Mr. B. and the Hon. Mr. C. down to the end of the Alphabet!——On reading the New England papers, one would think, that every man in the would be dominion, is either an Honorable or an Esquire—the good people of that portion of the Union seem to have a prodigious propensity for Titles; and, in this point, will meet his Lordship's advances, more than half-way, towards the formation of a New England Peerage, and figure in a Yankee Red-Book as Lords and Right Honorables.

We have also observed, with some surprize, that we never see the word GENTLEMAN mentioned in any of their papers or proceedings—Now, we declare a strong partiality to this title, as, in our opinion, it comprehends every thing that is amiable, respectable, and honorable—every thing that ought to form the character, either as a Man or as a Christian.

Let us try to tell a short story as "a case in point"—All our readers either are, or ought to be, well acquainted with the History of England—a book full of the most useful information—a book which we seriously recommend to the attentive perusal of every one who wishes to be a Gentleman in fact—In this book it will be seen, that the reign of Profligacy supplanted the reign of Hypocrisy (a case which sometimes happens in common life)—After Cromwell had humbug'd the John Bulls of his day with the shew of religion, King Charles, "the legitimate Sovereign," hoax'd them in another way, by introducing amongst them every species of vice and licentiousness—One day, at Court, a man who had contrived to raise himself from the lowest dregs of society by accommodation to the corrupt practices of the times, solicited his Majesty to make him a Gentleman—"I can make you a Lord (said the profligate Monarch), but I'll be d——d if I can make you a Gentleman."

Lieut. Colonel TOWSON, of the U. S. artillery, from the Niagara, arrived in town yesterday, and took up his quarters for a few days at Tammany Hall. The great superiority of our artillery over that of the enemy, to which captain Towson has so eminently contributed, is known to the world. The British officers insisted that our engineers must have come from the veteran school of France; and their soldiery called Towson's battery the "light house," from its being distinguished by an incessant as well as deadly fire. No officer has more richly merited the promotion he has received. He is on a furlough to his residence in Maryland—attended by the best wishes of his country.—Col.

Historical Sketch of Major General George Izard.

The following letter, (says the Kentucky Gazette) which embraces the outlines of Gen. IZARD'S history, is from a gentleman who had the best opportunities of correct information on the subject of which he writes.

——— July 22, 1814.

DEAR SIR,

You requested me to give you a sketch of Gen. Izard's history—I therefore beg leave to communicate such particulars as present themselves to my recollection, and which are as follows:—

General George Izard was born at Charleston, in the month of September, 1777, and is the second son of Ralph Izard, Esq. who was a gentlemen of large fortune and high respectability in South Carolina. Mr. Izard having been charged by Congress during the revolution, with a secret mission to one of the courts of Europe, carried his family to Paris, where they resided until the peace of '83. Here George commenced his studies under the care of a private tutor in the family, and shewed great aptitude in the acquirement of clasical learning. He was particularly distinguished for a turn for the Mathematics, in which he made great proficiency at an early age. His father having returned with his family to America, at the conclusion of the war, was, on the adoption of the federal constitution in 1789, elected to represent South Carolina in the Senate of the U. S. He therefore removed to New-York, and entered George at Columbia Colledge, where he was placed, on examination, at the head of his class, although the youngest boy in it. As he was always intended for a military life, his father obtained from the president in 1792, a subaltern's commission for him in the regiment of artillerists and engineers, (as it was then called) with permission to send him to Europe for the purpose of qualifying him for his profession. He was accordingly sent to England, under the care of Gen. Thomas Pinkney, who was appointed minister plenipotentiary to the court of St. James. By Gen. Pinkney he was placed at a military school near London, until arrangements could be made for sending him to Germany, where the best military institutions were then supposed to be. He was after some time transferred to one of these institutions of great celebrity on the continent, where he passed two years. Great attention was there paid to the exercise of the body, in which the young American was soon found to excel; nature having endowed him with an uncommon portion of strength and activity. On Mr. Monroe's appointment as minister to France, his influence was used to obtain permission for young Izard to enter the corps of French engineers, and as the American government was then high in favor, the request was granted. This is said to be the only instance of a foreigner having been admitted into that corps. In this situation he had the best means afforded him of acquiring a knowledge of the most useful branches of military knowledge. Having completed his studies, and received from the officer at the head of the institution, ample testimonials of approbation, he returned to America in the year 1797, and joined the regiment. On the commencement of hostilities between France and the U. States, in 1798, Captain Izard was appointed engineer for the harbor of Charleston, and erected with great dispatch some works for its defence. In 1799 he was appointed aid-de-camp to the inspecter general (the late Alexander Hamilton) in which station he remained until the dispute between France and America were compromised by treaty. No active service offering at that time, Capt. Izard was indulged with a furlough to accompany our minister to the court of Lisbon, in the capacity of private secretary, but in reality to afford him an opportunity of travelling on the continent of Europe, various countries of which he visited. On his return to America in 1802, finding the army of the U. States placed upon a very reduced establishment, Capt. Izard resigned his commission, married a lady from the state of Virginia, and fixed himself in the vicinity of Philadelphia, where he continued to reside until his nomination to the command of a regiment of artillery. With his subsequent rise you are acquainted.—I have nothing to add but my warmest wishes for the General's success in discharging the duties of the important cammand to which he has been appointed.

AMERICAN MARINE LIST.

Boston, December 19.—Arrived, sloop Betsey, from Yarmouth—left there on Sunday noon—Boat Friendship, 7 days from Wiscasset. Came out of Poatsmouth on Thursday, and Cape Ann this morning. Saw no cruisers.

A gentleman who left Nantucket on Friday last, states, that the sloop Union, Barnard, from Philadelphia, was taken by the British privateers Rolla and Liv Packet, and ordered for Halifax. Off Gay Head, was fallen in with by a frigate and brig, bound into Tarpaulin Cove, who took out the prize crew, and restored the vessel to the capt. She arrived at Nantucket on Tuesday last. The frigate took some of the men out of the privateers, and ordered them off the coast, threatening to burn them, if they were caught to the W of Cape Cod again. They anchored off Nantucket, and the next day got under way, supposed for Nova Scotia.

A gentleman who arr. in town last evening, from N. Bedford, informed that an English coppered brig, of about 200 tons, (a clump vessel, mounting a few guns,) arrived there on Sunday afternoon, prize to the privateer brig Yankee, which sailed from Bristol Oct. 8.

She was from London bound to S. America, and was taken 37 days previous, off Madeira—cargo, dry goods, duck, cordage, iron & copper. Some of the property was taken out by the privateer. The prize has seen no cruizers since her capture.

The Yankee had made several other prizes. Further particulars unknown.

The sloop Polly, Barnard, from Philadelphia, had also arrived at N.

Re-captures. The British brig Charles, fr. N Brunswick for the WI captured Nov. 5, lat 41, long 64, by the David Porter, privateer—schr Julian, from St. Vincents for Hallfax, captured Nov 10, lat 45 lon 60, by do. brig Theodore, of 8 guns, from Maranham (Brazils) for Liverpool, captured Sept 5, by the Chasseur of Balt. Brig Jane, from Cork for Nova Scotia, prize to the late privateer Gen. Putnam; schr Supply, from N Providence prize to the Saucy Jack; sloop Fair play, from St. Vincents for New Brunswick, prize to the Lawrence of Balt. brig Baltic, from Gallipoli, captured September 28, lat 42 27, long 11 20, by the Grand Turk; brig Elizabeth, from Turk's Island for N Brunswick, captured by the Macedonian privateer; an American schooner, recaptured by the privateer Portsmouth of Portsmouth; and brig Eliza Ann, prize to the privateer Expedition; have all been retaken by Br cruisers, and sent into Halifax, &c.

Schr Fly, Hall, of Barnstable, has arrived at Hyannis, from N. Carolina, 7 days passage. Sloop Neptune, Delano, of NBedford, went ashore near Chatham a short time since—vessel and cargo principally lost.

Brig George, Almy, from NBedford, has arrived at Beaufort, N C. Sloop Boston, Tarr, from do at Georgetown.

Sloop Ann, Lambert, 8 days from Norfolk at NYork the 15th inst.

Schr William, Hubbell, has arrived at Havanna, 13 days from Charleston.

The schr Boxer is up at New York for France, to sail immediately.

Arrived at New York, 12th instant, pilot boat schr Resolution, Huddington, 12 days from Charleston. Off the Capes of Delaware, 10th, was chased for 12 hours by a 74, who fired 120 shot at her, which fell all around the schr but none of which did her any injury. Captain B. in order to save his vessel, was compelled to throw over his deck load of cotton. Saw no cruisers off Sandy Hook.

Gentlemen who were taken by the Lacedemonian frigate, on the 27th ult. on the southern coast, heard no mention made of the Wasp, or of any engagement having taken place off Charleston, on the 21st as reported. The rumor of the Wasp's capture, therefore, by the above ship, or even any cruizer on the Southern Coast, we think is entitled to no credit.

The ship which is said to have boarded the Neutral, arrived at Amelia, and afterwards to have been chased off from Savanna, was probably the Young Wasp, a large privateer, belonging to Philadelphia, and not the U. S. sloop Wasp.

New-Bedford, Dec. 20.—Ar. British brig Courtney, of 200 tons, a new vessel, prize to the Yankee, with 30 tons cordage, 200 packages dry goods, 40 boxes sheathing copper, and a quantity of bar iron. She was from London, and left Plymouth Oct. 30, for Pernambuco, and was captured off Madeira 37 days ago.

She sailed with about 50 other vessels under convoy of the Duncan 74, Ad. Beresford, which is fitted to bring back from the Brazils the Prince of Portugal; and parted from her convoy 2 days before her capture.

Newport, Dec. 17.—For a week past several enemy's vessels have been cruizing off the entrance of our harbor. On Thursday afternoon, a ship and brig (supposed to be the Morgiana sloop and Despatch brig) stood in towards the entrance of our harbor, and came to within half a mile of the light house.

The British squadron remained at anchor off N London harbor, on Thursday last.

Not a Fair Exchange.

A black man very politely opened the front and back doors sometime since and shewed the family physician into the back room; whom the doctor took to be one of the house servants, and on his return he took a new blue UMBRELLA, made of French silk, and left an old one in the passage not worth a cent. A reward of $20 will be given for the umbrella and thief.

Also stolen a few days afterwards out of the passage a new pair Mouse coloured PANTALOONS belonging to me, and a few days after that was taken from up stairs, a new superfine Black COAT made from the best French cloth and only a few times worn. A reward of 20 dollars will be given for the coat and thief, or 10 dollars for the coat. 20 dollars will be given for the pantaloons and thief, or 5 dollars for the pantaloons.

Also was stolen by a young good looking fellow (who hired the horse as he said to go to Lancaster, he got no great bargain in him, as he was not worth 30 dollars, though I will give 50 dollars for the horse and thief) a bay HORSE, branded on the rump U. S. D. and would at all times when getting on him kick up and rear.

Also strayed or stolen from my place, 3 1-2 miles on the Frederick road, about three weeks back, a bay HORSE, about 16 hands high, racks, trots, and canters well, and carries himself gayly; one hind foot white, mane short and thin, fore top cut close, has had a sore back, but was nearly well went he went away. A reward of 50 dollars will be given for the horse and thief if stolen, or 20 dollars if taken up and brought to me in Baltimore.
