NEGRO ACCIDENTLY SHOT.

Hugh Williams, of White Hall, accidently shot a colored man named Fells, of York, Pa., who also was hunting the critters.

Neither knew of the other's presence and Fells, lying on the ground waiting for the animal to appear, suddenly raised his head, and Williams, mistaking his head for a ground hog shot, the ball passing through Fells' arm. He was given first aid by Dr. Ayres and later taken to a York hospital.

CRITIC OF ROOSEVELT STARTS FOR HOME.

Douglas Coulter, who found lions along the headwaters of the Nile "as shy and harmless as cows" is in route to his home.

Mr. Coulter, who is a son of Wm. M. Coulter, Towson, and a graduate of Johns Hopkins University, is an associate professor of English at the American University, Cairo, Egypt.

In an interview given in Paris recently, Mr. Coulter was quoted as saying that "Roosevelt as an explorer and big game shooter did an awful lot of faking. His opinion was based on the experiences of a trip in the wilds along the Upper Nile, where he found the king of beasts quite docile, except "when goaded to fight."

Mr. Coulter, who was graduated from Hopkins in 1921, left Baltimore the following summer to study Sanskrit abroad. Most of his study was done at the American University, where he was made an associate professor about a year ago. His parents expect him home early in September, but have not been advised whether he plans to return to Egypt.

Between his graduation at Hopkins and his departure for Egypt Mr. Coulter was a graduate student in geology and paleontology at Hopkins, as well as an instructor in Greek and Latin at Baltimore City College.

While a student at Hopkins he was active in the Paint and Powder Club, the Little Lyric and the Hopkins Playshop. For several years he was director of the Hopkins Mucical Club.
