JENIFER NOLLE PROSSED TO INDICTMENT RETURNED AGAINST KLECKA, NORRIS AND SCHROEDER.

State's Attorney Says He Is Convinced That The Three Occupied No Office In Club At Time Grand Jury Found True Bill.

of the Bellevue Club, and that Mr. Jefferson D. Norris has not been seen on the premises within the past year.

Mr. Norris, who was present, was accordingly ordered discharged by the State's Attorney.

Judge Klecka, having been indicted individually for maintaining a disorderly house and for gambling, was required to give $500 bail on first named charge, and $1,000 on second named charge for his appearance in the Circuit Court when the cases are set for trial. He tried to persuade the State's Attorney to give him an early trial, ahead of others indicted, but the former said he saw no legal reason why his case should be called out of its regular order.

The Criminal Docket will be taken up on October 13.

In regard to his action in the matter State's Attorney Jeniffefr said that the joint indictment against Klecka, Norris and Schroeder was returned on the presumption that they were officers of the Club, which had been fully disproved. In regard to the two indictments against Klecka individually however, the violations of law charged were simply stated to have taken place somewhere in Baltimore county, and of course not necessarily at the Bellevue Club. He said that he did not feel that he should try the case, but if at the hearing in open court the testimony for the State did not justify conviction he would enter nolle pros at once. Mr. Jenifer stated that he expressed to Governor Ritchie his willingness to let him privately hear the testimony for the State. The Governor has the power to grant a nolle prosequi in the two cases. Mr. Jenifer stated that he would present Judge Klecka's request for an immediate trial to the court for its action.

Mr. Norris stated that he had been engaged as an attorney to examine the title to the property of the club, and as a matter of courtesy to Judge Klecka he had subscribed to one share of its stock. Mr. Norris said that he had visited the club several times as the guest of Judge Klecka, and on one occasion prominent State officials had been his fellow guests.

THE JEFFERSONIAN LETTER BOX

Editor of The Jeffersonian,
Towson, Md.—

A short time ago it was broadcasted over Baltimore county (where I was born and have many friends) and in Baltimore City (where I now reside) that I had been indicted by the grand jury of the county for an abominable crime.

I respectfully ask space in your paper to answer that charge.

It seems that a county policeman testified before the grand jury that gambling devices were maintained upon a Middle River shore owned by a club and it was learned that when this club was incorporated some years ago my name appeared upon the records as one of the incorporators.

Upon this flimsy evidence the grand jury brought in an indictment against me for "maintaining a disorderly house."

I was amazed when I learned of this action. It is as much the duty of a grand jury to protect the innocent as to bring the guilty to justice. This grand jury either had a misconception of fits duty or it was badly advised.

Almost any first year law student would have known that the evidence against me was insufficient to support the charge made. It is well known to every lawyer that the original incorporators and subsequent officers of a corporation are rarely the same officials. I have never known who composed the club in question or who were the officers thereof.

The grand jury depends to a great extent for guidance upon the State's Attorney. The present State's Attorney of Baltimore county I regarded as a friend of mine, as his was. However, his treatment of me was worse than might have been expected by his worst enemy.

In this case there was sent out to the world a very serious charge. Such a matter constitutes a sensational item that is given prominence in the newspapers and is heralded far and wide and seen and heard of by hundreds who never hear the answer.

Thus a great injury is done and where the charge is without foundation a serious wrong is done that never can be righted and for which there is absolutely no legal redress on account of the immunity enjoyed by these officials.

I respectfully submit that such conduct on the part of public officials who hold in their hands the reputations of their fellow citizens, is a reckless and irresponsible use of power, inconsistent with fair play and deserving or severe condemnation.

The fact that the charge against me was dismissed the day after it was brought was tardy justice and wholly ineffectual to undo the harm that had been done.

Respectfully

COUNTY FOLKS WILL GET A GLIMPSE OF THE SHENANDOAH.

The American Radio League, which is making plans to keep navy officials and the public in contact with the dirigible Shenandoah on its flight across the continent and return, has been advised that the airship would leave Lakehurst today (Saturday) for Seattle by way of Fort Worth and San Diego.

It will pass over Baltimore county sometime today or tonight.

FRANK CORBI IS FINED ON CHARGES OF POLICEMAN.

Frank Corbi, twenty-two, brother of Patsi Corbi, who was sentenced to death in West Virginia for murder two years ago following an investigation involving the mysterious murder of Carmella Malone near the Rolling Road Golf Club, Catonsville, was fined $6.45 by Magistrate Tormollan at Southwestern Police Station, Baltimore city, for interfering with Policeman Clarence Brown.

their entries for the contest this year. America's entries, however, will race against time over the official course in an attempt to shatter the speed record they established in 1923.

Nearly 100 airplanes, flying in various formations, will circle about the course off Bay Shore, adding color to the races, while the giant dirigible ZR-3, which will soon sail for the United States from Germany, will be sent here for the occasion.

Mayor Jackson of Baltimore received a letter from Rear Admiral George W. Williams, commander of the destroyer squadron of the United States scouting fleet, saying he will bring his flagship, the United States ship Concord, and two destroyers, the United States ship Gilmar and the United States ship King, to Baltimore for the air race and the Navy Day exercises. The ships will arrive October 23 and will remain until October 28. Admiral Williams added:
