MISS M. S. RIDGELY TO DEPART FROM AFRICA TO VISIT HOME OF PARENTS NEAR TOWSON

Has Been Engaged In Liberian Work For Two Decades—Returns Every Three Years To United States.

From the "House of Bethany," Cape Mount, Africa, to "Hampton Hall," the old Ridgely estate, near Towson, is the journey that will be made by Miss Margaretta S. Ridgely after Christmas. Every three years Miss Ridgely returns from Liberia, where she has been a missionary for 20 years, to visit her home.

A representative of one of the oldest families in Maryland, she re- ... to leave her group of students ... the mis- ... before ... Christmas ... with the girls from the African tribes to whom she has devoted so large a part of her life as a missionary of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Unless the sea around the cape, which has no harbor, is too rough for a boat to reach the ship, Miss Ridgely will sail for England on the first vessel leaving after Christmas. From Britain she will embark for America. She is expected to reach Baltimore some time in February. Miss Ridgely on her visit to America never remains more than nine months in this country.

A part of the time she will spend at Hampton Hall, built in 1781, temporarily exchanging the little mission schoolhouse, which was built shortly after she went to Liberia for her spacious old home, with its soft candle light, crystal chandeliers and old portraits.

Then she will go back to the school in Liberia, which houses 53 girls from remote African tribes, in addition to 77 day students.

From childhood Miss Ridgely showed a liking for missionary work. During her first season in society she was stricken with typhoid fever, a circumstance which she considered providential, since it released her from a whirl of social engagement for which she had no desire.

After the death of her mother, Mrs. Charles Ridgely, the young woman volunteered for missionary work in Liberia. She was told she must wait until a physical examination could be made to ascertain whether she were able to endure the African climate. But Miss Ridgely, determined to go to the foreign field, did not wait. Instead she packed and sailed, and upon her arrival wrote the church authorities that she was in Liberia. She remained.

MAN FOUND BENEATH HIS OVERTURNED CAR.

Found lying beneath his overturned automobile on the Washington Boulevard, Mendes Hecht, 43 years old, 2203 Linden avenue, Baltimore city, is at the West Baltimore Hospital suffering from bruises and lacerations.

Hecht was rescued by Dr. N. B. Stewart, of Laurel, Md., and taken to the hospital. He said he was on his way from Baltimore to Washington when he was forced off the road by another machine and ditched. His condition is not serious.
