CALLS HIKE EASY

Chap, 74, Says His 100,000 Mile Walk Is A Cinch.

United States, Canada, Europe and Africa, and when I leave here for Philadelphia it will be on my return trip to San Diego, Cal. But I wanted to spend Christmas in Baltimore; she's a fine town."

Stewart, gray-eyed and jolly, describes himself as "official marcher for the San Diego, Cal., exposition" and declares he will receive a purse of $100,000 subscribed by the exposition committee and citizens, when he returns to the California city.

The hiker wears a uniform of his own contriving, covered with a Mackinaw coat and atop his white hair is an Alpine cap with the usual pheasants feather cocked jauntily to the side.

HOLIDAY ARDOR RIFE IN COUNTY—WREATHS LEND COLOR TO YULETIDE.

Everybody seemed to have some money to spend and good natured tolerance was everywhere in evidence.

Everyone seemed to have the spirit of Old Schooge after his dream of the Christmas past and the Christmas present.

Spiritually, the day began at midnight, when midnight mass was held in all Catholic Churches of the county. Soft lights streamed out into the mist through stained glass windows—deep tones of the organs and joyous voices of choirs proclaimed a Saviour born on earth. The perfume of incense and the sweet strains of "Adeste Fidelis" recalled Christmas of other years.

In the Protestant churches early Christmas morning services opened the day. Peace and good will was the topic of sermons to overflowing congregations.

Charitable agencies were active, supplying clothes and food to hundreds of needy. Hospitals, asylums, the Poor House and county jail were not forgotten, for gifts and good things to eat were generously provided for the unfortunate.
