HOW WASPS BUILD THEIR NESTS.

From Harper's Round Table.

In a tree in the garden round the house where I was stopping was a wasp's nest in process of construction. The busy insects were going backwards and forwards carrying their material to the paperlike fabric; but though I watched several days, I could not discover when it was collected. It happened that the pillars of the veranda of the mud-built house in which I was stopping were roughly hewn trunks of the Lombardy poplar that grows in that region to a good size and considerable height without branches, and makes a clean straight stem. One afternoon, while loitering about the veranda, I noticed that numbers of wasps were alighting on the side of these pillars that was worn by the weather, and then, after a short stay, moved off again, apparently carrying away a small load with them.

Stationing myself close to one of the pillars, I soon had the satisfaction of seeing a wasp alight on it. After running about over the surface to find what he was in search of, he suddenly stopped, and carefully feeling the spot he was on, he cut the worn surface with his nippers, and then proceeded in a workmanlike manner to cut from the surface of the wood a strip the width to which he could extend his nippers laterally, and as he moved backwards he rolled the strip up under his chin with the aid of his forefeet until he had as much as he could conveniently hold, when he gave a finishing cut-off and flew away. Watching the work of construction afterwards, it was marvellous to see how the end of the little roll was attached to the strip of work that was being added to, by means of some waxy gum exuded by the builder, and joined on laterally as it was unrolled until finished, and then the workman would fly away for a fresh piece. Each insect cut off a strip averaging about three-eighths of an inch in length and a little under an eighth in width, and nothing could be more admirable than the artistic and businesslike way in which they carried on their work.

THOUGHTS FOR QUIET MOMENTS.

There is no service like his who serves because he loves.

If you are a coward, you will be attacked by the cowards; they are many. If you are brave, only the brave will attack you; they are few.

The very heart and root of sin is an independent spirit. We erect the idol Self; and not only wish others to worship, but worship it ourselves.

Write it on your heart that every day is the best day in the year. No man has learned anything rightly until he knows that every day is Doomsday.

Plato says, the passionate are like men standing on their heads; they see all things the wrong way.

An apostate soul may die, an apostate church may die, but somewhere on the earth the glory of the Lord will abide.

The greatest of faults is to be conscious of none.

Giving away what they cannot use is some people's nearest approach to charity.

Be not too proud to own a fault, nor, please God, too old to mend it.

To know man, borrow the ear of the blind and the eye of the deaf.

TOMATO KETCHUP.

Mrs. S. T. Rorer gives this, her favorite receipt, for making tomato ketchup, in the August Ladies' Home Journal: "Use half a bushel of sound August tomatoes. Wash and cut them into pieces. Cook gently for half an hour, then press through a sieve. Cook again for one hour; then add one ounce of ground ginger, one pound of mustard, one gill of salt, half a pound of sugar, and one quart of vinegar. Cook to the proper consistency; add five drops of oil of nutmeg, and the same of celery, or a tablespoonful of celery seed. Bottle, cork and seal."

Phathead (soliloquizing on the piazza of his suburban home)—"Ah, cruel, heartless Genevieve! You have succeeded at last in driving me to drink."

Waytide Tramppe (who has overheard)—"Excuse me, mister, but would you be kind enough ter give me Genevieve's address?"

Poultry of all kinds should have plenty of pure water during this dry weather. Impure water often causes grave disorders.

He—"Will you give me one kiss?"

She—"I wouldn't bother to put up my lips for one kiss."

The mercies of God, like grapes, are always found in clusters.

and then take advantage of the delightful fall riding, which is yet to come. When we do a thing, we do it right. There is no half-way business about us. When you consider the standard quality and the high reputation of these goods you will appreciate the value of the reduction, which is the greatest ever made on these goods. It is customary to reduce the prices of back year wheels during the winter months, when there is practically no sale for them. We intend to give you the benefit of this cut while you can yet get considerable use of your wheel. The fall is the most delightful of all seasons for riding and with this reduction you have yet a season of enjoyment.

Wall Paper! Wall Paper!

I wish to call the attention of my friends and the public in general to the fact that I now am ready to show one of the ever exhibited in this county, bought direct from the factory, in full bundle lots, so you get it only from second hands, no two or three profits coming off it. Of course the consumer pays them all. Sam Jones says it takes a pointer pup nine days to get his eyes open. I have known some people to get their's open in fifteen minutes in a wall paper deal. They thought it was two pieces instead of one, and the border they did not understand, &c. That is always their plea. Remember I am the only paper hanger in the county that carries a stock and don't have the expense of running a store, therefore I have no opposition. If you think I can't save you money, come and see me and bring size of your room, or send size by mail and I will tell you what your job will cost, and send samples and convince you that Gladhill's is the place to save twenty-five cents on a dollar in wall paper.

Finest and Cheapest Lines of WALL PAPER
