IN THE OLD BARN LOFT.

'Tis thirty years or there abouts
Since I used to roll and play
And turn all kinds of somersaults
On the fresh and fragrant hay;
A-jumping and a-tumbling
On the hay so sweet and soft
At my home away back yonder,
In the old barn loft.

How the pigeons used to flutter,
And strut about and coo!
And make love to one another,
Like sweethearts used to do,
While I walked the risky crossbeam,
Or clambered high aloft,
With half intent of falling,
In the old barn loft.

How I used to frighten sister,
Who was looking for the eggs,
As I dangled there, head downward,
Holding by my little legs;
And giving them a swing or two,
I'd strike the hay so soft,
At my home away back yonder,
In the old barn loft.

The twittering of the swallows,
While making homes of mud;
The graceful game of hide-and-seek,
The slip, the sudden thud;
The pattering of the rain drops
About the hay so soft,
Are memories still clinging
Of the old barn loft.

THE MUMMY OF A PHARAOH.

From the Scientific American.

The greatest discovery of mummies ever made in Egypt, says Public Opinion, was in the year 1881, when the remains of thirty-nine royal personages were brought to light at Deir-el-Bahari, Thebes. One of these was proved to be the mummy of King Rameses II, the third king of the ninth dynasty and the Pharoah of the Jewish captivity. This mummy was in a perfect state of preservation The mummy case itself was of sycamore wood, plain and unvarnished, and without a spot or stripe of paint, something reckoned as usual. The case was, however, carved to represent Rameses in the position of Osiris. The crossed arms rested upon the breast. In the right hand was the royal whip and in the left the royal book. The features were most delicately carved in the soft wood, and the whole was surmounted with the crown of Upper and Lower Egypt, and surrounded by a carved representation of the uræus serpent. The name of Rameses was written in plain black characters upon the case, which bore no other text or representation whatever, strongly contrasting with the exaggerated dedications noted on almost all the other cases found in the same pit. The mummy itself was carefully wrapped in rose-colored and yellow linen of a texture finer than the very finest Indian muslin. In the different folds of this linen several dried lotus flowers and leaves were found. In the folds of one of the bands which passed across the grave clothes to keep them in shape was a folded papyrus bearing inscriptions which informed the reader that this, the mummy of Rameses II, was concealed in the pit where it was found at a time when a foreign army invaded Egypt. This quaint bit of information, which was probably written two thousand or two thousand five hundred years ago, is as plain as though it had been penned but yesterday.

DEFINITIONS OF HOME.

From London Tid-bits.

The golden setting in which the brightest jewel is "mother."

A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in.

Home is the blossom of which heaven is the fruit.

The only spot on earth where the faults and failings of fallen humanity are hidden under the mantle of charity.

An abode in which the inmate, the "superior being called man," can pay back at night, with fifty per cent. interest, every annoyance that has met him in business during the day.

The place where the great are sometimes small, and the small often great.

The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, the mother's world.

The jewel casket, containing the most precious of all jewels—domestic happiness.

Where you are treated best and you grumble most.

Home is the central telegraph office of human love, into which run innumerable wires of affection, many of which, though extending thousands of miles, are never disconnected from the one great terminus.

The centre of our affections, around which our heart's best wishes twine.

A sanitary Bible for the use of courtrooms has just been put on the market, says the Medical Record. It is bound with white celluloid instead of leather, and it can thecefore be washed and disinfected from time to time.

A Kansas City man, whose house hasn't been to rights since his wife went away early in the summer, says he's mighty glad there's no place like home.

The German potato crop is reported only an average at best. Considerable disease prevails.

It's worth remembering that the friskiest colt doesn't always make the best plow-horse.

Farmers ought to keep everything in neat and tidy order, but it isn't so bad to have one field a-rye for winter pasture.

Wall Paper! Wall Paper!

I wish to call the attention of my friends and the public in general to the fact that I now am ready to show one of the ever exhibited in this county, bought direct from the factory, in full bundle lots, so you get it only from second hands, no two or three profits coming off it. Of course the consumer pays them all. Sam Jones says it takes a painter pap nine days to get his eyes open. I have known some people to get their's open in fifteen minutes in a wall paper deal. They thought it was two pieces instead of one, and the border they did not understand, &c. That is always the plea. Remember I am the only paper hanger in the county that carries a stock and don't have the expense of running a store, therefore I have no opposition. If you think I can't save you money, come and see me and bring size of your room, or send size by mail and I will tell you what your job will cost, and send samples and convince you that Gladhill's is the place to save twenty-five cents on a dollar in wall paper.

Finest and Cheapest Lines of WALL PAPER
