"CART WHEEL," AS THE SILVER DOLLAR IS SOMETIMES CALLED, NOW LITTLE USED

Currency Official Says Extending Circulation Useless Because People Will Not Have Them—Paper Dollars More Convenient And Easier To Carry.

(From the Washington Correspondent of The Jeffersonian.)

The old silver dollar, variously referred to as iron man, sinker, and what not, is fast going out of existence. People will not use it any more.

Testifying before the House Appropriations Committee, William S. Broughton, Commissioner of the Public Debt, quoted officials of the Federal Reserve Banks as saying they were unable to extend the circulation of silver dollars because people would not take them. Paper dollars are more convenient to carry and therefore more popular, he said.

Accordingly Government officials are asking for an increased appropriation to be used in printing a larger amount of paper dollars. Over one hundred million more silver certificates are needed, the committee was told.

Of all kinds of currency there are now in circulation 784,000,000 notes, Commissioner Broughton said. Seventy-five per cent. of these are $1 notes.

Asked to explain the increased demand for dollar bills, Commissioner Broughton said apparently the people are carrying around more currency. He was unable to say whether the tremendous circulation of $1 indicates a greater or less degree of extravagance.

"You might figure it either way," he said. "They are either spending more money or spending it in smaller sums."

OLIVIER ACQUIRES FOUR LOTS ON CHARLES ST. AVENUE.

Stuart Olivier and wife have acquired title to four lots on Charles Street avenue, near Wyndhurst avenue, opposite the entrance to Homeland, the Perine estate, for about $29,000 in fee, according to the record of deeds filed.

Three of the lots were acquired from George E. Saulsbury and wife and the other from H. A. B. Perfecting Lamps
The Story of Oil No 15
THE Story of Oil now brings us to the inventive efforts of two men who brought the use of Oil up to an efficient and satisfactory standard. Until 1782 all lamps were ill-made, smoky instruments, filling the air with soot and a stifling odor. At that time a Swiss physician, Aime Argand, made what was perhaps the greatest step forward in the history of Oil Lamps. He invented the circular wick and the lamp chimney.
LATER, in 1846, a Mr. Gessner manufactured an illuminating Oil from the asphaltic albertite found in County Albert, New Brunswick, and called it Kerosene. The older name of "coal oil", however, is still used somewhat in America.
Circular Wicks, Lamp Chimneys, Kerosene. We take them all as a matter of fact nowadays. Yet all honor is due the men who gave them to us. The Red "C" Oil Co. today is producing Kerosene of a quality that surpasses by far the fondest imaginings of Gessner. The Red "C" Oil and The White "C" Oil, same except in color, is the ideal Kerosene for your Lamps and Incubators.
The Red "C" Oil — Highest quality, with attractive red coloring added.
The White "C" Oil — A pure white Kerosene, crystal clear. Uniformly excellent.
