SURVEYOR WORKS UNDER GUARD AFTER HERMIT'S THREAT.

Like the early surveyors who mapped out the country in Colonial days, Charles B. Wheeler of Towson, who is surveying the Merridale development for part of the county sanitary system, works under a guard.

Catonsville policemen have been assigned to go with him following his assertion that William R. Meyers, a veteran of the World War, threatened him as he attempted to work near the Colerain road, where Meyers lives a hermitlike existence in a little cottage.

Completion of the survey was halted when Meyers appeared with a shotgun and ordered the county men to "clear out of here."

The survey is part of the preliminary work for the sewerage system and disposal plant that is to be constructed there.
