"Saved Her Life."

MRS. JOHN WALLET, of Jefferson, Wis., than whom none is more highly esteemed or widely known, writes. "In 1890 I had a severe attack of LaGrippe and at the end of four months, in spite of all physicians, friends and good nursing could do, my lungs heart and nervous system were so completely wrecked, my life was despaired of, my friends giving me up. I could only sleep by the use of opiates. My lungs and heart pained me terribly and my cough was most aggravating. I could not lie in one position but a short time and not on my left side at all. My husband brought me Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure and I began taking them. When I had taken a half bottle of each I was much better and continuing persistently I took about a dozen bottles and was completely restored to health to the surprise of all."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

"WASHINGTON."

:o:

An original poem, written and read by Prof. Wm. J. Heapes, of Taylorsville, at the presentation of a flag to the public school at Gamber, by Mechanicsville Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., February 22nd, 1898.

On February the twenty second
Seventeen hundred and thirty two,
America gave birth to a son
Who was both noble, good and true.
His heredity was very high,
And 'tis said he never told a lie.
At school he never was a fool,
And he always kept the golden rule.
His education was not great,
But of the kind that gave him weight.
At sixteen years, a surveyor bold,
He faced the Indians and the cold.
At twenty-one, a soldier grand,
His wielded sword was in his hand.
At this age o'er the frost and snow
On a perilous mission he did go,
With nothing but an Indian guide,
And a sword and pistol at his side.
Five hundred miles on horseback they
Plod through the snow their weary way,
They reached Venago and Le Bolut—
The forts to which they had to go.
He found the Frenchmen good enough
To give him still another bluff.
While going home, resolved on strife,
He found the peril of his life
To be lodged in a seething tide,
And ensconsed in and Indian guide.
He swam the river through ice and snow
And unharmed caught the Indian's blow.
For the "Fates" had givtn to him a life
Charmed for that great freedom's strife.
He marched with Braddock later, when
He rescued his defeated men.
Two horses fell in this affray,
And many shots were aimed that day,
Whose purpose, had they kept their way
Would take that leader's life.
He later years on freedom bent,
To Continental Congress went.
Ere this the great and bloody strife
Begun at Lexington was rife.
On June the fifteenth, seventy-five,
This man the greatest now alive
Commander in chief of brave and free,
Was elected unanimously.
For eight long years, through bloody strife,
At the hazard of his noble life,
He led that faithful little band,
From end to end of this great land.
He shared with them their joy and fear
They followed him for freedom dear.
At Valley Forge, no bed no fire
No home to shelter them, they were
A noble true devoted band
Who fought to save a crushed land.
At Yorktown, when the sword was given,
England's authority was riven,
Cornwallis with his allies were driven
From off our shores. They sallied forth
Determined then to show the worth
Of British arms. But it was mirth
Yea! folly in the grossest form,
For America was not born to be a slave.
And then with no voice of dissent
He to the presidency went.
Our hero at the ship of state
None dared molest, and who could hate
Such nobility of character?
He said "I will stand at the helm
When troubles come and thoughts o'erwhelm
This people, I will stand at my post,
With all my power will do the most
I can, to maintain our dear land,
For there is none that's half so grand."
Ah! Washington, then hast well spoken,
We pledge ourselves as one, a token
Of the liberty which thous't given.
Long live thy name. Far spread thy fame,
And may we ever live the same
As though thou wert ever here.
The North, the South, the East, the West,
Have pledged themselves as one, Ah! blest
The tie that binds the Nation.

An Honest Man.

"Now look here, Thompson," remarked Brown; "it has been six months since you borrowed that five dollars from me."

"Seven," corrected Thompson, gravely.

"Well, then, seven months," snorted Brown, "and you promised to give it back to me in a week. Promised faithfully, you did, to return me it in seven days, instead of months."

"I know it," answered Thompson, sadly, drawing a memorandum-book from his pocket. "That bill was 'Series B, No. 672929, issue of 1887.' I made the note, and then I spent the money. Since then I've been trying to recover it."

"But," howled Brown, "any other would do as well."

"No," responded Thompson, shaking his head; "I'm a man of my word. When you gave me the bill I said 'I will return this to you,' and I meant it. Brown, old man, just as soon as I come across No. 672929, Series F, issue of 1887, I'll see that you get it, for I am not the one to go back on my promises."—From the "Editor's Drawer," in Harper's Magazine for March.

Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth.

Saved by a Song.

Two Americans who were crossing the Atlantic met in the cabin on Sunday night to sing hymns. As they sang the last hymn, "Jesus, lover of my soul," one of them heard an exceedingly rich and beautiful voice behind him. He looked around, and although he did not know the face, he thought that he khew the voice. So when the music ceased he turned and asked the man if he had been in the civil war. The man replied that he had been a Confederate soldier.

"Were you at such a place at such a night?" asked the first.

"Yes," he replied, "and a curious thing happened that night which this hymn has recalled to my mind. I was posted on sentry duty near the edge of a wood. It was a dark night and very cold, and I was a little frightened because the enemy were supposed to be very near. About midnight, when everything was very still, and I was feeling homesick and miserable and weary, I thought that I would comfort myself by praying and singing a hymn. I remember singing this hymn:

"'All my trust on Thee is stayed,
All my help from thee I bring;
Cover my defenceless head
With the shadow of Thy wing.'

"After singing that, a strange peace came down upon me, and through the long night I felt no more fear."

"Now," said the other, "listen to my story. I was a union soldier, and was in the wood that night with a party of scouts. I saw you standing, although I did not see your face. My men had their rifles focused upon you, waiting the word to fire, but when you sang out:

"'Cover my defenceless head
With the shadow of thy wing,'

I said, 'Boys lower your rifles; we will go home.'"

The Keeping of Sheep.

From National Stockman and Farmer.

There is no stock on the farm that will pay a surer profit than a small flock of well-bred, well-kept sheep. Sheep will manage to exist where other stock will starve to death, but it is a conceded fact that no animal on the farm will respond more readily to intelligent care than the sheep. Our best results from pasturing have been with alsike and timothy mixed. Our sheep have kept in splendid shape ever since we have had that kind of pasture. In winter we feed cornfodder for roughage and oats for the grain ration, with an occasional feed of bran and corn. We do not consider corn a proper ration for breeding ewes. The muscle-forming foods, such as oats, bran, and shorts, in our estimation, will give more satisfactory results than is possible with an exclusive corn diet. Where clover hay is used exclusively it may be possible to feed considerable corn without serious effects. But when convenient to do so, oats should always be fed freely to breeding ewes. The result will almost invariably be large and vigorous lambs. The financial side alone of the sheep business should induce most farmers to keep a small flock. But leaving that out, the fact that sheep will come nearer keeping a farm clear of obnoxious weeds than any other kind of stock is of itself a sufficient reason for keeping a few on every farm.

Helping Somewhere.

An unknown writer relates a pretty little incident recently of a lady who called at the house of a physician, and, finding him out, asked his son where his father could most likely be found.

"Well," replied the lad, "you'll have to look for him some place where people are sick or hurt, or something like that; I don't know just where he is, but he's helping somewhere."

"Helping somewhere!" Is there a grander, sweeter, better life in the world than that led by those who are always helping somewhere? The lives of the rich, famous only for their wealth, their high station in fashionable society, their jewels and magnificent mansions, their wonderful wardrobes, their splendid entertainments, their floating places—such lives are vain and pitiful compared to that of the poorest and humblest man or woman, or boy or girl who is always to be found "helping somewhere."

To Make Camphor Tablets.

Now that the time for colds in the head is at hand, we should be careful to carry a lump of camphor about with us, since this preparation, though it may not altogether cure a cold, will do much to relieve its most distressing symptoms. To be quite sure of its purity the camphor should be made at home. Melt three ounces of spermaceti, one and a half of pure camphor, and two tablespoonfuls of sweet almond oil in an earthen jar, placed by the side of the fire or in a cool oven. When dissolved and still warm pour the mixture into small pans or molds, and turn out when set.

The best teachers of humanity are the lives of great men.

Painted Paragraphs.

The afternoon tea sandwich is a combination of mystery and indigestion.

The happiness of your life depends upon the character of your thoughts.

Was there ever a mother who thought any woman good enough for her son?

We are all aware that riches have wings, but it is very seldom we see them flying our way.

When a man starts out to be mean he can beat a women all to pieces at the business.

There is no use weeping over yesterday's grievances if you wish to enjoy to-day's blessings.

It generally follows that when we make a few dollars our relatives hear that we have made thousands.

No one is vexed that the ground hog has been proven an old fraud. But perhaps we speak too soon.

To the individual whose name has never been in print, its first appearance is an event of unprecedented importance.

Why is it a man hates to have another one agree with him regarding the taste he displayed in the selection of his wife?

It is the hardest lesson to learn, but one of great benefit, that the average persons only like you for what they can get out of you.

The man who declares himself impervious to cold and goes trapesing about without an overcoat these days will be nestling under a grassy bed next summer "if he don't watch out."

The newspapers are just now making a great ado over the fact that a woman has had her stomach removed and still lives. But we fail to see why so much fuss should be made over the absence of a single organ. Look, for instance, as an exchange says, at the number of people running around without a brain.

It is all a mistaken idea that some people entertain that a community cannot get along without them. Were they to sit down and do a little calculating they will arrive at the conclusion that the removal of any good citizen from a town is more or less a loss, but scarcely a calamity. People come and go, and no man, great or small, has ever occupied a place that could not be filled. The idea that a man's removal by death, or otherwise, is an irreparable loss is mere sentiment. Men remove from one town to another quite frequently, and yet the social and commercial systems are carried on just the same.

There is a Hereafter.

From Press and Printer.

Here is a little pointer for those whose conduct conveys the impression they think there is no hereafter.

The late lamented Bill Nye once said: "Do not attempt to cheat an editor out of his year's subscription to his paper, or any other sum. Cheat the minister, cheat anybody and everybody, but if you have any regard for the future consequences, don't fool the editor. You will be put up for office some time, or want some public favor for yourself or friends, and when your luck is a thing of beauty, a joy forever, the editor will open upon you, and knock your castles into a cocked hat at the first fire. He'll subdue you, and then you'll cuss your stupidity for a driveling idiot, go hire some man to knock you down and kick you for falling."

The country newspaper publisher toils every day to make his paper interesting, mentally and mechanically—that's labor; once in a while a patron comes in and pays a subscription—that's capital; occasionally one moves off without paying and has his postmaster send a card to say the paper is refused—that's stealing.

Elephant Life in the Jungle.

Without elephants, jungles would be virtually impassable. The great beasts are a mixture of strength and weakness, of craft and simplicity. The paths through the jungle from village to village are merely tracks from which the interlacing foliage has been cut and thrust aside, and the virgin soil trodden into a black mud. After the rain, this mud is many feet deep, and no living creature except an elephant, a buffalo, or rhinoceros could labor through it. The elephant makes his way by lifting one foot at a time, and inserting it deep into the slough in front, withdrawing another with a sound like the popping of a huge champagne cork. Nothing but a ride on an earthquake could be compared with the sensation of being run away with by an elephant. As for stopping him, some one has well said that you might as well try to stop a runaway locomotive by pulling with your walking stick on the funnel, as seek to check an elephant at such a moment with a goad.

For tender-mouthed horses use a large, smooth mouth-piece, with leather check pieces, so as to let the bit rest about an inch lower than usual in the mouth. If this does not answer, wind the bit with a piece of chamois skin, first saturating it with tannin or alum, to harden the mouth.

"Would you," he said, after they had been sitting there in the dark for a long time, "be angry with me if I were to kiss you?"

She was silent for a moment. Then in tones the meaning of which was not to be mistaken, she replied: "Why do you suppose I turned down the light an hour and a half ago?"

And yet he wondered, poor fool, how other young men who had started far in the rear were able to pass him in the race of life."

A home-made emollient for chapped hands is compounded from an ounce of white wax and an ounce of spermaceti. Cut into shreds and melt together in an earthenware jar; then add an ounce of camphorized oil, stir the ingredients until they are well mixed, place the jar in a basin of cold water, stir until the cream is cold, then pack in little jars for the dressing-table. If this is rubbed on the hands, and a pair of wash-leather gloves worn at night, the relief will be prompt.

A little good bran every day to growing calves and colts is a good investment. It tends more to build up the framework of bone and muscle than it does to put on fat.

The finest complexions in the world are said to be in the Bermudas. This is accounted for by the fact that the inhabitants live chiefly on onions.

AN OPEN LETTER.

WESTMINSTER, April 10th, 1890.

Mr. Jos. B. Boyle:

Dear sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but temporary relief. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try your Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost instant relief, but a permanent cure. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am,

Truly yours,
EDWARD LYNCH.

ARE IN Progress Now!

We don't propose to argue the pro and con of price cutting. We believe that prices need trimming at times just as surely as your razor needs sharpening. The motives for cutting prices are two-fold. The first is the moving out of goods that will not sell. The second is to show to our trade that we are not afraid to apply the knife when confronted with the fact that we have too much stock. Our surplus stock we have found in the following goods:

MEN'S CLOTHING, OVERCOATS,
LADIES' COATS, CHILDREN'S COATS,
Ladies' and Children's Shoes, Blankets,
Comforts, Lap Robes, Dress Goods,
Hoods, Caps, &c.

Wall Paper! Wall Paper!

I wish to call the attention of my friends and the public in general to the fact that I now am ready to show one of the ever exhibited in this county, bought direct from the factory, in full bundle lots, so you get it only from second hands, no two or three profits coming off it. Of course the consumer pays them all. Sam Jones says it takes a pointer pup nine days to get his eyes open. I have known some people to get their's open in fifteen minutes in a wall paper deal. They thought it was two pieces instead of one, and the border they did not understand, &c. That is always their plea. Remember I am the only paper hanger in the county that carries a stock and don't have the expense of running a store, therefore I have no opposition. If you think I can't save you money, come and see me and bring size of your room, or send size by mail and I will tell you what your job will cost, and send samples and convince you that Gladhill's is the place to save twenty-five cents on a dollar in all paper.

Finest and Cheapest Lines of
WALL PAPER
