If you KNEW your car would never be involved in a collision, you wouldn't need Collision Insurance. But you don't know. No one ever expects a collision, but they happen all too often. Sometimes no one is to blame, but the resulting damage must be paid for just the same, by someone.

Collision insurance covers damage to your car from a crash, whether it be with another car, with a roadway obstruction, or with an embankment or paving in an upset. You ought to have it.
