The following young ladies were present: Misses Mary Agnes Gorsuch, Emma Buckingham Swope, Irene Woodward, Louise Reifsnider, Marianna Gehr, Nelly Gehr, Mary Gehr, Nellie Albaugh, Elizabeth Sterling, Marjorie Sterling, Catharine Slagle, Elizabeth Slagle, Eva Pauline Herr, Marjorie Lewis, Charlotte Brown, Martha McMurran.

It is due to Mr. Joseph B. Boyle, who retired from the office of postmaster of this city on Wednesday last, to say that he has conducted the office efficiently and in a courteous and affable manner. He also, during his term, succeeded in adding materially to the mail facilities of this city by inducing the department to increase the number of mails received and sent by rail. The free rural mail delivery, which may possibly be still only on trial, was put in operation here during his term and has been successfully conducted.

Mr. Harry Bankard, a well known farmer and one of the most reputable and worthy citizens of Uniontown district, met with a sad accident on Tuesday. He was operating a mower and incautiously stepped in front of the knife, which came in contact with his left leg above the ankle, cut through one of the bones and lacerated the flesh severely. He was attended by four physicians, who decided that amputation was necessary and the operation was performed by Dr. Buffington, of New Windsor, who removed the leg about eight inches above the ankle. Mr. Bankard is about sixty-five years old and the shock of the accident to his system was very severe. He is, however, making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gorsuch, widow of Stephen Gorsuch and mother of Mr. Thomas Gorsuch, who is residing on the old home farm, some time during Friday night of last week arose from her bed and accidently fell to the floor with such force as to cause a fracture of the neck of the thigh bone. In addition to the accident she suffered an attack of partial paralysis of the throat. She is seventy-two years old, and this fact renders her recovery of the full use of the injured limb very doubtful. Dr. M. L. Bott, of this city, who is attending her, is using every means in medicine and surgery to relieve her sufferings, which have been very severe.

The pleasure of the participants in the celebration of St John's (Leister's) Lutheran Sunday School, which was held in the grove adjoining the church, near Brummel, on Saturday last, was considerably marred by the riotous conduct of Wm. Magee and his sons, Edward and Keener, who behaved in a very unseemly and improper manner on the occasion. The three, however, were made to pay dearly for their fun. They were haled before Justice J. Hoffman Fuss, of this city, on Wednesday, and, pleading guilty, William was fined $1 and costs, amounting, in all, to $6.55; Keener $5.00 and costs, amounting to $11.80, and Edward $5.00 and costs, amounting to $13.15. In addition to the fine the last named, whose case was most aggravated of the three, was sent to jail for ten days.

A reduction in the customs force at Baltimore was ordered by the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington, and went into effect on the 1st inst. Six messengers, four telephone attendants, one clerk, two assistant weighers, and one opener and packer were dropped and their places abolished. The opener and packer affected by this reduction is Mr. Elias N. Davis, of this city, who won the confidence and regard of every person who came in contact with him, in the public service, by his fidelity and gentlemanly demeanor. Another office, that of chief clerk to the collector, which had been vacant since the promotion of Major Raphun to the position of deputy collector, has also been abolished. The office of typewriter and stenographer was created and Charles G. Leonard named to fill it. Mr. Leonard, however, failed to see the propriety of giving up a $1500 place in private service to take a $1200 one under the government, and declined the appointment. By the changes and reductions reported the treasury saves $13,160 per annum. The reduction was made upon the recommendation of special agents, in view of the fact that custom receipts have fallen off about $500,000 at Baltimore during the past year. Another and more searching investigation will, it is said, be made and a further reduction will then follow.

Mr. Milton Schaeffer is now postmaster in this city. The office was transferred to his charge on Wednesday evening after the reception and distribution of the last mail for that date. The transfer occurred with very little ceremony and without interruption to the current business of the office. Mr. Schaeffer, in assuming his new duties, took into the office with him, as clerks, his daughter, Miss Edna Schaeffer, and Mr. Joseph S. Witter, Mr. J. Gloyd Lynch having retired some days previously. Mr. Samuel H. Shipley, who has been identified with the office during the time and since Mr. A. H. Huber was postmaster, will continue in his old position for the present. While the expense of the clerical force, to the government, has not been increased by the appointment of Miss Schaeffer, it will add materially to the celerity of the distribution and delivery of the mails and increase the efficiency of the service. It is the purpose of Postmaster Schaeffer to do everything in his power to make his administration entirely satisfactory to the patrons of the office, and as he brings to his duties considerable public experience and an extended knowledge of private business affairs, we have no hesitation in predicting his success in this important station.

Baseball.

Last Saturday afternoon the Marston A. C. played a game of baseball with the Woodbine team, on the grounds of the latter. The Marstons again proved too much for their opponents, by defeating them by a score of 9 to 7, and thereby winning the championship of Carroll county. As the Woodbine team delayed the game because of the late arrival of some of its players, it was necessary for the game to stop at the end of the seventh inning, as it was getting late, and the Marston boys had about fifteen miles to drive before reaching home. There was no forfeit declared by either umpire. Nicodemus' fine pitching and batting were the only features of the game. He struck out 13 and allowed but ten hits to be made off of his delivery. He also made good use of the bat, making four hits out of five times at the bat. Hebb started to pitch for the home team, but as the Marstons took a liking to his delivery, he was replaced by Fout, who fared a little better.

SCORE BY INNINGS.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	T'l
Marston	0	2	0	4	2	1	0	9
Woodbine	1	0	2	0	3	0	1	7

Hits—Marston, 19, Woodbine, 10: Errors—Marston, 4, Woodbine, 5: Batteries—Marston, Nicodemus and Sundergill; Woodbine, Hebb, Fout and Doherty. Umpires—Albert and Conaway.

The Marstons would be pleased to hear from any team in the county. Send challenges to A. Cover, Marston.

Broke Jail But Were Recaptured.

Carroll county was treated, on Friday evening of last week, to another of the frequent jail breaking experiences to which it has been subject for some years past, and which have, time and again, forcibly emphasized the necessity of providing a more secure place for the detention of offenders against the law, of this commonwealth. The prisoners who escaped, in this instance, appear to have found very little difficulty in making their way out of the building and only their fatuity in following the lines of the railroads and telegraphs prevented them from getting off entirely, or giving the authorities endless trouble before their recapture. They probably did not count upon the energy and good judgment of Sheriff Haines, in making their plans, and hence were all back in their old quarters, with irons on their limbs, in less than twenty-three hours from the time of their escape.

The escaping prisoners are all young white fellows, between eighteen and twenty-one years. Another prisoner, a colored man, George Hill, who was in for stealing a horse from Mr. Washington Witherow, of Taneytown, got away in the afternoon. In his case, however, he was employed to do certain work about the premises and enjoyed privileges on that account of which he took advantage and simply walked away. Those who got out at night were: Harry Stouffle, Horace Knott, Clarence Arbaugh and James Cook. Stouffle was held for larceny, Knott for stealing the use of a horse, and Arbaugh and Cook are the parties who sometime ago assaulted and robbed Capt. Miller, in his store in Hampstead, about 10 o'clock in the evening. The most remarkable thing about their escape was the limited dimensions of the opening through which they forced their way into a small garret above the upper tier of cells in the jail. The principal joists to which the lathing in the ceiling of these cells is nailed, are about three feet apart, but the entire spaces between most of them are filled up with other joists about 3½ to 4 inches square. In one or two of the spaces, however, one less of the square joists were put, probably because there were not quite enough of them on hand when the building was erected to complete the job. After several trials the prisoners found a place where a joist was omitted. They broke through the ceiling at that point, but discovered that the joists were only about six inches apart and they could not get through between them. They then cut out of one of the joists, with a common pocketknife, a piece one inch thick, by nine inches long, thus widening the aperture to seven inches. They then took off all their clothing and pushed it up into the garret through this hole, greased the wood and their bodies and squeezed themselves through also. It is said they suffered some abrasions of the skin in doing so. Donning their clothes they broke through a thin partition of lathing and plastering into the attic of that part of the building occupied by the sheriff and his family, into which they crawled, climbed through a dormer window to the roof and from that got to a locust tree growing near the corner of the structure, down which they easily reached the ground outside the jail walls. This was accomplished at about quarter till eight o'clock, and during the absence of Sheriff Haines, who had gone to Union Bridge in pursuit of Hill. It is pretty clear that Hill was induced, probably by threats, to leave for that purpose, and that the conspirators were fully aware of the sheriff's movements and knew that in their effort to escape they would encounter nobody but women or children. Mrs. Haines, the sheriff's wife, was engaged in some domestic duty in the kitchen when they broke through into the attic. She heard the noise made by their movements and went up to the second story to ascertain its cause. She called, but receiving no reply concluded that something was wrong and hastened down and out of the front door, where she saw Arbaugh climbing down the locust tree. She called to him to stop and ran toward him, but he was too quick for her and got away before she could reach him. He was followed by Stouffle, whom she grasped by the collar, but he struck her a blow on the arm, loosening her hold, and followed his companions. Cook and Knott were gone, having been the first to escape. Arbaugh and Stouffle went toward the Manchester road and the others had probably taken the same direction. They had a map of the road to Mt. Airy, made by George L. Wetzell, who is held for stealing a bicycle from Wm. A. Stultz, of this city, and who was in the plot to escape, but was unable to get through the hole into the garret and was left behind.

The story of their pursuit and capture is full of interest, and the credit of it is due solely to Sheriff Haines, who acted with great promptness, decision and good judgment. He was at Union Bridge and had just procured a team to go after Geo. Hill, when a message by telephone informed him of the jail delivery. With out hesitating a moment he started for this city, reaching here about ten o'clock. He employed the next two hours in wiring an account of the escape to the Baltimore police and to all the telegraph stations on the Western Maryland and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads as far west as Cumberland, and in sending out assistants to different points. From information received from a resident of this city, who had seen suspicious parties a short distance out on the Mt. Airy road, he concluded that some of the men were making for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at that point, and Mr. Charles V. Wampler was sent in pursuit. The sheriff, however, concluded that Knott, at least, who hails from Emmittsburg or vicinity, would make in that direction, and at twelve o'clock, accompanied by his fourteen-year-old son, started on a drive to Bruceville (Frederick Junction). Reaching Middleburg he left his team, secured assistance and then hastened on foot to the junction, where the night freight train going west was shifting cars. He held the train, which was just ready to proceed, long enough to make a careful search, and in a box car at the rear end, found a man asleep. Into this car Sheriff Haines lifted his son and directed him to arouse the man, while he stood, revolver in hand ready for use in case of necessity. When the lad gave the man a push he turned over and disclosed the face of Knott. In a moment the sheriff was in the car and secured his man, and then, after satisfying himself that the other men were not on the train, started for Westminster. On the way, by carefully plying Knott with questions, he ascertained that the plan of Stouffle, Arbaugh and Cook was to go to Mt. Airy and beat their way to the West on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Getting to the jail at 5 o'clock, Saturday morning, he returned Knott to his old quarters and then, making hasty preparations, left on the fast mail train passing here at 5.40 for Hagerstown, intending to take the first train out on the Cumberland Valley Railroad for Martinsburg, W. Va. He failed to make the connection, however, and employed the time until the departure of the next train, in wiring and telephoning to Martinsburg and other points, urging the authorities to hold every train long enough to make a thorough search of every car from roof to trucks. He reached Martinsburg, accompanied by Sheriff Seibert, of Washington county, at noon, and found Arbaugh and Cook in custody. He was informed that the men were discovered in the drop of a coal hopper, carefully concealed, and fought desperately before surrendering. Arbaugh had to be knocked down with a club and a shot was fired before he yielded. Returning by the same route by which he had gone to Martinsburg, he reached here by the fast mail Saturday afternoon and landed his prisoners in jail in less than twenty-three hours after their escape. Deputy Sheriff Wampler had caught Stouffle at Mt. Airy, as he was about to start on a stolen ride on a freight train going west, and had returned him to the jail about noon.

We have deemed it but justice to Sheriff Haines to give this account in detail of his successful efforts to recapture the jail-breakers. The skill he displayed, his quick preception of the probable movements of the men, and the celerity and promptness of his actions, from first to last, indicate that he is endowed with qualities which would have made him a first-class detective if his attention had been given to that profession. Some of the young men with whom he had to deal are fast developing into desperate characters. Arbaugh seems to have been the leading spirit. He planned the escape and, by his threats, intimidated the prisoners who were not willing to join in the exodus, and prevented them from divulging the plot. Dr. Louis H. Haley is one of these. After Arbaugh was put back in the jail he was overheard saying to his companions that if he should ever get ten dollars he would settle Sheriff Haines' case. This is supposed to have been a threat against the sheriff's life.

The ease with which this escape was made, after other similar events during the past few years, is a strong argument in favor of the erection of a new jail, or such a remodeling of the old one as will prevent a recurrence of such incidents. A few hours work was all that was necessary to open the way to freedom for the prisoners. The place in the ceiling where the cutting was done, had been pasted over with paper previously, to cover a defect caused by the broken lath. No cutting was done on the joist until the day before the escape and that was concealed by simply replacing the paper until the time arrived for the final effort. It is time to put some harder material than soft wood between prisoners and freedom.

The great concern of our people for some days has been how to keep cool, for the August sun in this section has been most oppressive, the therm meter sporting about 90° at midday, that has been quite telling upon man and beast. Our farmers are harvesting their potato crop which is generally below the average with the small ones greatly in the majority. Seeding lands are being worked but this oppressive weather will have a tendency to keep back the seeding.

The members of Trinity Reformed Sunday School had their day's outing in Geranium Grove on the north side of Dug Hill near Melrose on Saturday last. There was a good turnout and a good time enjoyed by all present.

On Thursday of last week Mr. Jacob Hoffman, auctioneer, sold the personal effects of the late Henry F. Warner, at Lineboro, for the administrators, at public sale, nine acres of land, 1 mile north of Melrose to Wm. Menchey for $20 an acre, and a 4-acre lot half a mile east of town on the York road to Conrad Hersh for $50 an acre.

On Saturday last Mr. Hoffman sold at public sale the home farm of the late John W. Boring, 1½ miles east of town, 137 acres, to Mr. Howard Baranger for $35.85 an acre.

On Thursday the fishing club and their friends went to Beckleysville and seined the large dam near the paper mill, coming home with 3 bushels of fish. The Hampstead party had seined it the day before and caught about a barrel at one haul. The water had been let off so that the coast was clear for seining.

Dr. John A. Shower, of York, Pa., spent several days with the family of Mr. Wm. H. Shower last week.

Visit to the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

MR. EDITOR: If the SENTINEL has room in its columns to spare I will try to interest some of my friends and its readers by writing a short letter concerning what I saw in the navy yard. On August 26th it was my privilege to be one among many who visited the Brooklyn Navy Yard, but after seeing it I am somewhat like the boy who went to the city the first time. He came home and told his mother that he could not see the city for the houses. So it is with me in the navy yard matter. There is so much to see that it would take a long time and much space to describe it all. Before I reached the battleships I saw three or four of the 1812 cannon, that were used in that war, and also a piece of some enemy's vessel that had been blown up. The first battleship I went to was the Iowa. She is a powerful ship but I saw great holes which had been blown in her by the enemy. I then went from her to the Oregon. I went on board the latter and looked at the great guns and so many other things that are attached to a fighting vessel. I learned that during all the battle she did not get a scratch. While there are many ships larger she is, to my mind, the most powerful ship in the U. S. Navy. I was given a biscuit and a piece of money from Santiago, the latter of which I shall keep as a relic. I also went on board one of the torpedo boats which was struck by a shell and can now imagine the power of one of those shells. Great pipes were twisted and torn apart where the shells struck. While I walked and looked and came in contact with those who had endured so much during the war, my heart went up to God in thanksgiving for such brave men.

Yours Truly,
ELIAS WELCH,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Woodbine club had an interesting game of ball until the eighth inning, when the Marston forfeited the game to Woodbine, 9 to 0, Marston having eight innings at the bat, and Woodbine seven innings. Hebb pitched the first five innings until Fout came and then the Woodbine had everything their own way, for Fout was invisible for them to touch, while Nicodemus for the Marstons had given out and the Woodbine boys started to bat him all over the field. Then they stopped playing, walked off the field and said that they would give the game, which stood 7 to 7, to Woodbine. Then the umpire said the game was forfeited to Woodbine 9 to 0. From Extreme Nervousness.

THAT no one remedy can contain the elements necessary to cure all diseases, is a fact well known to everyone. Dr. Miles' System of Restorative Remedies consists of seven distinctively different preparations, each for its own purpose.

Mrs. L. C. Bramley, 37 Henry St., St. Catherines, Ontario, writes: "For years I suffered from extreme nervousness and annoying constipation, developing into palpitation and weakness of the heart. I was unable to sleep, suffered much from headache, pain in my left side, palpitation and a constant feeling of weakness and prostration. I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills and the Anti-Pain Pills to relieve sudden paroxysms of pain and headache. I soon felt much improved and the pains and aches and weariness left me. I then took Dr. Miles' Restorative Tonic and am now restored to my former good health."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,
