New York Bargain House.

Our Business Policy.

The policy of this store has always been and always will be to buy only reliable goods, to buy for cash and to sell them at the lowest possible cash price. We do not claim to sell every article we keep at 15 or 25 per cent less than any one else. To do so would be to insult your intelligence. Every one knows that there are some staple goods, sold by every one at about cost and of course at the same price. But we do claim that on the average our prices will be found to be lower than those of other houses. Convince yourself of this by comparison. This store does not fear competition. We ask for your trade because we can save you money, not because your father was a friend of our father's, or any other nonsense. The almighty dollar alone counts in business transactions these days. Cost is the first consideration, satisfactory service the only other. When this house can not do business on those principles, let it die. It deserves no better fate.

One word more. We count a pleased customer our best advertisement. No misunderstanding or mistake of any kind goes uncorrected if we know it. Such things will occur occasionally, therefore we hope you will always aid us to the extent of telling us all about it.

Underwear.

We have made preperations for a tremendous business in underwear this fall. Shall we be disappointed. Not if good goods at low prices count for anything. We have two exceptionally good values in ladies' Underwear, Vests or Pants extra heavy, fleece lined, full size, silk trimmed, silk ribbon around neck, gored armholes, only 19c. Also Vests and Pants same as above, only heavier weight, 25c. In men's wear we have an exceptionally strong line at 25c. Also excellent values at 39c, 50c, and $1.00 We will tell you more about them later on.

Canton Flannel.

The amount of Canton Flannel we sold last year was truly astonishing. But it must be greatly increased this year. We have in store for you an even better bargain than that of last year. Goods bought last summer during their dull season and now being offered at prices much under value. Extra heavy weight Flannel at 7c, and 8c, worth 10c, and 11c.

Lunch Boxes, Baskets or Buckets.

Red Fiber Lunch Boxes, 10c. Pretty Lunch Baskets, good size, 23c. School Buckets, 2 quart size 5c, 3 quart size 8c. Granite School Buckets, 3 quart size 15c, 6 quart size 25c. And school supplies of every kind at lowest possible price.

Our Store closes at 6 P. M., except Saturday.

THE LONG HERALDED IS HERE AT LAST.

The new Fall Dress Goods have come, for a week our yard has been filled daily with monster boxes and cases, now their contents are loading our counters and shelves as fast as we can mark their prices, and what marvels of beauty they are. Indeed it would seem that never before in the history of this house were so many really pretty goods sent us. With their advent the store takes on a bright holiday appearance. Colors here to suit every complexion, weaves to suit every taste and plenty of goods to say "yes" to everybody, and last but not least an excellent light from two large windows to select them in. The prices? you ask, well, we pride ourselves this year on having gotten good value for every dollar we invested and that means that you are the one to benefit by it, for this store is always conducted for your benefit.

VENETIAN CLOTH. The Dress Goods sensation of this fall is a new fabric of marvelous beauty and durability to which the manufacturers have given the name of Venetian Cloth. Abroad it has received the approbation of royalty and here in America every lady may have a royal appearance in a dress made from this beautiful fabric. It is the very newest and latest thing on the market. All the desirable plain colors and in black. It is 50 inches wide and priced at $1.00 PER YARD.

BLACK GOODS. Always stylish, always appropriate on any and every occasion is a black dress, and always becoming to a woman at any age, in fact no wardrobe is complete without at least one black dress. Our assortment of black goods is complete and embodies everything, from the fine black broad cloths downward. Especially serviceable are the Black Crepons, handsome plain and figured goods, at $1 00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 per yard.

ENGLISH MOHAIRS. The beautiful lustre and fine black of the English Mohairs are famous the world over. Age never imparts to them that rusty grey look about the seams so detestable in many black goods Then, too, they are so inexpensive when you take into consideration their wearing quality. We have some beautiful pieces for but 50c PER YARD.

Better and finer grades at 60c, 75c, 85c and $1 00 yard.

COVERT CLOTHS. Covert Suitings are justly famous for their dust defying qualities, making them the only cloths possible to wear for travel and driving, but were it not for that they would be desirable for their peculiar genteel beauty and little price. We have them in all the popular shades, full thirty eight inches wide, for but

29c. PER YARD.

LADIES' CLOTHS. They are of fine wool, not a single thread of cotton in our kind, and are as near as it is possible to come to a fine broad cloth at a little price. A plain weave, goods of extra fine quality especially bought for your need in tailor made gowns. It comes in all shades and is fifty inches wide

60c. PER YARD.

NOVELTIES Never were goods more rightly named, each season sees in them some new and startling combination of color and weave, some new beauties. This year is in no way behind the past, and on our counters you will find an especially choice collection at

50c. PER YARD.

Mail orders promptly filled and samples furnished.

ELDER WM. E. ROOP'S VOYAGE.

Below will be found an interesting letter, written to his family by Elder Wm. E. Roop, of this county, while voyaging across the Atlantic, en route for the Holy Land. Other letters from Elder Roop will appear in the SENTINEL probably every week, for some time. One of these, written at London, Eng., is now in hand and will be published next week:

ON THE BREMEN, ATLANTIC OCEAN, }
AUGUST 18th, 1898 }

As you know it was amid a multitude of prayerful thoughts that the one we would have most prominent and emphatic in our lives to be used of God for greater good caused us to accept the kind invitation of Bro. D. L. Miller, and in company with himself and others, we set sail to-day from N. Y. harbor for a visit to the birth place of the Bible, as well as other places we will necessarily see in the Old World. Inspiration comes to us from personal association with Bro. Miller and his books on former travels, of which this is the fifth trans-Atlantic voyage, and he thinks very probably the last as well as from others and other sources. Accordingly N. Y. and its busy throng is left gradually fading away to sight, till it is lost in the dim distance, and soon after every trace of land disappears, and we are out on the bosom of the deep Atlantic. The sea runs smooth and we cannot fail to think that while the sky is a little overcast, the glitter of the few sunbeams that sparkle and dance on every little wavelet, is only an answer to the many prayers that have ascended in our behalf, for a safe and pleasant trip across the sea. Before starting, in company with a number of brethren and sisters that kindly came to see us off, we take a stroll over the 1st and 2nd cabin apartments and find our room, as the Dutch maidens express it, "fear hundred and sway," where Bro. Hope our native Danish missionary and myself are located about as good as any. Sometime within the 8 or 10 days that this is to be our home we may go down into the hold of the ship and see the ponderous machinery that propels our moving house. That the ship is manned and we are surrounded with nearly all German speaking people, easily tells us that we are on the German Lloyd line and that their destination is Bremen. The caps of the crew down to the china in the kitchen, are all well marked "Norddeutcher Lloyd Bremen." As to the size of this ship, it is 520 feet long, 60 feet wide, and 38 feet deep. Burns about 150 tons of coal per day. An 8,000 horse power twin screw propeller, and is now running about 330 miles per day. Its displacement is 20,000 tons, and 2 such ships would have capacity enough to load on all the inhabitants of Westminster with all their personal effects and transport them across the Atlantic. That is if they would want to go and then perhaps they would still find room for some of their suburban neighbors. This vessel is larger than the "Kaiser Wilhelm" that D. L. Miller so graphically describes in his "Wanderings in Bible Lands."

Ever old and ever new is an ocean voyage and also the parting hour of friends that go away across the sea. And such was our observation and feeling as we slowly moved out of N. Y. harbor down the historic Hudson. The last farewell of the loved ones at home brings pulsating feelings such as no other occurrence can bring and too sacred and too inexpressible to tell did we try to narrate them.

Our second day at sea we begin to write sitting upon a steamer chair on the upper deck, overlooking a large expanse of the broad Atlantic, on whose bosom may now be riding many, many proud ships, among them the gallant fleet of American warships, that to-day are to form in naval parade in N. Y. harbor. Our vessel glides swiftly on and the gray dawn of another beautiful morning betokens another day of fine sailing over the cresting billows. The lookout is on duty boxed midway of the foremast, but just now there seems nothing for him to do, but just at his unenviable place to stand and look. Even the few birds that were following us yesterday seem to have been lost in the night. All on board seem now to have settled down to become seamen add accept the conditions as they may occur. The few children on board seem frolicsome and gleeful as the very wavelets around us.

But the babies are confined to the steerage and lie around on the lower deck as sluggish as their parents. While we move safely onward we can not help thinking, as we just now see a piece of broken timber bobbing up and down in a foaming wave, of the many hulks that once rode as we upon the surface but now lie battered and broken upon the bottom. A large Dutch vessel is seen coming off from the St. Lawrence. All eyes and glasses are turned toward it, and the final verdict is a ship bound for Holland. The sea now rolls heavy and the sun occasionally shines through a rift of clouds and the observations of the day seem to close as we pass through a school of porpoises, many jumping clear out of the water that look to weigh at least 100 pounds. We breathe a silent prayer of thankfulness to the Giver of all good who so far has directed the storms and taken us thus far on our 2nd day at sea in safety. Sunday morning and we are now going over the banks of Newfoundland. The captain has offered us a cosy room for meeting but the many stomachs that are unsettled cause a deferred appointment. Our mind runs back to the dear ones at home and daily the realization grows as suggested by our Bro. Hope on leaving N. Y., that if we had never been away from our country before we would appreciate it a thousand times more if we are spared to return. We think of how softly our loved ones are sleeping at home when the day dawns out here all but a thousand miles from them. He have had to move our watches up already several times, half an hour at a time, to keep pace with the sun and the steamer clock. Our first day we made 304, second 334, and third 338 miles. Out here the Dutch have their jolly songs and beer. The weather is fair and at times the sun shines beautifully. The Lord be thanked that we are as well cared for as we are. Monday dawns with ideal weather and the day could scarcely be surpassed. Everything moves on in the usual way. Some fishing smacks were seen off the Newfoundland coast last evening, and to-day a ship or two is seen at a distance. The day is bright and clear almost without a cloud. Our electric light gave out last night and we had the usual formality to go through to get it renewed. But after all it is well done and after a pleasant talk and comparison of routes, it seems now best that we go more directly south and omitting Denmark we may see the original German home of our brethren who first came to America and also the home of the Waldenses who once dwelt in the Piedmont Valley. Were it not that we are rather limited in time and want to push our way to the homeland of the Bible as fast as possible, we would go north anyhow. But we now find that by stopping off at Southampton and going to London and Paris, we would have very little time to stop anywhere and it would simply be on the go all the time. If we omit Paris, we will go north as intended. The Kaiser is to be in Palestine on the 26th of October with from 2 to 4 thousand followers and they will overrun everything, and everything will be taken up at a high figure likely. If possible we would like to get in ahead of them. As yet we do not know how it will be. A good night's rest, and we behold another day more beautiful if possible than yesterday. Last night we passed our half way mark and now we begin to talk about the time to have our mail in for the earliest return. The deck steward from whom we get our first foreign postage says it will not close before about one hour before we get to Southampton. So we conclude to jot down a little as the days go by and not close too hastily. Bro. Moore, after trying quite a while, went down into the hold of the ship. After getting through the grease and dirt, and seeing more closely the machinery that so far we have satisfied ourselves looding down at, came up and seemed quite satisfied to be on top again. As far as we learn the machinery and equipments do not differ materially from what Bro. D. L. so well described in "Wandering's in Bible Lands." If you want to have any of this letter printed you will have I suppose to give it to some one if you don't have time to pick out just the suitable parts and transcribe them.

Wednesday, 24th.—Last night the sun sank behind a beautiful tinted little cloud as it seemed to lie on the western horizon of the ocean. Reading and talking the evening faded rapidly away and after my cabin companion and myself unite in placing ourselves and all our dear ones in renewed prayer under the shadowy wings of Him who keeps all, we then lie down dreamily thinking of the dawn of a new day as it may guild the horizon. The realization of our hopes are upon us. The day opens with a fine sea, and almost our first sight is a sail vessel passing on our left going west.

Thursday, 25th.—The morning breaks as the evening settled in fog and mist and every 60 seconds the fog-horn announces still, at 11 A. M., that the mists have not cleared away. One week ago to day we sailed out of N. Y., and have found that after we get use to the first unsteadiness of sea-faring one may walk upon the long deck and instead of breathing in the purest ozone, early in the morning from the green hill-tops and fragrant pasture-lands, drink in the equally invigorating salt sea air. We are content to see the porpoises taking their baths along side of our ship while we are safe on board knowing that if they get a cramp they have many thousand feet beneath before they strike the solid crust of "terra firma." A whale or two is said to have been seen at a distance spouting water high in the air as they push their sluggish way through the watery deep. The staunch vessel on which we are is said to be able to sever them about as a child would trundle his wheel-barrow over an angle worm. We miss the merry song-birds in their happy flight and in their stead we see only an occasional sea-gull as it swoops down toward the tossing waves for prey. The children and yourself might enjoy these new sights, but like a long, long Sunday-School and church service those on board seem to have had enough and are tired out. We now have our stop off for London good for later boat. And it seems the time is short now till the mail will be closed. We want to have a little space for a benediction to-morrow. Sorry I did not have my pen filled to write all of this letter with ink. Led-pencil address is illegal in Europe. Surely you will have to pardon this scribbling and mixed up letter. We have not seen the sun for over 24 hours and soundings are quite frequent. It is now 75 fathoms. Saturday morning and now we view a light house on the Emerald Isle, and while the sun came out the mist has not altogether cleared away. A last look before closing this at the children and yourself in sweet memory who have been daily with me and I close for this time wishing the blessings of heaven upon you. Your loving husband as he nears the shores of Old England. More anon.

W. E. ROOP.

Don't Forget.

From the Sunday-School Times.

That women are made out of girls, and that men are made out of boys.

That if you are a worthless girl, you will be a worthless woman; and if you are a worthless boy, you will be a worthless man.

That the best educated men and women once did not know the "A. B. C."

That all the things which you are learning now had to be learned by them.

That the efforts spent in making others happy will in some way add to our own happiness.

That a life of usefulness and helpfulness is worth many times more than a life of pleasure.

In cases of violent headache, it frequently acts as a great relief to bathe the forehead with a sponge wrung out of water as hot as you can bear it. Repeat this as often as the sponge cools. When the head feels tired, it is refreshing to dash on the forehead some cool water, wipe it off and lie down for awhile. Closing the eyes for a few minutes at odd times during the day has a wonderfully beneficial effect, and will ward off many a headache if presisted in.
