A BOY'S MOTHER.

My mother she's so good to me,
Ef I was good as I could be
I couldn't be as good. No, sir,
Can't any boy be good as her!

She loves me when I'm glad er mad;
She loves me when I'm good er bad;
An' what's a funniest thing, she says,
See loves me when she punishes.

I don't like her to punish me;
That don't hurt, but it hurts to see
Her cryin,—nen I cry; an' nen
We both cry—an' be good again.

She loves me when she cuts and sews
My little cloak and Sunday clothes;
An' when my pa comes home to tea
She loves him' most as much as me.

She laughs and tells him all I said,
An' grabs me up an' pats my head;
An' I hug her an' hug my pa,
An' love him purt' nigh much as ma.

THE FORTIFICATONS OF OLD MANILA.

Special Correspondence of Scientific American.

Perhaps the first and most abiding impression upon entering old Manila is that of the strange commingling of the old and the new. As one approaches the massive walls, and before a near enough view can be obtained to distinguish the strangely assorted artillery that points threateningly over parapet or through embrasure, the impression is altogether picturesque and romantic. One conjures up the days of doublet and hose, haubert and halberd, and half expects to find the doughty Spaniard of the age of Philip and "good Queen Bess," keeping guard upon the broad stretch of the ramparts, or doing sentinel duty at the entrance gates. For those frowning walls have looked out upon river and bay for thrice one hundred years, and in the age when they were being laborously constructed the monks of the eastern hemisphere were yet busy putting the finishing touches to the glorious cathedrals of the old world. And right well did they build these old walls of Manila; for it is certain that masonry which stood up so well against the terrific impact of our nineteenth century projectiles must have been more than impregnable against the feeble assaults of medieval artillery.

On a near approach, however, the pleasing illusion is dispelled; for the sight of modern high powered weapons from the famous Krupp factory, and the wicked gleam of machine and rapid-fire guns, bring one rudely back from the romance of medieval times to the stern realities of our nineteenth century civilization.

Old and new Manila are separated by the Pasig River. The old town is entirely surrounded by a wall of masonry which is everywhere from 20 to 25 feet in height and of extraordinary thickness, varying, in fact, from 30 to 100 feet. On the side of the town facing the bay the wall extends parallel with the shore for nearly a mile. At the mouth of the Pasig River it turns sharply inshore, following the course of the river for about half a mile. It then turns and swings back to a junction with the walls on the water-front, this intervening section between the river and the bay being in the form of a semi-octagon, and serving to protect the town from attack by land. The whole circuit of the wall is thus seen to be about three miles.

Entrance to the town is had through a series of massive and extremely interesting old gates, some of which are still complete with drawbridge, chains, and hoisting machinery. They are eight in number, and while they have a general similarity, each has its own points of interest for the antiquary. Between the bay and the seaward stretch of the walls runs the Metelle—a boulevard of considerable note. Leading out to the Metelle are two gates, Puerta Portigo, located near the river, and close down to the great arsenal now occupied by our troops, and Puerta Sta. Lucia, farther to the west. These gates both date back to the middle of the last century, and both have drawbridges and encompassing moats.

On the land side, looking out toward the old Spanish barracks, is Puerta Real and farther toward the Pasig is Puerta del Parian. These two gates are almost facsimiles of each other. Each has outer gates and outer moats and fortifications. While both of them date back to early in the eighteenth century, they have been remodeled and rededicated at a much more recent date. The Del Parian gate contains some fine sculpture and bears the date of 1783, while the Puerta Real was remodeled and dedicated anew three years earlier. Both structures front on the Cascade Aquada, the fine highway which skirts the fortifications from the river to the bay. Beyond the Puerta de Espana this highway is known as the Avenue de la Magellanes, and it runs parallel with the Pasig to a point where the walls extend to the water's edge.

The walls of the old city are in perfect condition, despite their great age. They are, perhaps, the stronger on the bay side, and there the guns are thickly planted. Overlooking the entrance to the Pasig the old walls are also very formidable, and on the land side there are many outer walls and defences. They are constructed of solid masonry, and, unless they should be torn down, they will undoubtedly remain for centuries to come. The ancient moats, gates, and drawbridges, the parapets, ramparts, and gabionades, the portcullises and other constructions known to the military engineer of the days of Alva and Cortez, may be studied here in their full completeness.

Within the old walls is a succession of magazines and prisons. Here is located the prison of the famous inquisition, that horror of horrors, the "Dark Hole of Manila," where thousands of unfortunates have met their doom, or have been confined only to be led out to execution in the presence of the applauding thousands; out beyond the walls on the bloody La Lunetta.

On the walls of old Manila there are guns of all ages, patterns and calibers, from the old sixteenth century brass gun to the modern machine and rapid-fire gun. In front of the walls and covering the bay are the great Krupp guns, which could have done considerable damage to our fleet at the time of the bombardment of the city, but which all along maintained a discreet silence. These great guns are four in number, and back on the walls, below the Puerta Sta. Lucia, are two more of the same type but of a smaller caliber. Every gate of the old city was protected by guns of a modern pattern, assisted by others of a doubtful age. Along the bay there are dozens of muzzle loaders of all shapes and sizes, and the river was commanded by strong batteries. Many of the modern guns have been dismounted and are now stored away in the great arsenal, but the old guns still poke their noses from the walls and try to look dangerous. They are indeed an interesting study, and here one can get an idea of the great advances along the line of artillery made during the last three centuries.

The great arsenal located within the walls and close to the point is a most interesting place. Here are extensive magazines in which are stored hundreds of tons of powder and great quantities of munitions of war; for it must be remembered that the Spanish garrison of Manila were in no danger of an exhaustion of military stores. One sees dismounted guns by the dozens and many thousand stands of small arms. One of the most interesting things to be seen here is a modern machine gun, the invention of a Spanish artillery officer, which was constructed in the arsenal shops. It was used to pump projectiles into our lines at Malate, and it proved a model of its kind. Our experts are now studying its mechanism, which involves some novel ideas, and as a result we may have a new terror of warfare. Long lines of projectiles line the yards of the arsenal. Our artisans are now at work here turning out supplies for our army and navy. Old Manila itself is a curious old place built on a strictly Asiatic plan. Besides the fortifications and churches and public buildings, which form the principal part of the old city, there are queer Asiatic houses, with the upper stories projecting out over the narrow streets. The latter, be it said, are so narrow that they would not make decent alleys in an American city. While new Manila, just across the Pasig, is making rapid strides in adopting our American ways, the parent city, which has stood sentinel so long between the Pasig and the bay, has seen no change. It is still the same curious, sleepy old town, and it bids fair to remain the same for centuries to come.

Since that eventful morning of the first of May, on which the guns of an American fleet woke the echoes of this far-away spot, Manila has been the stage on which many and diverse people have played their parts. Our group of illustrations on the front page of this issue tells its own story. Here we see the work of our shells by sea and by land. The first illustration shows two of the Spanish gunboats undergoing repairs upon the slip at Cavite. Two other views show the work of shells and conflagration upon the decks of the Spanish fleet in front of Cavite. The guns are of the 4·7-inch type with which most of Montojo's ships were armed. Equally suggestive are the gaping holes torn in the old fort at Malate. The view of an insurgent battery is specially interesting, for it gives us a near glimpse of the uniform, accoutrements, and artillery of a native race which we may possibly be called upon to beat into submission to our authority. Let us hope we may be spared the necessity of imparting civilization to the Filipinos "by hypodermic injections with 12-inch guns."

As our readers look at the little cut of an insurgent gun and learn that it consists of an inner length of gas-pipe, inclosed with staves of wood which are clamped upon it with bandstof iron, 3½ inches wide by 2½ inches thick, they will agree that necessity is still the mother of invention.

ASSIGNEE OF MORTGAGEE'S SALE

OF A

Small and Desirable Farm,

Near Bark Hill, Carroll County, Md.

The undersigned, by virtue of a power of sale contained in a deed of mortgage from Simon Coppersmith and Elizabeth Coppersmith his wife, to David Bowers, dated July 20th, 1891, and recorded among the real estate mortgage records of Carroll county, in liber B.F.C. No. 31, folio 153, &c., and by virtue of an assignment thereof duly recorded, will offer at Public Sale, on the premises, on at 3 o'clock, P. M., all that parcel of land described in said mortgage, containing about 8 ACRES OF LAND, more or less. This property is situated near Bark Hill P. O., on the road leading from Uniontown to Union Bridge. The improvements thereon consist of a Two-story Weatherboarded Dwelling House, containing five rooms, with cellar under whole house, Bank Barn, Hen House, Hog House, good fruit, and a good Spring of water near house. This land is all cleared and in a fine state of cultivation.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23rd, 1899,

TERMS OF SALE.—Cash upon the day of sale, or upon the ratification thereof; but other terms may be made with the undersigned. For further particulars apply to Samuel D. Bowers, Linwood P. O., Carroll county, Md.

TRUSTEES' SALE

OF A

VALUABLE FARM,

In Freedom district, Carroll County, Md.

BY virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Carroll county, sitting in equity, passed in cause No, 3665, wherein James M. Pickett and others are plaintiffs, and Nicholas W. Pickett and others are defendants, the undersigned, trustee named in said decree, will offer at public sale, on the premises, situate about 1½ miles from Daniel P. O. and on the road leading from Daniel P. O. to the Washington road, on at 12 o'clock, M., all that tract containing 97 ACRES, 3 ROODS and 18 SQUARE Perches of land, more or less, and being the same land of which Warner Pickett, late of Carroll county, died seized and possessed. It adjoins the land of John T. Richardson and Columbus Conaway, and is improved by a two-story weather-boarded house, log barn, wagon shed and all other necessary outbuildings. The aforesaid tract of land was originally divided in two separate tracts, one tract containing 57 acres, and the other 40 acres, 3 roods and 18 square perches. The farm will first be offered in entirety and the highest bid held, after which the aforesaid two tracts will be offered separately, and if the proceeds of the two tracts will amount to more than the offer made for the farm in entirety, they will be sold in that way; on the contrary, should the farm offered in entirety bring a greater price than the tracts sold separately, the sale will be closed to the person who so bid.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 21st, 1899,

There are about 25 acres of good wood land on the 57-acre tract, as well as all the buildings on said farm.

There are about 12 acres of good wood land on the 40-acre tract.

TERMS OF SALE.—One-third part of the purchase money to be paid on the day of sale, or upon the ratification thereof by the court, balance in one and two years, the credit payments to be secured to the satisfaction of the trustee, and bearing interest from the day of sale.

REAVER'S.

WHERE AND HOW TO BUY SHOES AND HATS.

That's the question. There are sufficient places in Westminster to make a Shoe or Hat purchase but will that purchase meet your expectation? You want the latest in style and lowest in price. Twenty-five years in business has taught us that what the people want borders on the best always. We have learned from our experience in the markets, that the best need not be the highest in price. Now, for instance, you want a Man's Shoe. There's an endless assortment here to choose from. Experience is a dear teacher. It has taught that poorly constructed Shoes are dear at any price. We have an elegant assortment of Women's and Misses'

SHOE AND HAT

Button and Lace Shoes, patent tip or tip same, in welted and stitched soles. Then we have an elegant assortment of

Stiff and Soft Hats, in all the latest shades and shapes, in prices from 25c to $3.00. We are also showing a great many styles of Umbrellas and Satchels.

These goods, purchased from the manufacturers in large quantities, entitle the buyer to an extra discount. This we get and share with our customers.

Wall Paper! Wall Paper!

I wish to call the attention of my friends and the public in general to the fact that I now am ready to show one of the ever exhibited in this county, bought direct from the factory, in full bundle lots, so you get it only from second hands, no two or three profits coming off it. Of course the consumer pays them all. Sam Jones says it takes a pointer pup nine days to get his eyes open. I have known some people to get their's open in fifteen minutes in a wall paper deal. They thought it was two pieces instead of one, and the border they did not understand, &c. That is always their plea. Remember I am the only paper hanger in the county that carries a stock and don't have the expense of running a store, therefore I have no opposition. If you think I can't save you money, come and see me and bring size of your room, or send size by mail and I will tell you what your job will cost, and send samples and convince you that Gladhill's is the place to save twenty-five cents on a oa a dollar on all Wall Papers.

Finest and Cheapest Lines of WALL PAPER

L. GLADHILL,
iun-28-tf Westminster, Md

TAKE NOTICE.

Intending to reduce my stock I will offer

IMMENSE VALUES FOR CASH,

so that you will save Big Money by calling on me before making your purchases.

All persons indebted to me will please settle at once, as I want to close my books.

Very Respectfully,
nov-19-3m J. W. SHUNK.
