that wants to see you. I'll go and bring her in."

"Oh, maybe it's Annie!" Aunt Emily exclaimed, and the look of resignation in her eyes changed to one of joyous hope.

Ten minutes later mother and daughter were sobbing in each other's arms. When their emotions had subsided Annie drew the old rocker close to the bed and sat down, resting her hand on her mother's. They talked of the children, Clinton and home, and how on the morrow Annie was to take her mother home. Then there was silence for a time, broken only by the noise of the loose rocker.

"So, to-morrow I am going home to see the children again," Aunt Emily said, and a tear drop wet each cheek. She reached for the corner of the unbleached sheet, but the soft handkerchief of the daughter wiped them away instead, and the low voice responded: "Yes, mother, I am going to take you home in the morning. Clinton and I see things differently now."

Mrs. Mayes went early to her mother's room the next morning. She opened the door and walked toward the bed to awaken her. Aunt Emily's face was turned toward the window. Her hands were folded on top of the comfort, the able one above as usual.

"Mother!" Mrs. Mayes called, as she reached the bed, but the sleeper did not awaken. "Mother!" she repeated, as she laid her hand on the folded ones, then started back, gave a low scream and sank into the old rocker. Her mother was dead.

Aunt Emily's face wore a happy smile as she lay ready to be taken home. Her hands were folded over the black burial robe, as they used to be on the faded calico comfort, and clasped a bunch of autumn leaves that "foolish Ben" had brought from the woods. When she was carried from the house all the inmates gathered at the front gate for a last glimpse of one who had been with them seven years. They watched the hearse and carriage wind slowly down the hill, and waited for the last glint of sunshine on the ornaments of the hearse as it disappeared behind the poplar grove, before turning their tear-stained faces to the house.

Only "foolish Ben" spoke. "What you cryin' for," he said. "Don't you know she's goin' home with Annie?"

Take Care of The Eyes.

Don't think because you have good eyes they will bear all kind of abuse.

Don't use the eyes continually at close work, without occasionally resting them by looking off into the distance.

Don't hold the book nearer than is necessary for clear, sharp vision.

Don't make a practice of reading a type too small to be seen readily at 18 inches.

Don't attempt to read in a car or other jolting vehicles. It is a strain on the directing muscles of the eye.

Don't read while lying down. It causes an unusual strain on some of the external or directing muscles.

Don't read when very sleepy, as the accommodation and convergence are naturally relaxed, and the extra effort necessary for the unruly members to work may be shown by a congestion of the blood vessels of the eyeball.

Don't read facing the light.

Don't read in the twilight, or in badly lighted rooms.

No Polygamy for Him.

"No," he said, thoughtfully; "no polygamy for me."

"Well, I should say not," she retorted. "I wouldn't leave a hair in your head."

"Very likely," he replied, "but I wasn't thinking of that. I was thinking of wedding anniversaries. Poor Roberts! He has three a year. And suppose—just suppose—"

"Well?" she said, interrogatively.

"Suppose one of these polygamists should thoughtlessly marry at such intervals that he had a silver wedding, a china wedding and a crystal wedding all in the same year. And suppose he should thoughtlessly choose his wedding days so that the anniversaries all came in the same week, or even the same month; and then suppose that the birthdays happened along about the same time, and the children's birthdays, too, and when he got older the grandchildren's. No; no pologamy for me! Think of having a visit from one's wives' relatives during the holiday season! Oh, I don't envy Roberts or the Sultan of Sulu a little bit."

Useful Household Hints.

Two thicknesses of newspaper make a good lining for apple barrels.

To polish kitchen knives nicely, mix a little bicarbonate of soda with the brick dust and rub them thoroughly.

If feather pillows have an unpleasant smell, place them before a good fire and let them have a good, thorough drying.

Slate floors should be polished, rubbing first with a smooth, flat piece of pumice stone, and finally polish with rotton stone.

Books kept in ordinary bookshelves, and thus exposed to the air, will keep much better than those in bookcases with closed doors.

Tea leaves are good to sprinkle on all but very delicate carpets, before sweeping, as it prevents dust from rising, and also brightens the colors.

Why Not Cure Your Cough or Cold?

WESTMINSTER, April 10th, 1890.

MR. JOS. B. BOYLE:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but TEMPORARY RELIEF. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try YOUR Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost INSTANT RELIEF, but a PERMANENT CURE. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am, Truly yours,

EDWARD LYNCH.

REMOVAL OF

Matthews & Myers,

To the NEW STORE,
No. 80 East Main St.,

recently purchased by them, where they will carry on a

Wall Paper, Paper Hanging and WINDOW SHADE BUSINESS.

We are under no expense and are prepared to work at the so-called cheap Paper Hangers price to the high priced Baltimore dealers.

Don't let us be represented as having a big rent and lots of other expenses to collect from our customers, as that is out of the question now.

We can sell and Hang Wall Paper with any of them. We have on hand a big lot of 50 cent Window Shades at 25 cents per piece, to close them out. Get them while they last. Give us a call.
