Your Favr of the 26th is just handed me; you may depend I will send for the Things you mention in it —

The Restoration would have sailed in the Morning, if it had not been for the last craft Load of Corn, the greatest part of which was so damaged that it cannot be shiped; It plainly appears that it must have got wet sometime ago; so many rotten Grains are among it, and the rest musty; I do not know, whether a Bushel of it will be fit to ship in the Snow; I have been already obliged to purchase 800 Bushels in its Room, & dare say shall be obliged to purchase the whole Quantity. I have had three regular Surveys on it which has already Condemnd 700 Bus. as totally unmerchan=
=table; This Quantity at any Rate must be at the risk of the of the Persons who furnished it, and I shall be glad they would give Directions at it, as if they do not, it will be ~~formally~~ formally advertized & sold at Vendue for their Benefit; the Nt amt. of which, I shall only acco with them for; In the meantime Care shall be taken to recover it, it is already spread in Rooms very thin & in a day or two shall be put thro' a Fan: The Expence of which & the Storage, the Corn must pay; as soon as it is all out of the Vessel, I shall have the Surveys finished, & the Affidavit of the Master & one of the Hands belonging to the Schooner taken, Copys of which shall be transmitted you: I am exceeding sorry you should be involved in any Trouble at this matter but it is really too gross an imposition to submit to; The Skipper of the Craft says he told Mr Jury at the time he was receiving it, that the Corn was not good, but the other told him, he must take it; He says the Quantity he recd from Mr Sadler was very good —

Mr Herrett set off yesterday for yr Town by the way of Annapolis; I should be glad if Hinson's Money could be sent by him, as I shall be much in Want of it in a few days. If it is not recd time enough to come by him, I shall be much obliged if a Boat is sent on purpose with it

Mr Page desires me to ask you, if you had received any Bills for him from Mr Dickenson, & if you had, to desire you would send them over here immediately

Be kind enough to tell Doctor Anderson that I have already wrote to Bristol at his Tobacco
