heroic services of the brave men "who here gave up their lives that the Nation might live;" the many in that assemblage whose Fathers, sons, brothers and relations had taken an active part in the battle and helped to achieve the glorious victory, which was to make Gettysburg a household theme for all time to come; the cannon remaining in various redoubts, as they were on the days of the battle, grim but mute and silent reminders of the shot and shell they belched forth on those memorable July days; the field hospitals not yet freed of their groaning, patient sufferers—all these contributed powerfully to the effect which Everett's masterly address had upon the people, and made it seem as if nothing more could be said to add lasting importance to the occasion. It was after the close of such a magnificent and eloquent effort; when the magical spell of such an orator still possessed the hearts and had control of that vast multitude, that Abraham Lincoln arose and came deliberately forward to make the grandest, the most complete and memorable address ever delivered upon any occasion. We try to picture, and with memory's aid to summon before us again that vast concourse of people. In imagination we see the tall form of the President, his careworn face, showing the wear and the stress of the heavy burthen that was upon him, and yet so unconscious of self, so filled with heartfelt gratitude for what had been achieved on that field; so absorbed with recollections of the gallant dead, with a sympathy so profound and intense for those who had been bereft of near and dear ones in the struggle, that like a gleam of sunshine, his features lightened up and became aglow from the depth of feeling which possessed him, and as he stood erect, adjusted his spectacles, and slowly unfolded the crumpled manuscript, there seemed to go forth a mysterious, indefinable, all pervading influence, so that before he had completed the first sentence of that transcendent address his audience was thrilled as if by an electric shock, and its profoundest depth of feeling stirred as never before. He seemed to breathe a magical spell over his hearers, and when, with a voice singularly sweet, but so penetrating as to reach to the farthest limits of that vast assemblage, he said: "The world will little note, nor long remember, what we may say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work that they have thus far so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion, that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain; that the nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth," there ended an address which, for its eloquent and pathetic appeal to the living "to take increased devotion to the cause," that has never been excelled if equalled by any one, on any occasion. The suppressed emotion, the absorbed attention, the reverential awe with which he inspired his audience made one feel while he was uttering his eloquent tribute to the living and dead who struggled here that he was forever linking and indelibly associating his name with the glorious victory they won. In all the years to come, as Gettysburg becomes more and more the Mecca of our people, the spot to which they will go to strengthen their love and attachment "for a government of the people, by the people and for the people," so will this address of Abraham Lincoln, since engraved on the National Monument there, sink deeper and deeper into their hearts, and inspire our people with a loftier, a truer and better patriotism than they ever experienced before.

When Everett was delivering his address, it was felt to be the speech of a scholar, polished to the last possibility; that it was elegant and learned, and delivered with all the consummate grace of diction and force of oratory for which he was so justly celebrated; but that the all inspiring, almost supernatural, eloquent and thrilling words of Lincoln, coming from a heart burdened with cares, and surcharged with emotion for the loss of life and suffering caused on that field, mingled with thanksgiving for the victory won in behalf of the Union, would be imperishable, and go down the ages wherever the English language is spoken to be read and re-read, to be treasured and declaimed by thousands upon thousands, when no one would ever think of, much less read the scholarly address of Everett.

In the years to come, when not a trace is left of the bitter feelings engendered by our gigantic Civil War; when people of all parties and all shades of opinion, from every section of our re-united country, shall come to gaze upon the National Monument on Cemetery Ridge surrounded by the white headstones marking the resting places of thousands who fell on that bloody field "and gave the last full measure of devotion" to the country and its flag, they will pause to read again Abraham Lincoln's words sculptured thereon, and see in them a profounder significance, a greater depth of feeling and sympathy than was ever felt or thought of before, and

"As they shall walk across the battlefield where once the bullets flew,
And the green and bending grasses felt the fall of crimson dew."
Stolid and callous would be the heart not filled and all aglow
With the words that Lincoln spoke there seven and thirty years ago.

LETTER FROM SHAMOKIN.

In a previous article we spoke of the "breasts." This is the place from which the miner gets the coal. Breasts are of three kinds, viz.: wagon breasts, buggy breasts, and chute breasts.

The wagon breast is the end of the gangway where the miner and loads the coal into the wagon direct. When the inclination is not over seven degrees this method is used.

Buggy breasts are such as are worked by loading the coal into a small car (buggy) and hauling it to the gangway to be loaded into the wagon. This method is used where the inclination is not over 12 degrees. Breasts of this description are driven several hundred feet, in which case a double track and system of cables is so arranged that the full car going down the declivity will pull the empty back. The buggy will hold about a ton while a wagon holds three tons.

The chute breast has been described before. Here, on account of the inclination of the stratum, (it must be over 12 degrees) the coal when loose will flow to the bottom and can easily be loaded into cars by merely raising a slide. During the strike a great deal of coal remained in the chutes. A few "scabs" coined money in the mines which worked at that time. The companies gave each one working the privilege of loading all the coal they could at any breast they chose. In these particular cases the miners tapped the other fellows' chutes and in many cases made from $30 to $40 per day. Of course this was corporationized theft, but in strikes as in wars stratagem gives place to diplomacy.

A few months ago one of the miners here informed the head boss that there was much available coal in an abandoned mine. He was given permission to explore and as a result was the discovery of many filled chutes. He was allowed to work them, but so successful was he that his payroll in a few days became padded. Before the close of the month he was promoted to the position of boss at a fixed salary, while the company sent hirelings to finish his job. From this find alone several thousand tons of coal were secured at little expense and no labor. Each breast has a miner and two or more helpers. The miner must be a professional and before he is permitted to take a breast must pass the state board examination. The helper receives a stipulated salary—about $10 per week—while the miner gets more or less according as he strikes luck. Perhaps it is safe to say that the average miner does not make any more than his helper. He is spurred on, however, by the will-o-the-wisp hope, and the superiority of his position, hence all helpers look forward to the time when they too shall receive the title—miner. Not infrequently, however, the miner "fires a shot" which is a great success. Mr. Samuel Reed, a neighbor and city councilman, who is an ex-miner, told me a few days ago that he made a shot once that tore loose several hundred tons of coal, which kept his helpers busy loading for nearly three months. This was a big strike, but it is such things that spur on the miner, for he too, as well as other men, likes to play gentleman. At another time we may give a "chapter of horrors" in which we shall tell of a few of the dangers of mining or even visiting mines.

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

These are days of records and of the beating of records. Benson's Porous Plaster, for quickness of action and thoroughness of cure, has no records to beat except its own.

Benson's Plaster, always the best, always the leader, is to-day better than ever. It sticks to the skin but never sticks in its tracks. It marches on.

The people not only want to be cured but cured quickly—and Benson's Plaster does it. Coughs, colds, lumbago, asthma, bronchitis, liver and kidney complaints, and other ills approachable by an external remedy, yield to Benson's as ice does to heat.

Neither Belladonna, Strengthening or Capsicum plasters are to be compared with Benson's. People who have once tested the merits of Benson's Plaster have no use for any other external remedy.

More than 5,000 physicians and druggists (and a thousand times as many non-professional persons) have called Benson's Plasters one of the few (!) home remedies that can be trusted.

Fifty-five highest awards have been made to it in competition with the best known plasters of Europe and America. Better proof of its merits is inconceivable. Be sure to get the genuine.

For sale by all druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States, on receipt of 25c. each.

Why Not Cure Your Cough or Cold?

WESTMINSTER, April 10th, 1890.

MR. JOS. B. BOYLE:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but TEMPORARY RELIEF. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try YOUR Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost INSTANT RELIEF, but a PERMANENT CURE. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am, Truly yours,

EDWARD LYNCH.

For Sale by all Druggists and Merchants in the Country. PRICE 25 CENTS. feb-24-4t

WANTED.

Having bought the Smallwood Creamery, of Mr. E. B. Arnold, I wish to say to the farmers of the community that I am prepared to handle 10,000 lbs. of Milk daily, and will pay the highest market price therefor, on or before the 15th of each month.

I ask the co-operation of the farmers. I know, from twelve years experience, that I can do you more good than you can have done for your dairy product in any other way. I would be glad to have any of the farmers call to see me to acquaint them with the business. Will furnish cans at wholesale price.
