Mr. Wm. A. Dickey, president of the Ashland Company, states that a woolen factory at Powhatan would have been objectionable to that company, because the waters of Gwynn's Falls, which are not too abundant, would have been used in washing wool or of goods in process of manufacture. Important Ordinances.

The Common Council of this city passed an ordinance at its meeting on Monday night, which was approved by the Mayor, granting to Charles E. Fink, Esq., and Dr. Frank T. Shaw a street franchise for the construction of a railway through the town. The streets named are Main, Washington avenue, Green, Church, Bond and Pennsylvania avenue. The franchise is for forty years, and is to be free from taxation for 10 years from the date of the ordinance. Any power for propelling cars may be used except steam. Work must be commenced on the railway within nine months, and cars must be running within fifteen months, otherwise the grant will be null and void. Provision is made for the use of the tracks by other roads which may be chartered in the future. The passage of the ordinance has given rise to much speculation as to the termini of the road, and it is rumored that they are to be Washington and Gettysburg. The franchise is to Mr. Fink and Dr. Shaw and their assigns, or the survivor and his assigns.

The full text of this ordinance and of another, in relation to hogs, which was passed at the same session of the council and approved by the mayor, will be printed and distributed throughout the town, for the information of the citizens. The ordinance last named limits the number of hogs which may be kept within the corporate limits to six, "by any person or persons, in any pen or pens, building or buildings, enclosure or enclosures." Both ordinances have excited much interest and discussion among citizens.

Macalister preached a very able discourse on the Resurrection. The subject was, "Intimations of Immortality." The services were opened by the choir singing an anthem, composed by Frank Leslie, "The Lord is risen indeed." The beautiful ritual of the Reformed Church was read by the pastor and responded to by part of the congregation. The choir chanted the Lord's prayer. Notwithstanding the threatening weather the church, with 500 seating capacity, was nearly filled with attentive listeners. The little town of Tyrone feels elated by the advent of an Angel, in its midst, certainly a long felt want. We welcome him to his new home, and bespeak for him success in his new field of labor. On last Tuesday night while returning from Bachman's Church, Geo. C. Harmon's horse took fright in the woods. The wheels of the vehicle struck a stump and upset it and dumped George out. The horse started to run, but with great presence of mind Mr. Harmon threw the lines around a nearby tree, checked the frightened animal, and brought her to a sudden halt. Fortunately no damage was done other than a slightly bruised hand that came very forcibly in contact with the tree.
