The dwelling house and barn of Dr. Cyrus L. Grossnickle, a veterinary surgeon and farmer, near Taylorsville, were destroyed by fire, which broke out in the dwelling, about daylight on Sunday morning last. Owing to the early hour not many of the neighbors of Dr. Grossnickle arrived on the scene in time to save much of the contents of the building, although some furniture was gotten out of the house and the stock out of the barn, and by strenuous exertions a hog pen, a corncrib and a meat-house were kept from burning. Dr. Grossnickle was with difficulty prevented from exposing himself to great peril in his efforts to save some of the contents of his residence. The fire was first discovered by Mrs. Grossnickle, who saw plastering dropping from the wall in a room on the first floor. She threw a bucket of water upon it and hastened for another, but in the meantime the flames broke out in the second story, and as the house was a frame one weatherboarded it was soon a mass of seething flames. The fire speedily spread to the barn, causing its destruction as stated. The origin of the fire is not fully known, but it is supposed to have been smouldering during the night, as no fire had been made in the morning. It is difficult to give an accurate estimate of the loss, which, however, was probably not less than $2,000. Insurance of $900 on the dwelling, $200 on the barn and $500 on furniture and vetrenary surgical instruments was placed with Mr. James E. Smith, of this city, in the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company.

Manchester Items.

Rev. and Mrs. S. M. Roeder celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their marriage on Saturday evening last, at their home on North Main street. The affair, although not a surprise in some respects, was so in regard to the many presents received by them. About 90 persons were present and enjoyed a pleasant evening in social chat and merriment and music proved quite a pleasing factor in the entertainment. About 8.30 o'clock the first group was invited to the dining room, where a table was groaning under the weight of cake, &c., while the ladies were serving ice cream in abundance. A fine large lamp was the most prominent among the many nice and useful presents received. Many cordial congratulations were extended to the Rev. and lady. It was a late hour ere the last good nights were said, and the family left to record the evening's pleasures as among the most happy events since their stay in this charge.

His age was 49 years. His remains were laid away to rest in a family lot here on Friday morning, Rev. S. M. Roeder officiating. He was a son of the late Uriah Sullivan, of this district. A number of improvements in the way of new buildings are either under way or are about to be started, in our village. Mr. B. F. Shriver is adding to his handsome dwelling a new dining room, the one now used in that capacity to be added to the parlor, and he is also erecting, about a hundred yards from his house, a dwelling for a coachman and a stable for his driving horses. Mr. John Burgoon has his two-story storehouse nearly completed, and Messrs. George W. Yeiser and Ephraim Bish are both about to erect new barns.

Mr. Conrad Rusher, with an idea to the improvement of his poultry, about a month ago purchased of Mr. Nelson Koontz a fine Indian game rooster, at least a bird that had all the appearances of a rooster and could crow like a fighting cock. Under the circumstances, therefore, the astonishment of Mr. Rusher, when, a few days ago, he beheld his new rooster leading from under the pig pen a fine bevy of young chicks which he (or she) had just hatched and was behaving towards them as a good mother should, may well be imagined. Mr. Rusher is now exercised to know what kind of a fowl he has really bought and is wondering whether he ought to claim a rebate from Mr. Koontz for the difference between the value of a hen and a rooster.

Robert Lee Bair, a student of the Reformed Theological Seminary, Lancaster, Pa., filled the pulpit of St. Mary's Reformed Church, Silver Run, last Sunday. At the communion service in this church, on the last Sunday in April, the offering amounted to $115, and will cancel in full the classical apportionment.
