They watched with eager faces to see how much it would bring. The most that anyone would give was four cents. Settled misery showed through the calm of Betty's countenance. The bidding was a little dull, and Joe shambled forward with the old arm chair that he had sat in so long. It was the chair that Betty had brought out to the door for him on summer evenings for forty years. It was the chair that she had placed for him at the warm hearth when he came in from the woods of a winter evening, chilled and tired. It was the chair that had been a factor in almost every scene of their married life. It waited for them the day, fifty years before, when he had brought her, a young and rosy bride, to the farm that his ancestors had left to him. It was dear to him, and he knew that it was dear also to her, for he had seen her sitting in it, knitting, by the sunny south window for more summers and winters than his excited fancy could count.

As Mr. Canfield lifted the chair to the attention of the crowd he saw Betty start forward with a white, eager face. Then she stopped, and the rich blood mantled her face like the face of a blushing school girl. She hesitated a minute, and then pushed her way through the crowd.

"Don't sell pa's chair," she cried. "I want to keep it!"

An unfeeling neighbor—for there were some in Oxford county—laughed under his breath. "What does she want it for?" he asked.

Everyone heard it. Joe turned as pale as death and he held his breath. No one had ever dared to treat Betty that way before. Betty was pale, too. Lawyer Canfield saw his opportunity and said:

"Because she loves him! What do you suppose?"

The man laughed again.

"Course I love him," said Betty, stoutly. "Ain't he the father of my children? I ain't ashamed to own I love him."

Again the man laughed. Lawyer Canfield blessed him under his breath.

Joe Stevenson pushed angrily through the crowd, and demanded to be shown the man who had laughed at Betty. He had forgotten that he was about to desert her himself. He had defended her all his life. He would do it now. Lawyer Canfield pulled Betty and Joe into the empty bedroom and shut the door.

"Joe Stevenson, there is time to stop the action. You both love each other. For God's sake kiss her and make up."

Betty was standing with downcast eyes, her cheeks still flaming from the anger the laugh had given her. All of a sudden she put her apron to her face and sobbed.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said Lawyer Canfield, when he again mounted the barrel and turned toward them, "Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson have decided not to sell any more goods. They will continue housekeeping. (There were tears in his honest blue eyes.) Those who have bought goods and wish to keep them may take them. But the money will be refunded to any who wished to return them."

The people understood, and nothing was taken away. When all the money had been returned there were four cents left over. The man who had bought the coffeepot never returned it.

It was with a great deal of satisfaction that the neighbors on the surrounding mountain farm saw the blue cloud of smoke rise from the chimney of Joe Stevenson the next morning.

Bridget's Grievance.

The wife of a clever detective is said to have powers nearly equal to those possessed by her husband. Not long ago she began to notice that dimes and quarters were daily disappearing as if by magic from the "change purse" in which she kept silver for small purchases. She was inclined to suspect one of her two maids, a sulllen Irish girl, but was unwilling to accuse her. After some thought she wrote on a slip of paper: "Neither Bridget nor Celia must take any money from this purse." This slip she put into the purse with some silver and awaited developments.

Two days later Bridget came to her and gave "warning."

"What is the matter?" asked her mistress, innocently.

"I'll be going to another place," said Bridget vindictively, "and it's yourself that knows the rayson. I'll not stay in a house where I'm accused of stealing money of a little ould purse that's nivver had more than two dollars in it since I took service here!"

Virtue of Goat's Milk.

Goat's milk has the advantage over cow's milk of being free from tubercle bacilli, and can be taken quite fresh, says the Paris Journal of Medicine. Contrary to general opinion, the taste is not disagreeable if the animals are properly selected and properly kept, being considered of a more delecate flavor than cow's milk. The quantity of fats, caseine and salt varies greatly in the different varieties of goat. For infants and dyspeptics the weaker mllk may be chosen, while the stronger answers better for debilitated subjects.

No other president of the United States within the experience of the present generation of voters has had such evenly distributed support, regardless of sectional geographical lines, as was given to William McKinley in November, 1900. His greatest gains, compared with 1896, were on the Pacific Coast—19,000 in California. In Utah the McKinley vote increased from 13,000 to 47,000, in Colorado from 26,000 to 93,000, in Montana from 10,000 to 25,000, in Idaho from 6,000 to 27,000, and in Washington from 39,000 to 57,000,

Does Any One Care For Father.

Does any one care for father?
Does anyone think of the one
Upon whose tired, bent shoulders
The cares of the family come—
The father who strives for your comfort,
And toils from night unto day,
Although his steps ever grow slower,
And his dark locks are turning gray?

Does any one think of the due bills
He's called upon daily to pay?
Milliner bills, grocery bills, doctor bills—
There are bills of some kind every day.
Like a patient horse in a treadmill,
He works on from morning till night,
Does any one think he is tired?
Does any one make his home bright?

Is it right, just because he looks troubled,
To say he is as cross as a bear?
Kind words, little actions and kindness
Might banish his burdens of care.
'Tis for you he's ever so anxious,
He will toil for you while he may live;
In return he only asks kindness,
And such pay is easy to give.

Corns on the Feet.

From the Youth's Companion.

A corn is an overgrowth of the horny layer of some portion of the skin of the foot induced by friction or undue pressure in one spot by the shoe. It is situated generally on a prominent portion of one of the toes, more commonly the little toe, but may be on the sole of the foot or even on the ankle bone.

It begins by an increase of size of the papillae in the deeper part of the skin and induces an increase in the production of the scarf skin, or horny layer. The scarf skin soon becomes inordinately thick, and, the pressure from the shoe continuing, is pushed back against the enlarged papillae, causing their final atrophy.

This formation of a corn affords a curious illustration of the defeat of nature's well meant efforts to prevent trouble, for the increased thickness of the horny layer is intended to afford protection to the enlarged and tender papillae, a purpose which would be well accomplished did the process stop here. But the friction by the shoe keeps up the irritation, and more and more the horny covering is manufactured until instead of affording protection it is actually the cause of all the pain.

After a time the spot where the corn is seems to acquire a bad habit, and the formation of the corn will go on even after the offending shoe has been discarded.

The first thing to do for a corn is to get new shoes that are so snug as not to rub the foot anywhere and so loose as not to make pressure in one spot more than in another.

The top of the corn may be pared with a sharp knife, extreme care being taken, especially in the case of the aged, not to cut the sound skin, or it may be filed down to the level of the surrounding skin, or the entire corn may sometimes be loosened with a dull knife blade or by the finger nail and extracted from its bed.

When this cannot be done, removal may be facilitated by moistening the corn every other day with glacial acetic acid, the softened part being subsequently scraped away with a dull knife or a small file. A salve containing salicylic acid applied every night will also freequently loosen the corn so that it can be pulled out. This is the basis of many of the popular corn plasters.

A soft corn, which is merely a corn that is always moist on account of its location on the inner surface of one of the toes, should be treated by keeping a piece of absorbent cotton between the toes so as to prevent masceration and by bathing it frequently with strong alum water.

Lord's Prayer on a Pearl Button.

An engraving company of New York issues a sample of miniature engraving that is rather an interesting piece of work. It is a duplication of the Lord's Prayer from a larger design and is engraved on a pearl button on a space nineteen-hundredths of an inch high and thirteen-hundredths of an inch wide. In the composition there are 15 lines. There are 24 letter spaces, making each letter approximately ten one-thousandths of an inch high and five one-thousandths of an inch wide. Notwithstanding the smallness of the letters, they are as perfectly and accurately formed as the letters of the large original, and it is even possible for a person of keen sight to read the composition without the aid of a magnifying glass.

Uncle Sam's postoffice monopoly is always in debt, notwithstanding its immense revenue. But the increase of receipts during the twelvemonth past has outrun even the imaginations of the Congressional Post Office committee, and the final showing of the department for 1901 promises to be favorable accordingly. April receipts from fifty large offices show an increase over the corresponding month last year of $554,401.

Hick's Forcast for June.

June will come in at the culminating stages of a storm period which begins the last day of May. Full Moon at extreme south declination on the second will intensify electrical storms, but will cause a drift of atmospheric tides from the north, and bring down over the country a marked change to cooler immediately at the close of the storms. A return of storm conditions will appear on and touching the 4th to 6th, showers resulting from the falling barometer and higher temperature on those dates. Rising barometer and cooler, fair weather will be the natural order behind the disturbances of this period, lasting progressively from about the 6th to the 8th.

The regular Vulcan storm period extending from the 8th to the 13th, leads fully into June solstice perturbations, with a Mercury disturbance also central on the 12th. Moon is on the celestial equator on the 9th, thunder storms and much general and continuous lightning will illuminate the evenings and nights for days in succession. About Sunday the 9th to Wednesday the 12th many electrical storms, with rain and possible violence, will most likely occur. The annual June showers are naturally to be looked for from this time until near the end of the month, but storms of wide extent and dangerous intensity are quite likely at the centers of the Vulcan and Mercury periods, due from the 15th to 18th, the Moon being in perigee on the 14th, at greatest north declination on the 15th and at new moon on the 16th; very warm, muggy weather will prevail and heavy rain storms will visit localities, especially regions along the Atlantic Seaboard. But we fear that even at this solstice period—the most favorable time ordinarily for general rains—there will be a marked shortage of diffused rainfalls, and that many interior sections in the grain growing states will feel thus early the effects of drouth.

The Vulcan storm period extending from the 20th to the 26th will bring the culmination of the June solstice storms. For a number of days there will be a repetition of intense and vivid electrical storms, with cloudburst here and there. Some narrow localities will have too much rain and local floods; but immediately after we pass out of the June rains it will be found that the greater part of the country is short of moisture, and general rains will be needed to mature the crops in most central, western and northern sections. We reiterate our belief that regions near the Gulf will not be visited by such deluge as during the years past, and that drouth even there will begin to take the place of floods during this season.

Some of the most decided storms of the month are probable about Friday the 21st, to Tuesday the 25th. This period is exactly at the time when Earth reaches the turning point in its orbit, and when all the elements of our globe and atmosphere feel the shock and revulsion of Earth's backward movement. Just at the crisis of these things, the Moon is on the celestial equator on the 22nd, a fact that greatly tends to increase lightning and thunder storms at all times.

We close the forecasts with the warning we have often given for June; let our readers mark what we say: Do not take shelter under trees on the approach of thunder storms.

We caution our readers against the danger of losing their new cut grasses by having them wet with June showers.

Worth Knowing.

For soiled spots in wall paper, try rubbing with dry cornmeal or stale bread.

Keep a small square of carpet to carry about while cleansing to set a pail of water on. The precaution will save blemishes on polished floors or carpets.

Crude petroleum, well rubbed in, is as simple and good a polisher as one can find for floors which have been oiled, varnished or painted.

If a mark has been made by the dripping from the water faucet in a marble washbowl, scrub it off with pulverized chalk moistened with ammonia.

When you mop the floors, add to each pail of warm water two tablespoons of carbolic acid. It leaves the wood in a sweet and healthy condition.

The Banishment of Rats.

With spring house cleaning practically in sight, and the systematic housekeepers sure to begin with the cellar, a suggestion relating to the banishment of rats is worth repeating. This is, that in the whitewash to be applied to the cellar walls and ceiling, copperas should be mixed to the point of producing a light yellowish tint. If in addition to this plan, lumps of copperas are placed about the cellar, immunity from rats is practically assured. Copperas, it should be emphasized is a deadly poison, and should be used with that fact borne fully in mind.

Wall Paper!
Wall Paper!
I wish to call the attention of my friends and the public in general to the fact that I now am ready to show one of the Finest and Cheapest Lines of
ever exhibited in this county, bought direct from the factory, in full bundle lots, so you get it only from second hands, no two or three profits coming off it. Of course the consumer pays them all. Sam Jones says it takes a pointer just nine days to get his eyes open. I have known some people to get their's open in fifteen minutes in a wall paper deal. They thought it was two pieces instead of one, and the border they did not understand, &c. That is always their plea. Remember I am the only paper hanger in the county that carries a stock and don't have the expense of running a store, therefore I have no opposition. Is you think I can't save you money, come and see me and bring size of your room, or send size by mail and I will tell you what your job will cost, and send samples and convince you that Gladhill's is the place to save twenty-five cents on a dollar on all Wall Papers.

of a Valuable and Desirable Roller Milling Property; also a First-Class Limestone Farm with Large Limestone Quarries Thereon, and also an Excellent Farm, near the Villages of Wakefield and Medford, and the Town of New Windsor, in Carroll County, Maryland.

BY virtue of the power of sale contained in a mortgage from Edward E. Roop to Charles W. Slagle, dated September 4th, A. D. 1895, and recorded among the real estate mortgage records of Carroll county, in liber B. F. C No. 37, folio 262 &c., the said Charles W. Slagle, the undersigned, will offer at Public Sale, on WEDNESDAY, the 12th day of June,

A. D. 1901, at eleven o'clock A. M., at the mill property known as the David Roop Mill, and being the same property hereinafter first mentioned and described, all the land described in said mortgage, as follows:

First. All that parcel of land composed of parts of tracts called "Cornwall or "Addition to Cornwall" and the "Resurvey on Mill Lot," containing more or less, situated about 1½ miles northeast of the villages of Medford and Wakefield, and about 3½ miles northeast of the town of New Windsor, and about 4½ miles northwest of the City of Westminster, in Carroll county, in the State of Maryland, adjoining the land of Aaron Bixler and the two farms herein also advertised and hereinafter described, and is known as the Roop Mill Property, where the flour milling business was conducted by the late David Roop of A., and later by his son, the said Edward E. Roop. The improvements thereon consist of a large and comfortable two and a-half story Brick Dwelling House, a large Mill Building, with both steam and water motive power, and proper and modern machinery, equipments and attachments, all in first-class working condition, being all that milling establishment with all the buildings thereon lately occupied and used by Edward E. Roop, and supplied with the machinery necessary to carry on a roller flour and general milling business, including engine and boiler. The other improvements thereon consist of a large Frame Barn, Wagon-shed, Corn-crib, Frame Store Building and a recently built Creamery, with all the necessary machinery and appliances necessary to conduct the general creamery business, also a two and a-half story Weatherboarded Frame Dwelling House, Saw-Mill and Cooper Shop and all other necessary outbuildings. There is an Orchard on the premises, and also a due proportion of meadow land. All the buildings are in first-class condition. The property is desirably located in New Windsor district, on the Westminster and New Windsor county road and very near the intersection of that road with the public road leading therefrom to Uniontown and called the Roop's Mill and Uniontown road, is convenient to schools, markets, churches and the Western Maryland Rail Road, and is now in the occupancy of Edward E. Roop and Wm. Keller. This is an excellent Mill property and one of the most valuable in the county.

Second. All that parcel of land, part of the two contiguous tracts of land called "Briarwood" and "Cornwall Resurveyed," containing

65 ACRES, 1 ROOD AND 28 SQUARE

Perches, more or less, known as the Nicholas Ogg Farm, situated partly in Uniontown district and partly in New Windsor district, in Carroll county, in the State of Maryland, on the public county road leading from Roop's Mill, the property first above described, to Uniontown, in said county and State, is about ½ mile north of the village of Wakefield, 2½ miles northeast of New Windsor, and about 1½ miles from Wakefield and Medford Stations on the Western Maryland Railroad, and adjoining the lands of Dennis A. Smith, Aaron Bixler, Edward Beard and the farm until recently owned by Joseph A. Stouffer, and also adjoins the Roop Mill property above mentioned and described. The improvements thereon consist of a new weatherboarded two and a half story Dwelling House, Stable, Hennery, Hog-house and Dairy, and other outbuildings, with water convenient to the house and stable, and running water on the farm. There is a due proportion of wood and meadow land on the farm. The land is of a first-class limestone quality, in a high state of cultivation, and produces large and excellent crops and has upon it a very superior limestone quarry and several draw kilns with large capacities. This farm is one of the best in the county and is desirably located and convenient to schools, churches, markets and the Western Maryland Railroad. All the buildings are in fair condition. The limestone quarry is a very large one and could be worked to yield good returns. This farm is now occupied by William H. Eckard as tenant.

Third. All those tracts of land called "Cornwall," "Addition to Cornwall," Loss Recovered," "Haines' Chance," "The Resurvey on Haines' Chance," "The Resurvey on Good Fellowship" and "Mill Lot," containing Richardson, Aaron Bixler, Daniel Young and also adjoins the farm next above described and called the Nicholas Ogg Farm.
