TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

in Freedom District, Carroll County, Md.

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Carroll county, in equity, passed in a cause wherein Minerva R. Selby and others are plaintiffs and Joshua Arrington and others are defendants and being equity cause No. 3910, the undersigned, duly appointed trustee by said decree, will offer at Public Sale, on the premises, on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12th, 1901,

at 1 o'clock, P. M., all that tract or parcel of land situate in Freedom district, Carroll county, Md., on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, near Henryton, and two and one-half miles from Sykesville, and containing 130 ACRES OF LAND, more or less.

This property is improved by a Bank Barn, Wagon Shed and Corn House—the other improvements having been lately destroyed by fire. It adjoins the land of the late John Hawthorne, and has about 100 acres under good cultivation, with the rest in timber, and has water in every field. This property is convenient to churches, schools and stores and offers a desirable investment.

Terms of Sale as prescribed by the decree.—One-third cash upon the day of sale or the ratification thereof by the court, the residue in two equal installments, payable, respectively, in six months and one year from the day of sale; or all cash, at the option of the purchaser, the credit payments to be secured by the notes of the purchaser, with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale.

AN EPIGRAM.

—:o:—

Delinquents all—to you I write—
To you my thoughts I now indite,—
To you I would a lesson give,
And teach you how in peace to live.

To pay the Printer, you must know,
Is that which honest men will do;
For every one, possessed with sense,
Will for his paper recompense.

As black as midnight is the heart
Of him who'd try to do his part
In cheating those who furnish news,
And strive their patrons to amuse.

Yet many such are to be found—
In every city they abound;
And towns of smaller note we find,
Contain some folks this way inclined.

Then learn this lesson, and be wise—
The man who to his utmost tries
To pay the Printer, always shares
The best of joys, unmixed with cares.

But if you cheating still pursue,
The "Devil" claims you as his due;
So all Delinquents warning take,
Reform your ways for conscience sake.
—J. H. Moore, in Manheim (Pa.) Sentinel.

THE HIGHLAND LOVERS.

—:o:—

The sun had sunk behind Ben Nevis' towering triple peak, and the mountain cast a deep shadow over the castle of Inverlochy and far out upon the placid blue waters of Lochiel.

A merry group of highland lads and lasses were congregated upon the green-sward before the castle's walls, threading with joyous steps the mazes of the dance, to the inspiring notes of the shrill bagpipe.

All was mirth and glee, when an untoward accident disturbed the harmony of the scene. A band of highlanders descended the mountain pass, driving before them a herd of cattle. A bull, shaggy and untamed, broke from the herd and with a ferocious bellow dashed toward the circle of dancers.

With shrill cries they broke up their sport and fled in all directions. The infuriated animal singled out one fair girl, probably attracted by her scarf, the prevailing color of which was red, and closely pursued her.

Though fear lent her wings, the mad beast gained upon her. He was close at her heels, his head leveled for the plunge, when a tall highlander sprang before the flying girl, grasped the bull by the horns and, with a dexterous movement, hurled the huge animal upon its back. Ere it could rise to its feet again the drovers, who had been swarming to the rescue of the girl, bound it securely with cords. When goaded to its feet again, the bull moaned plaintively and looked around bewildered and subdued by its rough tumble.

The villagers of Inverlochy thronged around the man who had performed this great feat of muscular strength, and the fair girl he had saved timidly thanked her deliverer. They all gazed curiously upon him, for it was now perceived that he did not wear the tartan of the Campbells and was a stranger.

He was a boy in years, not over twenty, and yet fully developed, standing fully 6 feet 4 inches in height, clad in highland costume, which displayed his well proportioned form to great advantage, and wearing an eagle's feather in his bonnet, the symbol of a chief. His target, or shield, "round as the moon," covered with ox hide and studded with brass knobs, hung around his neck. The hilt of a huge two handed claymore peeped from under his left arm, and a long dirk rested in the sheath upon his right thigh. Clad in this picturesque garb, with long, flowing locks of light brown hair, a ruddy complexion and a bright blue eye, he was a type of those ancient warriors of the Gael whom the bard Ossian has immortalized in song.

"What is thy name, pretty lassie?" he asked the girl, when she had thanked him for the good service and stole a glance of admiration at the frank, open face and stalwart form of her preserver.

"I am called Annie of Lochiel," she answered timidly, yet with a sweet smile that had a strange fascination for the young highlander, who found it impossible to withdraw his gaze from that winning face.

"Are you a Cameron of the Clan Lochiel?" he asked eagerly and with interest.

"Not she!" broke in one of the men of Inverlochy, who wore the badge of an under chief. "She is a Campbell, and we call her Annie of Lochiel because she was born by yonder water. Her mother was a McLean; she died when Annie was an infant. Her father was Duncan Campbell la[redacted]rl of Mor-
