No Public Demand For It.

A bill is pending in the Maryland Legislature which, if it shall become a law, will impose upon all railroads within the limits of the State the legal obligation of providing separate passenger cars for the colored people. A law of this character has been in force in Virginia for several years and Maryland legislators who favor the bill appear to be ambitious to have this State imitate her neighboring sister commonwealth. There does not seem to be a great popular demand for this legislation, in this section of the State at least, and the necessity for it is not very apparent. It may be otherwise in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore, where there is a large colored population, but the law would work injustice to railroads which carry few colored passengers, as they would be compelled to maintain separate cars or separate compartments of sufficient capacity to accommodate the maximum number of such passengers, while, as a rule, they would be used only by the minimum, and thus leave numerous unoccupied sittings. The Western Maryland Railroad, for instance, runs through a section of country in which the colored people do not constitute a twentieth of the population. The white people are not clamoring for a law to compel this road to provide separate cars for the few colored people who travel on the regular trains. Some of the branch lines of this road run for long distances through Pennsylvania, where the law would be inoperative. It would be a manifest hardship to compel the road, under these circumstances, to maintain separate cars for the few colored people who patronize it. To the whites, in localities where colored people are numerous, and many of them travel on the railroads, a law such as that proposed may be desirable, and the colored people would not object to it; but it is not necessary on roads along the northern border of the State.

The Virginia law has been considered a nuisance in its application to roads running through the northern section of the State and into other States north of it, and special legislation to relieve such roads from the effect of the law has been suggested. There is no good reason why the Western Maryland, the Northern Central and the Frederick and Pennsylvania Line Railroads should not be excepted from the provisions of the bill pending in the Maryland Legislature in the event of its passage by that body.

The Comptroller's Report.

The Appendix—Part II—of the report of the Comptroller of the Treasury of Maryland, Dr. J. W. Hering, contains statistics of of considerable interest to the people the State, being made up of the fiscal returns of clerks of courts, registers of wills, State's attorneys and others. These returns indicate that, for the most part, the receipts of the offices named are absorbed almost entirely in the payment of the salaries of assistants and for other expenses. Most of the returns are for the year 1900. The clerk of the Criminal Court of Baltimore had receipts of $18,545.44, with an excess of fees of $6,583.73. The clerk of the Court of Common Pleas of Baltimore had receipts of $18,986.71 and an excess of $11,340.63. Some of the other courts of the city returned a small excess of fees and some nothing. The receipts of the Superior Court clerk's office were $63,009.37, all of which, exceept the sum $3,243.58, which was retained for unfinished work, was consumed in paying deputies' salaries and other expenses. The deputies' salaries aggregated $52,066.32.

In the counties a few of the clerk's offices reported small sums in excess of expenditures, Carroll county leading, with $465.91. The other offices which paid small sums into the treasury were: Anne Arundel, $16.25; Dorchester, $216.50; Frederick, $28.98; Prince George's, $172. Following is the statement for the clerk's office of this county in detail:

RECEIPTS.

From all sources	$7,173.75

EXPENSES.

Dr. J. H. Billingslea, clerk	$3,000.00
Geo. A. Miller, deputy	1,450.00
John R. Martin, deputy	925.00
Wm. D. Lovell, deputy	790.00
N. H. Baumgartner, extra clerk	35.00
Stationery, Blank Books, &c.	165.12
Vanderford Bros., printing, &c	244.50
F. A. Sharrer & Co., desk, &c.	88.80
Blanks, freight, expressage, &c.	59.72
State	465.91

In a number of the counties the income was not sufficient to pay expenses and give the clerk the maximum salary of $3,000. In the large county of Washington, while the total receipts from all sources were $6,664.08, the clerk received but $1,975.25 as his compensation, the deputies having been paid $4,226.23. The sum paid into the treasury by Dr. Billingslea comes back to the County Commissioners of this county and goes toward the liquidation of the bonds issued to pay for the fireproof wings built to the court house nearly twenty years ago. For some years following the erection of these additions the Commissioners received considerable sums from this source and the debt was rapidly reduced, but for a long time it has been only slightly diminished. It now, we are informed, amounts to $4,000 with a considerable amount additional for interest paid by the Commissioners. With the clerk's office realizing receipts of over $7,000 per annum it ought to be wiped out in a few years.

None of the offices of registers of wills outside of Baltimore City paid considerable sums into the treasury, the receipts, in most instances, not amounting to sufficient to pay the registers the maximum salaries. The Baltimore City office paid to the State Treasurer, in 1900, $17,923.52; Jos. D. Brooks, register for Carroll county, $54.25; Chas. E. Saylor, Frederick county, $75.21; Thos. E. Hilliard, Washington county, $30.73. None of the other counties reported an excess of fees.

Surveys are to be made by the Western Maryland Railroad Company for a new route through the Blue Ridge Mountains, to show what could be done to increase the train load limit by any purchaser of the road. The proposition would involve the building of more than 25 miles of new line, including a tunnel under the mountain, 10,000 feet long. The new route would leave the main line between Monocacy and Frederick Junction and unite with it west of the mountain.

For the Sentinel.

Length of Public School Year.

The difference in length of time the Public Schools are kept open in the various counties of Maryland is sufficiently great to call for some comment. From recent reports of Examiners I learn that the schools are kept open ten months in the year in five counties of the state, namely: Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford, Kent and Queen Anne's. Nine counties of the state have school nine or nine and a-half months in the year. In the counties of Carroll, Caroline, Frederick, Dorchester, Somerset, Washington and Worcester, the public schools are kept open seven and a-half months in the year. Two counties have school less than seven months; in one of these, Garrett, they teach only five months.

We might propose to account for this difference in one of four ways: first, the relative proportion of property in the county; secondly, the position in which the county is situated in the state; thirdly, a better understanding in some counties as to the proper length of time children should go to school; or fourthly, on the ground that the citizens in some counties have not given sufficient attention to the facts which determine the length of the school year for each county.

The difference cannot be accounted for on the ground of poverty, for Frederick and Carroll are among the most prosperous counties in the state, and yet these have only seven and a-half months of school.

Without attempting to give the philosophy of the difference in length of school year, it may be apropos to state that the fourteen counties which keep their schools open nine months or more, pay annually into the treasury a county school tax ranging from twenty-five to thirty-two cents on the hundred dollars' worth of property in the county. Those counties having a school year of seven and a-half months or less, pay for the same purpose a smaller rate on the hundred dollars' worth of property.

Among those interested in public education there is a growing sentiment in favor of a fixed school year for all the counties in the state; or more properly, they are in favor of a minimum school year. There is some question as to the length of such year; but as very many counties at present have about nine months of school, it is thought that the School Law, if changed at all, should be so modified as to give each county in the state a minimum school year of about nine months.

I think I can see indications of a sentiment growing in Carroll county in favor of extending the school year, so that we might have three and a-half instead of three terms of school.

I am quite sure that if our County Commissioners felt that the people really wanted an extension of the school year, and would be willing to express themselves in its favor and give it their financial support, then the Commissioners would readily take the proper steps to give us eight and a-half months of school.

There is no county in the state more deserving than Carroll, and I should like to see our county stand nearer the front, enjoying the privileges and blessings of free education to as great an extent not surpassed by any other county in the state.

One cent on the hundred dollars will give each child in the county an additional week, and five cents will extend the school year a half term. I would like to see 8½ months of school next year.

President Hood on the Sale of the Western Maryland Railroad.

In a letter written to Dr. W. F. Pentz, of the city delegation in the Legislature, President John M. Hood, of the Western Maryland Railroad, gives his views on the pending agitation for the sale of the road.

The letter is in reply to an invitation to attend a meeting of the delegation and expresses his views relative to the pending bill which prohibits the sale of the road without the consent of the voters of the city. Among other things Gen. Hood says:

"As persons in authority seem so determined to sell the city's interest, and buyers seem so numerous and eager to bid, I would suggest that they not only be permitted but required to show their hands within a stipulated number of days, to be named by the city council, or those whom it may delegate to receive and report upon such proposals. As this work will require at least a fortnight, your delegation will appreciate the importance, indeed, the necessity, of the Legislature deferring action for a reasonable time upon the bill in question."

President Hood comments upon the present desirability of the Western Maryland road and its importance to the city.

"It must be recognized," he says, "that by the great railroad consolidations and control of coal fields, industrial establishments, &c., in their interest, which have recently taken place, the field for railroad expansion has been greatly narrowed. Therefore, if any of the would-be purchasers are willing to pay a good round sum for the interest of Baltimore city and Washington county in the Westesn Maryland system; will guarantee the construction of the Western Maryland Tidewater Railroad; will establish connections westward with important railroad and coal interests, as at least one of the parties would seem to be in position to do, then, of course, all obstructive legislation should be stayed until the matter has been thoroughly developed, considered and passed upon by the city and county authorities."

Circulation Bulletin on the San Jose Scale.

An important circular bulletin is now being distributed by the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station and State Horticultural Department. The circular is by Prof. A. L. Quaintance, State Entomologist, on "Directions for Winter and Spring Treatment of the San Jose Scale." The advantages of spraying trees in the winter and early spring are pointed out, and in a general discussion of the probable effect of the scale on fruit-growing in the future, it is stated that the growing of fruits will become more and more a definite business, since the indifferent orchardist, who is not willing to provide for the control of the insect, as is now done in the case of other injurious species, must eventually lose his orchards. On the other hand, those who go into fruit raising with the idea of giving the trees proper treatment with respect to spraying, pruning and cultivation, will doubtless find a much larger margin of profit than heretofore. The outlook for fruit culture along the most improved lines is considered very hopeful.

The fact is recognized that the San Jose scale is with us to stay and must, in general, be provided for along with other routine orchard work. Three spraying mixtures are discussed, namely: whale oil soap, crude petroleum and kerosene. Full directions are given as to the time and manner in which these insecticides should be applied, and directions are given for the purchase and proper use of spraying apparatus. Those who are interested in this subject should send for a copy of circular 36, addressing the State Entomologist, College Park, Md.

An imperfectly insulated electric wire in the power house of the Jersey City, Hoboken & Paterson Traction Company, in Paterson, N. J., started a fire, on Sunday, which destroyed twenty-six blocks of buildings in the heart of the city, entailing a loss of $10,000,000, and rendering a thousand people homeless. The city hall, all the national banks, five churches, the High School building, the business houses and many fine residences, including that of Ex-Gov. Griggs, located in the section burned over, were totally destroyed.

The Hagerstown Morning Herald has been awarded by Clerk Parran the contract for six years to do the Court of Appeals printing. The printing amounts to between $7,000 and $10,000 a year.

Free Membership in the Maryland State Horticultural Society.

All persons interested in the cultivation of fruits, vegetables and flowers should by all means become members of the State Horticultural Society. There is no charge whatever as the expenses of the society are provided for by an annual appropriation from the State. The annual reports of the society contain much valuable information, and are sent free to all whose names are on the roll book. To become a member you simply have to write a postal requesting the secretary to enter your name as a member. You will then be entitled to all the privileges of the society, and, as a taxpayer, you cannot afford to miss becoming a member, and thus receive your share of the benefits from the State appropriation. The 4th annual report will soon be ready for distribution, and you should send in your name at once, so that a copy may be sent you. Be sure, in giving your address, to give the post office and county. Address A. L. Quaintance, Secretary, College Park, Md.

Mr. Frank C. Andrews, vice-president and principal stockholder of the City Savings Bank of Detroit, Mich., was permitted by the cashier, Henry R. Andrews, to overdraw his account in the sum of $300,000, and the cashier also certified his checks to the extent of $700,000, with no funds in hand to offset them, making an even million dollars' loss to the institution. The deposits in the bank aggregate $3,062,405.30, many public funds being among them. Included in these are the entire fund of the Board of Education of Detroit, amounting to $467,000; county auditor's deposits, $130,756, and county clerk's fund, $22,000. A few days ago the widow of Gov. Pingree received a check for $127,000, for insurance on her husband's life, which she deposited in the wrecked bank. Many working people were among its depositors. Its looks as if they will lose a third of their deposits. It is said that three months ago Frank C. Andrews was a millionaire. But he took to plunging speculation, with adverse luck, and has sunk his fortune and, with the weak connivance of the cashier of the bank, has robbed a great many people.

Rev. W. J. Floyd, a minister of the Methodist Protestant Church, died early Thursday morning, at his home, near Crisfield. He was pastor of Mariners' Church, near Crisfield. He was born and reared near Centreville, Queen Anne's county, and was 74 years old. He received his education in the public schools of Queen Anne's county, and in 1871 was admitted to the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church and appointed to the Patapsco circuit. At different times he held pastorates in York county, Pa., and at Ellicott City, Washington, Baltimore, Liberty, Frederick and other places. He leaves a widow and two daughters.

The Baltimore Sun of yesterday says: President John M. Hood, of the Western Maryland Railroad, will, it is understood, be elected president of the United Railways and Electric Company at its annual meeting to be held on Wednesday, February 26. His election to that position, it is further understood, has been agreed upon by the more influential men in the United Company. A month ago it was reported that President George R. Webb was about to retire from the United, in which he accepted the post of chief executive last summer, to look after his interests in the Central Real Estate and Trust Company, which he controls. Recently Mr. C. I. T. Gould was made president of that corporation, and it was stated at the time that his election was but temporary.

The 113th annual session of the Pennsylvania Conference, United Brethren in Christ, will convene Wednesday, March 5, 1902, in Allison Memorial Church, York Pa. Bishop J. S. Mills, of Annville, Pa., will preside. At the General Conference held in Frederick last May the boundaries of the Pennsylvania Conference were changed so as to include the larger part of what was known as the Maryland Conference. According to the year-book the conference has 172 organized churches, 82 itinerant ministers, and 16,892 members.

Now Senator McComas and Messrs. George R. Gaither, Jr., and Leon Greenebaum are in the field as representatives of a proposed purchaser of the Western Maryland Railroad. It is generally understood that the West Virginia Central and the Wabash systems are behind them as principals, and that the purpose is to incorporate the Western Maryland in a great trunk line railroad, with Baltimore as its eastern terminus.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., son of President Roosevelt, who is at school at Groton, Mass., has been ill during the past week with pneumonia, but is reported as being very much improved. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt were with him for several days, the former returning to Washington Thursday afternoon, leaving the lad practically out of danger.

One of the winter incidents in Frederick county was putting a frame house on runners and moving it three miles. This was done by J.W. Legore, who moved the building from the Claggett estate, in Woodsboro, to his lime works on Wednesday. The sled which was drawn by eight horses was 25 feet long and 15 feet wide.

The board of managers of Springfield Hospital held its annual meeting on Wednesday in the Governor's office in Annapolis. The Governor presided and there was a full attendance. Dr. J. Clement Clark, the superintendent, read his report of his year's work. The present staff of employees and officials was reappointed.

The Empire Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, and eleven persons lost their lives, either in the burning building, or by jumping to escape the flames. Eight or ten more were very seriously, and others slightly, injured.

An immense ice-gorge has formed in the Potomac River at the Cumberland Valley Railroad bridge, one mile below Williamsport, and the stream is closed as far up as the ford.

A carefully prepared plot to burn Victor Hall, in the business section of Snow Hill, was discovered in time to prevent a disastrous conflagration.

Reports from the tidewater counties of Maryland show a general blockade of the tributaries of the Chesapeake by the ice.

The Highways of Maryland.

The SENTINEL has received the Second Report on the Highways of Maryland, for 1900 and 1901, by Harvey Fielding and A. N. Johnson, in connection with the Maryland Geological Survey. Wm. Bullock Clark, State Geologist. A cursory glance at its contents seems to indicate that it contains much interesting and valuable information in relation to the subject of highways. The report is made with especial reference to the operations of the Highway Division of the Geological Survey. These operations were confined to a few counties—Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Harford, Howard and Prince George's. The Division was not called upon for assistance by the other counties. Statistics are given of the expenditures for bridges and road repairs in all the counties for the years 1899, 1900 and 1901, showing an annual average of nearly $800,000 for these purposes in the whole State and about $20,000 in Carroll county.

The Western Maryland Railroad office at Waynesboro, Pa., was blown open by burglars, on Wednesday night, who got $4 from the safe and $1 in pennies from a chewing gum slot machine.
