THE BEDTIME KISS.

O, mothers, so weary, discouraged,
Worn out with the cares of the day,
You often grow cross and impatient,
Complain of the noise and the play;
For the day brings so many vexations,
So many things going amiss;
But, mothers, whatever may vex you,
Send the children to bed with a kiss!

The dear little feet wander often,
Perhaps from the pathway of right;
The dear little hands find new mischief
To try you from morn until night;
But think of the desolate mothers
Who'd give all the world for your bliss,
And, as thanks for your infinite blessings,
Send the children to bed with a kiss!

For some day their noise will not vex you,
The silence will hurt you far more;
You will long for the sweet children voices,
For a sweet childish face at the door,
And to press a child's face to your bosom
You'd give all the world for just this,
For the comfort 'twill give you in sorrow,
Send the children to bed with a kiss!

Cultivating an Orchard.

J. L. Irwin in The Epitomist.

Sod is a detriment to an orchard. Trees require a cool, moist, rich soil. Cut through bluegrass sod, even after a heavy rain, and you will find the ground hard and dry. An artificial fertilizer would find little chance to reach the roots of the trees. There are several kinds of orchard grasses that are widely advertised, but none of them have the advantages of red clover. The roots keep the surface loose and open, the growth and deposit of leaves give shade and moisture and mulching. The rain sinks directly into the soil. By turning the clover under every two or three years, the soil will receive a dressing of the best fertilizers.

But while clover probably possesses the most good points of all grasses, cultivating and raising some vegetable or root crop between the rows of trees is doubtless the best care an orchard can have. It keeps down the weeds, stirs the soil thoroughly, and enriches the ground with a twofold purpose, to benefit the crop and also the trees. A friend who had an unfruitful orchard stumbled upon this knowledge. His potato field bordered the orchard, and as he lacked room he ordered the first three rows of trees plowed up. The next season he was surprised to find a fine crop of apples on the trees that had been plowed around. The rest of the orchard was as barren as usual. He extended his experiment and soon had the entire orchard under cultivation, and one of the finest apple orchards in the country. Of course it is troublesome to raise potatoes in an orchard, but it certainly pays to do so. The farmer who is a success utilizes every foot of ground, and studies how to get the greatest return for the soil and labor.

Giants of Small Stature.

Once more the strongest man in the intercollegiate world is what would be known in ordinary descriptive words as "a little fellow." Arthur Tying, who has just sent the all-round test record upon almost 300 points, is the smallest and least striking of the Harvard competitors. His superiority, as attested by himself and his examiners, lies in his nerve, agility and perfect physical balance.

C. J. Herbert, intercollegiate champion of two or three years ago, was even smaller than Tying. He too was of Harvard. Allis, of the University of Minnesota, now dethroned by Tying, is but five feet five inches in height.

"Good things," says the old saw, "come in small packages." The truth of this proverb may be applied to men in the matter of the physical development obtained by wise and systematic work—by the mingling of sanity and discretion with "gumption."

No one of these little strong men of the colleges is a monstrosity. Each of them points the moral of Chief Surgeon Kimball's recent report from a United States Army Department on the general lack of stamina on the part of the youths under 22 years of age.

A Flemish artist has produced what is said to be the smallest painting in the world. It is a picture of a miller mounting the stairs of his mill, and carrying a sack of grain on his back. The mill is depicted as standing near a terrace. Close at hand are a horse and cart, with a few groups of peasants idling near by. All this is painted on the smooth side of a grain of ordinary white corn. Those who have seen it are loud in their praise of it. Though it is drawn with perfect accuracy, it is necessary to examine it under a microscope. It does not cover over a half inch square, and is in many respects one of the most remarkable art products of the day.

Miss Rural—"And you were never in the country during the season for husking bee, Mr. Snappy?"

Mr. Snappy—"No. The idea! How do you husk a bee anyway?"

The little son of a country editor was being introduced to his new baby sister. "Did you get her on advertising, too, papa?" he asked.

Watch the Hogs Carefully.

From the Nebraska Farmer.

A hog that does not care for its corn is an object of suspicion. It should at once be separated from the herd. Both the sick pig and the herd, which are as yet apparently well, should be thoroughly disinfected—themselves and their yards, nests and feeding troughs—and put on a laxative, cooling diet. On a failure of off-its-feed pig to recover at once, or the appearance of further disorders in the herd, resort immediately to stringent measures to cure hog cholera—for the chances are that your herd has the fatal disease, whether the disease is known to be in the neighborhood or not, or whether or not you know that they have been subject to direct infection.

We are convinced that every farm on which swine are kept should be provided with a dipping tank for swine, in order to keep the stock free from lice and skin diseases by an occasional dipping, and especially to disinfect the hogs in case of a threatened outbreak of cholera. The dipping tank is a comparatively cheap appliance.

Rough on Chickens.

In an Ohio town this year the African Methodist Episcopal church of that district held a conference. The colored population of the little town made great preparations to entertain the visiting clergymen. For a week the town was filled with colored pulpit orators.

A few days after the conference closed its sessions one of the leading women of the town drove out to Pea Ridge to purchase chickens of Aunt Hanna, who had supplied the family for years. Aunt Hanna, coming to the gate said:

"I'm sorry, Miss Allie. I aint got a chicken left. Dey all done enter de ministry."

Without self-restraint the whole order and beauty and worth of life are destroyed. A well-balanced character implies an all-round effective control. One unbridled passion is not only a failure at a single point, but is an indication of failure at the center also. In the best there are evil tendencies, and evil desires, that are ever claimant; so that in the ordinary conduct of life the habit of self-restraint is essential, if a straight course is to be steered, and even if fatal shipwreck is to be avoided. A weak, undisciplined nature, however naturally sweet and gentle and pure, is sure to meet some day a concourse of circumstances, or an overwhelming temptation, which will end in moral disaster. We constantly underestimate the power of a trained and restraining will, not only over outside circumstances, but also over the inner nature, amending constitutional defects, checking impulses, impelling to right courses of action, and thus altering the very character. Like every other faculty, the will needs to be educated and strengthened by the exercise of itself.—Rev. Hugh Black.

Cicily, a shorthorn cow, recently of the Queen Victoria herd in England, was sold in Chicago last Thursday for $5,000 to J. J. Robins & Sons, of Horace, Ind. The animal cost Queen Victoria $4,000 a few years ago. Twenty other cows and bulls realized an average price of $1,320. These are record figures for shorthorn cattle for the last twenty-five years.

A petrified forest covering an area of one hundred square miles, has existed for centuries in Arizona. Thousands and thousands of petrified logs strew the ground, and represent beautiful shades of pink, purple, red, gray, blue and yellow. One of the stone trees spans a gully forty feet wide.

Three hundred persons in London earn a living—and several of them are growing rich—by providing meals for the cats of the metropolis, which they deliver regularly once, twice and thrice a day, as may suit the owners of the pets.

An oak tree of average size, with seven hundred thousand leaves, lifts from the earth into the air about 123 tons of water during the five months it is in leaf.

The Liberty statue in New York is 151 feet high, the pedestal is 155, and the total height above low-water mark is 305 feet 11 inches.

A Sheep dog has the heaviest brain of any dog. It averages 29½ ounces. A spaniel's brain averages 18 ounces only.

NOW LOOK OUT!

"Take care of yourself," say our friends. "I'll try to," we answer. We do take a little care, yet in spite of warm clothes, rubbers and mackintoshes, an army of people were bowled out by pneumonia and other lung and chest diseases last winter. They caught cold, neglected it, let it fix upon them, were torn by coughs, choked by inflammations and congestions, wasted by fever, tired out by pain and then gave up the fight. The hour you realize that you have a cold on the chest, place a Benson's Porous Plaster where the pain or oppression is felt. If you think two are needed make it two. No harm if you were covered with them. They act quickly and prevent the engorgment of blood in the organs. In this way—with ordinary caution as to exposure—you will break up the cold and avoid a serious sickness. No other applications, or any other form of treatment, will accomplish this as certainly and speedily. Benson's Plasters have a distinct and positive action and are curative to the highest degree. Use them with the same confidence for coughs, muscular rheumatism, the grip (back and chest) and all similar ailments. Women, who are chief sufferers from cold weather complaints, should keep these plasters always within reach. Get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

Are there any boys or girls in your home? If so do you want them to grow up familiar with the best literature and art, and with all their best impulses quickened? There is a way to do it, at an expense of less than one cent a day,—a way to have in your home the greatest educational influence of our time.

"St. Nicholas for Young Folks" is the medium—a magazine absolutely unequalled in the literature of the world. It is recommended by educators everywhere,—it contains only the very best and most helpful and entertaining literature, and it is illustrated by the greatest of American illustrators.

some new features are to be introduced into this famous periodical—one is the printing of long stories complete in a single number,—no serials. A splendid group of stories by the best living writers for young folks has been gathered for this purpose.

"NATURE STUDY"

is now a great feature of St. Nicholas. The young readers ask questions and they are answered in a department called "Nature and Science." Private schools take the magazine for this alone. The "St. Nicholas League" is an organization of St. Nicholas readers wherein prizes are offered for the best pictures, stories, poems, etc.

Wall Paper!
Wall Paper!

I wish to call the attention of my friends and the public in general to the fact that I now am ready to show one of the ever exhibited in this county, bought direct from the factory, in full bundle lots, so you get it only from second hands, no two or three profits coming off it. Of course the consumer pays them all. Sam Jones says it takes a pointer pup nine days to get his eyes open. I have known some people to get their's open in fifteen minutes in a wall paper deal. They thought it was two pieces instead of one, and the border they did not understand, &c. That is always their plea. Remember I am the only paper hanger in the county that carries a stock and don't have the expense of running a store therefore I have no opposition. Is you think I can't save you money, come and see me and bring size of your room, or send size by mail and I will tell you what your job will cost, and send samples and convince you that Gladhill's is the place to save twenty-five cents on a dollar on all Wall Papers.

Finest and Cheapest Lines of WALL PAPER

Why Not Cure Your Cough or Cold?

WESTMINSTER, April 10th, 1890.

MR. JOS. B. BOYLE:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but TEMPORARY RELIEF. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try YOUR Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost INSTANT RELIEF, but a PERMANENT CURE. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am, Truly yours,

EDWARD LYNCH.
