SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1902.

It is said the New York Central Railroad, owned by the Vanderbilts, has combined with the Pennsylvania to hamper the purchasers of the Western Maryland Railroad in their plans to create a great trunk line to tidewater by this route. The N. Y. C. and Pa. Companies are mighty organizations, but they will find a large contract on their hands if they seriously undertake to crush the promoters of the plans involved in the acquisition of the Western Maryland. They may also provoke unpleasant reprisals. Some intimation of this is given in a recent issue of the Philadelphia North American, which says that "Mr. Gould and his Wabash system are believed to be behind an enterprise to parallell the Pennsylvania Railroad in Pennsylvania. This enterprise is said to be connected with the Philadelphia and Western Railroad Company, which made application on Monday to the Chester County Court to file bonds to secure damage to property owners along its proposed route. The charter authorizes the construction of a railroad from Philadelphia to Parkersburg, and it is stated that the intention is to build to Pittsburg.

President Roosevelt is exhibiting his customary energy in his alleged determination to urge upon Congress the passage of laws to regulate and restrict the combinations of trade and business interests tending to create such monopolies as are generally spoken of as trusts. Congressman Charles E. Littlefield, of Maine, who is said to be familiar with the constitutional difficulties in the way of efficient legislation, it is alleged has been in conference with the President on the subject, and is to prepare a bill to be submitted to Congress at the next session, for the purpose of carrying the views of the Executive into effect. It is very doubtful, however, whether, under existing constitutional limitations, anything really effective in legislation can be accomplished. The proper method of proceedure is to submit an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, giving to Congress the power, by explicit authority and not by indefinite and doubtful implication, to regulate and control, by proper legislation, monopolies, trusts and aggregations calculated to interfere with the public welfare. The desired end will never be reached except by this method, and attempted legislation for that purpose will probably be only a waste of time and effort.

Aguinaldo a Coward.

Aguinaldo has been set free, but is afraid of his own countrymen, and asks the United States authorities in Manila for protection against them. The cause of his apprehension was the assassination of the Filipino General Luna, by his order. He feared Luna as a possible rival in the dictatorship of the Philippine Islands, and had him treacherously assassinated. His victim was a better man than he and had many friends and a large following. Aguinaldo has good reason to fear the vengeance so richly deserved at the hands of these friends of Luna. His ferocious and treacherous nature was displayed in causing his rival's death by assassination, and his appeal to the Americans for protection against his own countrymen reveals its cowardly side. He is an ambitious and avaricious fellow, whose character Admiral Dewey, who had abundant opportunities of comprehending it, recently pictured in his testimony before the Senate Philippines Committee. And this assassin and thief, for that is what Dewey practically described him to be, is the man whom most of the Democrats—and some of the Republicans too, for that matter—have been regarding as the prototype of Washington. The great "Father of His County," whose purity of purpose and integrity of character were never stained by an unworthy act, and whose personal courage was tried and tested in many scenes of extreme peril, was all that Aguinaldo is not, and those who undertake to place him on the level of this unworthy Filipino should blush with shame for the comparison.

The Free Silver Snake Still Wriggles.

The free silver snake still wriggles in the Democratic fold. It is evident that, while it may be scotched, it is not killed. This was demonstrated by the action of the Democratic State convention of Missouri, held at Springfield on Tuesday for the purpose of nominating candidates for Judges of the Supreme Court. When the committee on resolutions reported it was soon discovered that its report contained no reference to the platform adopted by the Democratic national convention at Kansas City, in 1900, in which there was an explicit declaration in favor of the free coinage of silver, at the ratio of 16 to 1. The omission precipitated a controversy and the final adoption of the following resolution:

"That we, the Democrats of Missouri in convention assembled, do hereby indorse the principles of the Democratic party as enunciated in the National Democratic platform of 1900 in Kansas City."

Democratic editors in this part of the country urged the Democratic voters in 1900 to support Col. Bryan because, whatever might be his views on the subject, the question was settled and the gold standard established. The action of the Missouri convention indicates that, although two years have elapsed since Col. Bryan's last campaign for the Presidency, his followers have not abandoned their faith in the doctrine of free coinage. It further indicates, also, that they form a majority of the party in that State as they probably do in all of the States west of the Mississippi, as well as in some of those east of it. Gold Democrats, who have been felicitating themselves upon the elimination of the silver question from their party contests, will understand from the action of the Missouri convention that it is still a very live issue as a party question, and likely to destroy the harmony of Democratic counsels. It is an issue upon which many Democrats may be trusted to sustain a sound currency, but upon which the party, as an organization, is unsound. The country cannot afford to delegate authority, nationally, to a party so largely contaminated with this heresy.

Corn and tobacco plants at Stewartstown, Sell's Station and other localities in York county were cut to pieces by a hailstorm on Tuesday.

Consul to Magdeburg.

The many friends of Col. Wm. A. McKellip, in this county and elsewhere throughout the State, were highly pleased and elated by the announcement, on Thursday afternoon of last week, that he had been appointed Consul to Magdeburg, Germany, by the President of the United States. It was known to some of Col. McKellip's very intimate friends that President McKinley intended to appoint him to a foreign consulate and that President Roosevelt had also signified his intention to do so. President McKinley's sad death delayed the appointment, of course, but his purpose has now been amply fulfilled by his successor, to the great gratification of those who have so earnestly insisted that this Maryland Republican soldier should be called to represent his government abroad. Among these are Senator McComas and Representative Blakeney, who deserve the thanks of Carroll county Republicans particularly, for their faithful and earnest efforts in behalf of one of their number who for long years bore the burden of active efforts in behalf of the Republican party in the county, where the odds were so great as to make the cause apparently hopeless. The appointment is not only a just recognition of Col. McKellip's consistent and sturdy Republicanism, but of the claims of the old veteran soldiers of the State as well. The G. A. R. of Maryland was a practical unit in urging the appointment and is correspondingly gratified by the honor conferred on a member of the order. Everybody in Carroll county may justly feel proud that one of her sons has been called to such an honorable station under the government of the country, Col. McKellip being the first citizen of the county ever called upon to serve in that capacity.

SKETCH OF COL. MCKELLIP.

Col. Wm. A. McKellip was born in Taneytown and came to Westminster in 1855, while still in his minority, and was for a number of years a deputy clerk in the office of the clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll county. In 1862 he recruited Company A, and parts of Companies C and F, of the Sixth Maryland Regiment, Volunteer Infantry, and was, we understand, tendered the coloneley of the regiment, but declined and took a commission as 2nd lieutenant, but was promptly promoted to a captainey and soon made major and then lieutenant colonel of the regiment. In this station he was with the regiment in Virginia with Milroy's command when the latter was well nigh surrounded by an overwhelming force and made an exceedingly difficult retreat. In this movement Col. McKellip rendered valuable service. His military service was cut short by injuries received by the fall of his horse from which he was thrown, at the battle of Winchester, and by the explosion of a magazine on Maryland Heights, by which he was disabled and from which he has been a severe sufferer at times during all the intervening years. His disability was of such a character as to necessitate his retirement from active service and he was honorably discharged November 23rd, 1863, after having served upwards of fifteen months as lieutenant colonel of the regiment.

At the election a few days prior to his retirement from the military service Col. McKellip was elected clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll county and held that office until 1867, when he, like all other Republican officers in the State, was retired with his term uncompleted, by the adoption of a new constitution framed principally for that purpose, as the penalty of their devotion to the Union.

Col. McKellip had been admitted to the bar and, soon after his retirement from the clerk's office, formed a law partnership with the late Judge John E. Smith, whose sister, Miss Annie Smith, he had married some years previously. This partnership continued, with unvarying business success, until Judge Smith was re-elected to the bench in 1882. Col. McKellip then became the senior partner of the law firm of McKellip & Clabaugh, a connection which lasted eight or ten years. Subsequently he removed to Washington, where business interests required his presence, but three years ago returned here and has since been engaged in the practice of law, except for six months spent in Southern Europe.

In 1869 Col. McKellip was the Republican candidate for Comptroller of the Treasury. In 1879 he was the Republican candidate for clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll county, against Dr. Frank T. Shaw, and was defeated by a very small majority on the face of the official returns. The Democratic party majority at that election was largely in excess of that by which Col. McKellip's competitor was declared elected, and the integrity of the small majority against him was questioned. In 1891 he was again a candidate for the clerkship and again largely reduced the Democratic majority.

During President Grant's administration Col. McKellip was appointed one of the United States Commissioners to the Vienna Exposition. He visited and traveled over Europe at that time, with Rev. James W. Reese, Ph. D., as his traveling companion. He has visited Europe several times since then and by observation and study has become familiar with the duties of the consular office.

Col. McKellip has been twice married, his first wife having died many years ago, leaving one daughter, Mrs Campbell, who now resides in Washington.

The consulate to which he has been appointed is an important one. Magdeburg is the center of the beet sugar section of Germany and is a rapidly growing city. In 1871 its population, including its garrison and suburbs, was between 114,000 and 115,000. In 1895 it exceeded 214,000 and at this time has increased to about 250,000. It is a strongly fortified place and has had a tragic history. After a desperate siege and gallant defence during the 30 years war, in 1550-51, it was finally taken by Tilly, who, exasperated by his losses and its stubborn resistance, destroyed the city except its magnificent cathedral, and put 25,000 of its inhabitants, nearly its entire population, to death. Luther, when a student, spent a year in Magdeburg, and supported himself by singing on the streets of the city.

The salary of the consul is $2,000 per annum, with fees which will add $500 to $1,000 to the amount. There is also an assistant consul at the place.

Col. McKellip is thoroughly deserving of the good fortune that has befallen him. No man has more unselfishly served his party than he, many times at a serious personal sacrifice of time and means. For years succeeding the Civil War he was active in every political campaign, in this county and out of it, traveling night and day and speaking at meetings in all parts of the county. The writer was often with him on these occasions and speaks with knowledge when he says that all this was done without fee or reward and at Col. McKellip's own personal cost and charges. That his services have at last received a measure of the recognition they have deserved is doubly gratifying to those who are familiar with the facts related.

Democratic State Central Committee.

The meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee, which was held in Baltimore on Wednesday, was not altogether harmonious. A set of resolutions, previously prepared, was submitted to the coumittee and might have passed without question; but Boss Rasin appeared on the scene and notified the committee that they were not to his liking. They were changed to suit him, though not without some friction.

There was contention, also, over the representation to be allowed the two city wards which form a part of the Second Congressional District. Prior to the reapportionment four city wards were attached to the district. Their total representation in the district convention was six, or one and one-half for each ward. Senator Robinson, of Harford county, contended that the representation be reduced to one for each ward, or a total of two votes from the city in the convention. He argued that with the city divided into four legislative districts each ward would be entitled to one and one-sixth vote in legislative district convention. He maintained that the same representation should apply to the Congressional convention. The two city wards would, therefore, be entitled to two and two-sixths votes in the convention. Since two-sixths is less than one-half, he argued, the fraction should be dropped and the representation should be two votes.

Friends of Hon. J. Fred. C. Talbott, who is expected to be the Democratic nominee for Congress, were content to have the representation heretofore recognized, three votes for the two wards, but the claim was made that each ward should have two votes. It was decided to allow the two wards three votes. This may hereafter give rise to some interesting deadlocks in Congressional conventions. The district now comprises the two city wards and Baltimore, Carroll and Harford counties, with twenty delegates all told. Of these the city wards and Baltimore county will have ten and Carroll and Harford ten. It is easy to see, by this arrangement, how a tie may occur at any time in a convention, by Baltimore county and the city wards voting together against Carroll and Harford counties.

The committee named the following dates for the Democratic conventions:

First District—Ocean City, September 4.

Second District—Havre de Grace, August 28.

Third District—Manhattan Hall, Baltimore, September 11.

Fourth District—Russell Hall, Baltimore, September 11.

Fifth District—Cross Street Hall, Baltimore, September 11.

Sixth District—Cumberland, September 4.

The Western Maryland Railroad.

At a meeting of the new board of directors of the Western Maryland Railroad, in Baltimore, on Tuesday, several changes in the directorship were made. Messrs. George B. Baker and Leon Greenebaum resigned and Messrs. George J. Gould and John W. Gates, of New York were elected to fill the vacancies. The directors now are:

W. S. Pierce, George J. Gould, John W. Gates, Henry B. Henson, Lawrence Greer, Edwin Gould, W. H. McIntire, F. S. Landstreet, all of New York; S. Davies Warfield, John M. Hood, Geo. R. Gaither, Thomas J. Shryock, Chas. W. Slagle.

Messrs. Shryock and Slagle hold over from the old Board as Stockholder directors.

Mr George J. Gould is the head of the railroad interests which bear his name. He is recognized as a forceful leader in the railroad world and its influence that lead to the plans to create a trans-continental system out of the Gould lines.

The fact that he has become a director in the Western Maryland Railroad is taken as meaning that his personal efforts will be felt in the reconstruction and extension of that system, so as to provide an Eastern outlet for the Wabash.

Mr. Gates, who was also chosen, is president of the American Steel and Wire Company, and a member of the New York banking firm of Harris, Gates & Co.

It was this firm that worked the recent coup by which it bought control of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. Mr. Gates figured prominently in the formation of the United States Steel Corporation, and is the head of the coterie of Western men who of late have become a powerful factor in Wall street.

Winslow S. Pierce was elected president and F. S. Landstreet vice-president, and the latter, it is understood, will be acting general manager of the road until the operating force shall be reorganized.

During the session of the board a well deserved tribute was paid to the retiring president, Gen. John M. Hood, by the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions:

"Whereas, Gen. John M. Hood has tendered his resignation as president of this company, which position he has filled for so many years, and the same has been reluctantly accepted by this board; and

"Whereas, General Hood, during the 28 years of his service in this company, has by his untiring energy and matchless ability developed the property to its present prosperity and importance; and

"Whereas, It is eminently proper that this board should make official recognition of the arduous task of the retiring president in guiding this company through the initial stages of its development and in meeting and solving the many difficult and intricate problems which the property, and his special knowledge of its opportunities, which have made his services invaluable; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this board hereby places on its records its profound appreciation of the work accomplished by President John M. Hood during the many years of his incumbency of that position, and of the ability, energy and devotion with which he has ever labored for the promotion of its interests; and, be it further

"Resolved, That this board hereby tenders its thanks to General Hood for his courtesy and kindness in continuing to act as president of this company during the past few months since his resignation was submitted to this board, and expresses its gratification that the company will have the continued benefit of his counsel, through his membership in this road."

General Hood it will be remembered resigned to become president of the United Railways and Electric Company which owns the entire electric street railway system in Baltimore and the suburbs. He is regarded generally as one of the most capable and practical railroad men in the country.

Mr. Samuel Kump, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Littlestown, Pa., died on Monday morning at 9 o'clock from a complication of diseases, aged 70 years. Deceased was a veteran of the Civil War and a member of the G. A. R. He is survived by one son and one daughter: Wm. H. Kump, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. George F. Duttera, with whom he had lived for the last 21 years.

Another Johnstown Calamity.

Johnstown, Pa., has been visited by another dreadful calamity, bringing death to many men and disaster and desolation to many homes.

A terrific explosion of firedamp occurred at noon on Thursday in the Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Coal Company. The "Klondike" division of the mine was wrecked, thick walls being torn out like paper and doors blown off half a mile distant.

Hundreds of men were at work in the mine at the time, but many working in other sections of the colliery were not affected and easily escaped. The exact number of persons in the mine is not known, but it is estimated at from 200 to 450. Some men were killed in the mine a mile away from where the explosion occurred.

The mine was filled with poisonous gases, which poured from its mouth. Men who went to the rescue were overcome by the afterdamp and several would be rescuers are supposed to be dead in the mine.

The number of victims cannot be accurately estimated, but from the best obtainable data it will approximate 200 and may be many more.

Harry Tracy recently escaped from the Oregon penitentiary and, though hotly pursued, has managed to get away from the officers, two or three of whom he killed. The story of his course after leaving the penitentiary exhibits remarkable fertility of resource and desperate courage, combined with inhuman ferocity. He terrorized whole families, where several men were among their members, forced them to supply him provisions, then tied them up to prevent their giving an alarm or betraying him, while he continued on his travels. In one instance he forced a man to transport him a considerable distance in a boat, then tied him securely to a tree and, while the officers supposed they were drawing a cordon around him, slipped through and again evaded them. At the last account the baffled sheriff who led the pursuit had about decided to abandon it, the desperado having, apparently, made good his escape.

Mr. Abraham Rinehart, of Littlestown, Pa., died on Tuesday morning of last week, of Bright's disease, from which he had been a sufferer for some time. His age was 42 years, 11 months and 3 days. Deceased is survived by a wife, who was Miss Ella Goodwin, two daughters, Misses Malinda L. and Jessie M., and one son, John E., at home. A short funeral service was conducted at the house Thursday morning, after which the body was taken to the Reformed church at Taneytown, where further services were conducted. Interment was made at that place.

Mr. John Fox, an aged and well-known resident of Mt. Pleasant district, Frederick county, died at an early hour last Sunday morning at his home, near McKaig, of general debility, aged 89 years. Deceased was a widower, his wife having died about nine years ago, and is survived by four children—one son and three daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Lavinia Deckenbaugh, of this county.

Mr. George R. Webb resigned as president and director of the United Electric Light and Power Company at a special meeting of the executive committee and directors on Tuesday, and Gen. John M. Hood was elected president of the company and a director to succeed Mr. Webb. He is also president of the United Railways and Electric Company.

The 13th Annual Reunion of the Reformed Churches of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania will be held at Pen-Mar Park on the Western Maryland Railroad, Thursday next, July 17th. Distinguished speakers will make addresses in the large Auditorium and there will be many other features introduced to make the day an interesting and enjoyable one.

The annual reunion of the Presbyterians of Maryland, Southern Pennsylvania and nearby points in the Virginias was held at Pen-Mar Park on Thursday. The crowd was estimated at 3,000, of which the railroads hauled about 2,000. Owing to the threatening weather in sections from whence a large crowd was expected, the attendance was not so great as last year.

The New York Sun prints the following special from Franklin, N. H.: "The crop of grasshoppers at the Webster place, about two miles from here, is expected to be even greater than in 1899, when 523 bushels were harvested and and a bounty of $1 a bushel was paid by the State.

Under an act of the last Legislature each senatorial district in the State will be entitled to two scholarships in the new normal school at Frostburg, which give the scholars free books and tuition. The State Board of Education has made provision for filling the scholarships by competitive examinations.

A large grain barrack on John Baker's farm tenanted by Marshall Boone, near Libertytown, was set on fire by lightning Wednesday evening and destroyed with its contents. The barrack was filled with unthreshed wheat, estimated to be about 500 bushels.

Colonel John R. Rouzer, of Thurmont, who has held the position of Deputy Register of Wills of the District of Columbia, for several years past, was last Wednesday reappointed by Register of Wills Dent.

Mr. Jacob Feeser, of near Littlestown, Pa., was struck on the face by a swinging barn door during the storm on Thursday of last week, and had his jaw bone broken and was considerably bruised about the face and head.

Dr. and Mrs. U. A. Sharetts left Frederick last Friday afternoon, via Pennsylvania Railroad, for Colorado Springs, Colorado, where they will reside in the future, with the hope of benefiting the health of Dr. Sharetts.

The annual reunion of the Maryland Association of Ohio will be held at Tippecanoe City, Miami county, on August 7.
