just tell 'em for me, that I made more money out of the deal than the three of you combined."

Peter had his hand on the door knob before he replied pleasantly: "The passenger agent will be glad to hear that, for he is a kindly man. The president will be glad too, for he did have you shot out of his office rather roughly. As for me, if your friend hadn't paid that dollar as soon as he did, I'd have flung you neck and crop ont into the swamp, Jimmy, my boy, and don't you forget it."

McKim left hurriedly, for Jim was making for the door.

Seasonable Recipes.

Oyster Soup—Pour a quart of cold water over a pint of oysters. Strain through a colander. Put the water drained from the oysters into a saucepan and simmer gently three minutes. Remove the scum. Add to the broth in the saucepan one tablespoonful each of butter and flour, stirred to a paste. Then add half a cup of cream and season to taste with salt and pepper. When the soup boils add the drained oysters, and as soon as the edges of the oysters curl remove from the fire and serve.

Roast Turkey With Oyster Stuffing.—Select a hen turkey weighing eight or ten pounds. Clean carefully and wipe out with a wet cloth. Make a stuffing of three cupfuls of freshly rolled soda crackers, 20 finely chopped large oysters, half a pint of oyster liquor, the yolks of two eggs and two whole eggs. Season with one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, two ounces of melted butter, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, and mix all together. If small oysters are used, a quart will be needed. Fill the turkey with the oyster stuffing, rub one tablespoonful of salt over the turkey; put in the pan; spread two ounces of butter over the breast and roast until a light brown, basting often with its own gravy. Add one cupful of giblet broth and continue roasting, basting, often until done. Remove from the pan; skim the fat from the gravy; mix one tablespoonful of corn-starch with one-half cupful of water; add to the gravy; add some giblet broth; strain and add the chopped giblets, if liked.

Celery Stuffing For Roast Turkey.—Remove the crusts from a stale loaf of bread. Grate or rub the bread into fine crumbs. Season highly with salt and pepper. Add a cup of sliced celery, which has been cooked until tender. With a fork mix the celery and seasoning well through the crumbs, then pour over and thorough them three or four tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Fill the turkey and roast as directed in the first recipe. The gravy may be made of the fat in the pan and the water in which the celery was boiled, or a celery sauce may be served made as follows: Put an ounce of butter in a saucepan, and when melted thicken with a little flour. Then add a gill of water, some salt and pepper. Add another ounce of butter and the yolks of two eggs, stirring constantly. When thick, add half a dozen celery stalks, cut into half-inch lengths and stewed until tender before hand. This is a delicious sauce to serve with boiled chicken.

Cranberry Sauce—Put three pints of washed cranberries in a granite saucepan. Add three cups of granulated sugar and three gills of water. Cover closely and after they begin to boil cook 10 minutes, but do not stir them. If they are inclined to boil over lift the cover and press the fruit down under the syrup. When cool the whole mass will be jelied slightly.

Cranberry sauce may be strained through a fine sieve. Cook one quart of cranberries with one cup of water 20 minutes. Strain; add one pound of granulated sugar; cook five minutes and turn out. This sauce will be free from skins and seeds.

Demand for Walnut Stumps.

Walnut stumps are assuming undreamed of value in Tennessee. An Indiana concern has had men traveling all over the country buying every old walnut stump that could be found. At first the prices were small, but they have now leaped out of sight. The stump of a tree that was felled several years ago brought more than the trunk and branches. The odd part of it is that the uglier, knottier and more unsightly a stump is the more money it will bring. It is stated that the stumps are made into veneering material and used in the manufacture of high-grade furniture.

A Georgia negro, on being told of the attempted lynching of a member of his race in the West, said:

"What did he go dar fer? Why didn't he stay at home en be lynched whar he was bo'n en raised."

The trouble with most people who can't sing is that they don't know it.

The Frost.

"Look out," says de fros'—"I's on my way

Of de no't wind chariot I employs,

She Knew Josh.

"Now, madam," said the counsel for the defendant to a little, wiry, black eyed, fidgety woman who had been summoned as a witness in a case, "you will please give your evidence in as few words as possible. You know the defendant?"

"Know who?"

"The defendant—Mr. Joshua Bagg?"

"Josh Bagg? I do know him, and I knowed his father before him, and I don't know nothin' to the credit of either of 'em, and I don't think—"

"We don't want to know what you think, madam. Please say 'Yes' or 'No' to my questions."

"What questions?"

"Do you know Mr. Joshua Bagg."

"Don't I know him, though? You ask Josh Bagg if he knows me; ask him if he knows anything 'bout tryin' to cheat a pore widow like me out of $25; ask—"

"Madam, I—"

"Ask him whose orchard he robbed last and why he did it in the night; ask his wife, Betsy Bagg, if she knows anything about slippin' into a neighbor's field and milkin' three cows on the sly; ask—"

"Look here, madam—"

"Ask Josh Bagg about that uncle of his that died in prison; ask him about lettin' his pore old mother die in the workhouse; ask Betsy about puttin' a big brick into a lot of butter she sold last spring—"

"Madam, I tell you—"

"See if Josh Bagg knows anything about feedin' ten head of cattle on all the salt they could eat and then lettin' them swill down all the water they could hold just 'fore he driv 'em into town and sold 'em. See what he's got to say to that!"

"That has nothing to do with the case. I want you to—"

"Then there was old Azrael Bagg, own uncle to Josh, got kicked out of his native town, and Betsy Bagg's own brother got ketched in a neighbor's henhouse at midnight. Ask Josh—"

"Madam, what do you know about this case?"

"I don't know a livin' thing 'bout it, but I'm sure Josh Bagg is guilty, whatever it is. The fact is, I've owned them Baggs a grudge for the last fifteen year, and I got called up on purpose to get even with them, and I feel I've done it.—Tit-Bits.

"Feed the Brute."

A distinguished guest was coming from abroad.

"What shall we do to entertain him?" asked the chairman of the committee of prominent citizens.

"I'll give him a dinner," said one.

"So will I," said another.

"Me too," added a third.

"And we'll end up with a banquet in which we will all join," suggested a fourth.

A prominent official was taking a jaunt across the country in a special train. Six places that were short distances apart had secured the promise that he would give them an hour or more each of his time.

"What kind of a celebration have you planned?" was the inquiry sent out.

"We'll give him an elaborate breakfast," was the first answer.

"We've arranged for a luncheon," was the second.

"Same here," from the third.

"A dinner," replied the fourth.

"Likewise," from the fifth.

"Two banquets," answered the sixth. "There are rival factions here and each insists on doing honor to the great man."

A distinguished club woman visited a distant city.

"We must be hospitable," urged the president of the local club at a special meeting called to consider the question.

Shortly thereafter the meeting broke up in a row because ten women couldn't feed her on the same day, and there was further trouble because six other clubs wanted to arrange dinners, also.

The engagement of a popular society girl was announced.

"What shall we do?" asked the society.

"Give luncheons and dinners for her," was the reply, and a committee had to be appointed to arrange the schedule.

When it comes to being hospitable this great republic has only one idea apparently.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sleep the Best Brain Stimulant.

The best possible thing for a man to do when he feels too weak to carry anything through is to go to bed and sleep as long as he can. This is the only recuperation of brain power, the only actual recuperation of brain force, because during sleep the brain is in a state of rest, in a condition to receive and appropriate particles of nutriment from the blood which take the place of those which have been consumed by previous labor, since the very act of thinking burns up solid particles, as every turn of the wheel or screw of the steamer is the result of consumption by fire of the fuel in the furnace. The supply of consumed brain substance can only be had from the nutritive particles in the blood which were obtained from the food eaten previously, and the brain is so constituted that it can best receive and appropriate to itself those nutritive particles during a state of rest, of quiet and stillness of sleep. Mere stimulants supply nothing in themselves. They goad the brain and force it to greater consumption of its substance until it is so exhausted that there is not power enough left to receive a supply.

When the last census, that of 1900, was taken the center of population of the United States was located in an out-of-the-way place in Bartholomew county, Ind. Last week a suitable monument was erected on the exact spot bearing the inscription "Center of population 1900." Quite a crowd was present when the monument was set. As it can not be seen from the highway, a marker has been placed there directing the passerby to the spot.

Finds Fortune in Elks' Teeth.

Eight hundred elks' teeth in the grave of an Indian chief, all splendid specimens and susceptible of mounting, was the wonderful find by a Philadelphia curio hunter named Zimmerman, who has been gathering relics along the canyon of the tortuous Snake River for several months, says the San Francisco Call. Zimmerman dug into the grave, which was in a wild, barren and remote country, along the Snake River, above Lewiston, Idaho. Some distance down he encountered several small bones, which, on examination, proved to be magnificent specimens of elks' teeth, and on scooping away the earth with his hands he found that a loose tunic wrapped around the ex-chief skeleton had been literally crammed with teeth—the best obtainable in the days when elk were plentiful. Zimmerman took his find to Lewiston for shipment to Philadelphia, keeping very quiet about the discovery. One man to whom he confided the secret in Lewiston offered him $10 apiece for the 400 with the red streak.—New York Times.

Paean of "Pumpkin'."

The salvia is flushing, the honeysuckle's not; the woodman round is dashing to sell you on the spot the sycamore and maple to make the ruddy blaze that cooks the wholesome staple, though buckwheat, rice or maize. The epicure is grappling with quail and sausage meat; the squirrel on the sapling is laughing at defeat. The leaf is gently falling and drifting from the vine; the football player's sprawling and sliding on his spine. The butternut is dancing athwart the lilac haze; and the rabbit's wildly prancing across the chryopase and purple dingle gayly, a meteor of joy, that glads the hunter daily, as if it were a toy. And for this very reason we bang upon the lute that at this merry season is very seldom mute, but ready all the praises of autumntide to sound, until the music dazes and makes the poet bound and bound in boundless rapture until he has to sigh in eighteen-karat rapture, "Long wave the pumpkin pie!"—Judge.

Two electric locomotives, ordered by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company from the General Electric Company, are said to be the two largest electric locomotives in the world. Each machine will weigh 150 tons, and be capable of drawing 1,500 tons of freight up the heavy grades of the belt line tunnel, which runs nearly two miles under the city. Passenger trains have been drawn through the tunnel by electricity since it was opened in 1895, but the locomotives now in use are not capable of pulling the heavy trains. The new machines will be designed to haul a load equal to twice that drawn by the present steam locomotives.

"She says her late beau is now her late husband."

"How's that? He isn't dead?"

"No; but before they were married he stayed in late, and now that they are married he stays out late."

He—"I think she wears a very short golfing skirt."

She—"Well, why shouldn't she? She has a perfect right."

He—"Her left looks all right, too."

Lady—"Did you say you served through the Spanish war? Was it in Cuba?"

Tramp—"No, mum; in Joliet prison. Me sentence happened to be going on at de time."
