SIDE TWO

nothing, still much may be infer'd from it & I now particularly mention to you, as I know there is an intimacy between you to put you on your guard least you should be any ways engaged for him, for few there are in this age to be trusted I know it you'll say by woefull experience & by placeing an implicite faith in two men in whose hands I thought I could have trusted my life —

However it may be only conjecture in me if so take no notice of this, as it was by meere chance I discover'd it not have I communicated it to any body but Y.ou whom I thought I could trust; Mr. Randolph begs leave to join in best wishes to your self & Mr. with me who am Dear Sir

Your Aff.t hb.l Servant

William Randolph
