Why Popcorn Pops.

From the Saturday Evening Post.

Why does popcorn pop? Most people probably have wondered what the reason was, but only recently has science taken up the question and furnished an answer. Popcorn pops because of the expansive power of steam.

A grain of popcorn is a receptacle filled with tightly packed starch grains. Its interior is divided into a large number of cells, each of which may be regarded as a tiny box, with walls strong enough to resist considerable pressure from within. When heat is applied the moisture present in each little box is converted into steam, which finally escapes by explosion.

In order to secure a satisfactory popping there is required a very high heat, which causes most of the cells to explode simultaneously. The grain of corn then turns literally inside out, and is transformed into a relatively large mass of snow-white starch, beautiful to the eye.

Though gaining so large in bulk by popping the grain of corn loses considerably in weight. It has been found that 100 average grains of unpopped corn weigh 13 grammes, whereas the same number of grains after popping weigh only 11 grammes. The difference is the weight of the evaporated water originally contained in the corn grains.

If the popcorn is old and dry it will not pop well. At best a few cells near the centre of the grain will burst, and the result is not satisfactory. At the base of the kernels, where the latter are attached to the cob, the cells appear to be dryest, and it is noticed that these cells are seldom ruptured in the popping. It may be that this is why popcorn is always preserved on the cob and never "shucked" for market.

Nearly all of the popcorn raised for market in this country is grown in New England. Great quantities of it are popped, buttered and put up in packages, which are sold by millions all over the United States.

How to Set Out Trees.

In preparing to set out trees, shrubs, vines, etc., a hole should be dug large and deep, a foot at least larger than the natural spread of the roots, from the fact that a tree or anything set out should grow a year or two in good loam before it runs its roots into the original gravelly material; otherwise its progress in growing is apt to be very sickly looking, if it lives at all. When setting out a tree, shrub or vine—in fact, anything of size—the loam should not be shoveled in in a body for any person can see that in this way it can not be air-tight. Around the roots the loam should be very carefully shaken in, and at the same time using water, which will make a porridge of the loam so it can be carried into the least hole, crack or crevice, and thus it is made airtight around every fiber, which, the reader can see, it is of great importance for the tree to start right away and so continue to grow right along. Trees often die from the effects of being set out in a hurry and the roots bent and cramped into a post hole. Any one setting out trees in this way should wear a boot or shoe a few days two sizes too small, so it may cramp his toes; then he can pity the tree that has its roots cramped and bent to fit a small hole.

They come to blows—March winds.

The baseball fan is beginning to wake up.

The calamity howler never seems to get out of breath.

A man naturally feels cheap when he gives himself away.

When a girl is an heiress she can afford to have freckles.

It is generally easie to change your mind than to change your luck.

Some people are broadened by travel and others simply spread themselves.

To Cure Sleeplessness.

When we are kept awake from our fatigue, the first thing to do is to say over and over to ourselves that we do not care whether we sleep or not, in order to imbue ourselves with a healthy indifference about it. It will help toward gaining this wholesome indifference to say "I am too tired to sleep, and therefore the first thing for me to do is to get rested in order to prepare for sleep. When my brain is well rested it will go to sleep; it cannot help it. When it is well rested it will sleep just as naturally as my lungs breathe, or as my heart beats." Another thing to remember—and it is very important—is that an overtired brain needs more than the usual nourishment. If you have been awake for an hour, and it is three hours after your last meal, take half a cup or a cup of hot milk. If you are awake for another two hours take half a cup more, and so, at intervals of about two hours, so long as you are awake throughout the night. Hot milk is nourishing and a sedative. It is not inconvenient to have milk by the side of one's bed, and a little saucepan and a spirit lamp.—Leslie's Weekly.

Texts for the Trouble.

If you are down with the blues, read the 23rd Psalm.

If there is a chilly sensation about the heart, read the third chapter of Revelations.

If you don't know where to look for a month's rent, read the 27th Psalm.

If you are lonesome and unprotected, read the ninety-first Psalm.

If you find yourself losing confidence in men, read the thirteenth chapter of Corinthians.

If people pelt you with hard words, read the fifteenth chapter of John and the fifty-first Psalm.

If you are getting discouraged about your work, read Psalm twenty-six and Galatians sixth chapter and seventh to ninth verses.

If you are out of sorts, read the twelfth chapter of Hebrews.

If you are troubled about what you ought to say to some one who is seeking salvation, read the fifty-first Psalm.

The Sanitation of Ant Cities.

Insects are scrupulously clean in their personal toilet, and often brush, comb and wash themselves—a service for which they are admirably provided with natural implements. This habit, writes H. C. McCook, in Harper's Magazine, is transferred to communal affairs. The streets within the city bounds and the gates and external plaza and "country roads" leading into the foraging fields—as with agricultural ants—are kept free from filth and obstructions that might gather filth. The constant washings and combings of baby ants by the nurses would satisfy the most fastidious maternal tastes. One may not say that sanitation is an exact emmetonian science, but it certainly is an art thoroughly practiced in every department of the formicary, and brought to perfection as far as natural conditions will permit. Every insect citizen takes part in this service. All ants unite to keep their civic precincts clean.

There's Nothing in the Papers.

Said one and that made us wonder; look at this for instance:

—Nearly every Nation at war, killing and murdering some one.

—Congress in session and half practically under indictment for grafting.

—Presidential campaign in the air.

—Corruption rampant in the government.

—Baltimore rising with infinite bustle from her ashes.

—Sickness and sudden death on every side.

—Spring and the blue birds here, and the Poets.

And yet some say there is nothing doing.

Do they expect the papers to supply a physical Martinique sensation every day or a spiritual cataclysm like the beginning of the Christian era?

If so, it is too much.

Plant Sunflowers.

Everyone should plant enough sunflower seed to supply the moulting hens with all they can profitably use to produce their new coat of feathers. The labor of harvesting the seed is a drawback to growing it in large quantities, but if the chickens have access to it they will cheerfully do the harvesting themselves, and at a time when it will do them the most good, as sunflower seed is at its prime when most of the hens are passing through the moult. Of the three leading varieties, the Mammoth Russian, White Beauty and Black Giant, the Mammoth Russian is to be preferred. The average yield is eighteen bushels by weight of seed per acre. The standard weight for a bushel of sunflower seed is twenty pounds. When sold as poultry food, it brings six cents per pound.

The British and Foreign Bible Society is making great preparations for celebrating the hundredth anniversary of its existence in March. It is the mother of many other Bible societies in Europe and America. Its aim has always been to print and spread the text of the word of God in all languages without any kind of additions or explanations. When the society began its work, the whole Bible had been translated in only fifty languages, while to-day the whole of it may be raed in one hundred languages, and parts of it in 350 tongues and dialect. This society alone has distributed during the past hundred years more than 180,000,000 copies. A large fund is to be gathered as a jubilee offering for the purpose of enabling the further extension of the work. There are yet 450,000,000 men into whose vernacular the Bible has not yet been translated.

Why Not Cure Your Cough or Cold?

WESTMINSTER, April 10th, 1890.

MR. JOS. B. BOYLE:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but TEMPORARY RELIEF. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try YOUR Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost INSTANT RELIEF, but a PERMANENT CURE. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am, Truly yours, EDWARD LYNCH.
