Meeting Our Flag at Sea.

A Fourth of July in the Pacific.

"My ship was returning from Japan to the United States five years ago," said a naval officer. "We had been on the China station for over three years, and most of us, forward as well as aft, were pretty lonesome, as you may fancy, for a sight of this smiling land of ours. We were eight days out from Yokohoma, making for Honolulu to coal ship, when we were overtaken by the Fourth of July. All the ships in the American navy, you remember, are dressed with bunting from stem to stern on Independence day, whether the ships are at anchor or at sea, in any quarter of the globe. Our signal quartermaster made an especially beautiful job of ship dressing on this Fourth of July, and with our hundred foot homeward bound pennant streaming flat with the fresh breeze we were worth looking at.

"But we seemed to be absolutely alone in mid-Pacific. During the first three or four days of our homeward bound cruise out of Japan we had run across a few ships, all flying the British flag, but on this sunshiny Fourth of July morning we seemed to be quite alone on the sea, but we were not.

"'A sail!' sung out the boy in the lookout.

"The sail was a skys'l, still and tiny as the link in a lady's lorgnette chain, and the men up for'ard jammed the to'gallant fo'c'sle and strained their eyes for the ship, which was making for us. A sailing ship approaching you at sea from the far horizon seems to make at you in bounds when you yourself are driving for her, and by the time we took a second long look at the approaching ship her huge royals, bellied out by the fresh breeze, shone clear and brilliant in our eyes, reflected by the bright morning sun, but by the time we could make out the royals we had no time for them. Our gaze was focused on the bit of bunting at the main, the stars and stripes of our republic. I think a bit of a chill ran over the spines of all of us when we saw that. It seemed such a devilishly beautiful idea, that—the flag bounding slap at us right out of the middle of the Pacific, and of all mornings on the Fourth of July morning!

"This is good, this is good," muttered the old skipper a trifle hoarsely. And then the hull of the approaching ship danced on the amethyst horizon for us, her code of signals fluttering.

"'The Shenandoah, out of Bath!" shouted the signal quartermaster.

"You ought to have heard the men up forward, bless their mischievous, generous souls! They let out a whoop that rang around the circle of indigo sea like a Valhalla shout of victory, and I fear we were a bit undignified aft, for one of the senior watch officers alongside us on the poop deliberately threw his cap to the deck, thrust forth both of his arms in the air and emitted a series of howls that were calculated to make the voice of our siren seem small by comparsion.

'Does she wave?' he howled. 'Well, does she wave?'

"The Shenandoah, probably queen of all the clippers in the world, bore down upon us with every thread of her canvas set and drawing, as beautiful a picture as any man ever sees in this world, and there, fluttering far above her main skys'l, snapping in the breeze, and waving grandly with the dips and leans of the great ship, the flag! It would be hard to describe the feeling we all experienced when the Shenandoah swept by within a hundred yards of us. Her crew was just as much pleased as we were, and she did not wait for us to dip, but just as she swung by us like a princess in the pride of her finery again and again was the banner dipped in reply to our banner dipping at the mizzen, and the clipper's crew, ranged along the weather rail, mingled their hoarse shouts with the cheering of our man-o'-war's men.

"When a man sees the flag of his native land under circumstances like these, the memory of it is going to abide with him."—Washington Star.

HICK'S FOR JULY.

This month begins in the last stage of a storm period central on June the 29th. Storms and perturbations of this period will be well on their way toward the Atlantic by the 1st and 2nd, with fair and cooler weather following from the west.

A reactionary storm period is central from the 4th to the 6th. As the Moon is on the celestial equator on the 4th, we may reasonably calculate on a decided rise in temperature, ending in thunder and rain storms during these reactionary days.

A Mars equinoctial period covers almost the entire month of July, being central on the 28th and running into August. The Mars disturbance tends greatly to prolong the kind of weather prevailing at its beginning. This being the case, we may know, with a degree of certainty, the general character and tendency of the weather through July and August, by the character of the weather prevailing during the two first storm periods in July. If the general tendency is to excessive heat and light rains from the 4th to 6th, and from the 9th to 14th, it will be safe to count on a predominance of such weather nearly or quite up to September. We fear there are good reasons to expect such results. Upon the other hand, should cooler weather and general rains and storms be the rule at these periods, much of the same kind of weather will characterize all the storm periods for the following six to eight weeks.

About the 11th to 14th, the central dates of the second July storm period, no one should be surprised by a wave of excessive warm weather, culminating in many threatening storms and violent dangerous blustering. Some local cloudbursts are probable here and there, but we do not believe that sufficient rains will occur at this time, over wide extremes of the grain-producing regions. We shall be delighted to find that our opinion was erroneous, but we so believe and so make our forecast. Heavy hail storms, especially to the west and north, will most likely attend these disturbances, in which event temporary change to much cooler may naturally be expected. The 12th, 13th and 14th are the days on which the culminating crisis of this period is to be looked for. Change to higher barometer, westerly winds and cooler would be the normal order, progressively, behind, or west of the centers of storm areas.

On and touching the 17th, 18th and 19th the temperature will greatly increase, moving like a wave from west to east. Barometric unsteadiness and final fall to low readings will accompany the warmth, and many threatening storm clouds with thunder and bluster will take up their march eastwardly across the country. Heavy local concentrations of rain and hail will touch scattered localities, but we fear that there will be serious lack of general, diffused rains. We candidly confess that we cannot foresee as yet the turn the weather and storms will take, in consequence of the Mars disturbances named above; but this question will be fairly settled by the character of the phenomena the first half of July. This reactionary period will partake largely of the same results attending the two previous periods.

A regular Vulcan storm period covers the 21st to the 24th, having its center on the 22nd. The most casual observers and readers of weather reports will see that a wave of increased warmth, attended by falling barometer and other storm conditions, will organize in the west and pass eastwardly across the country on and touching the above days. More threatening, summer clouds, with thunder, some rain and severe bluster will break out along the paths of actual storm areas. This period is near the center of the Mars disturbance, and whatever peculiarity this particular Mars period may communicate to the general conditions will approach a maximum stage at this and following July and August storm periods. This is a good and proper occasion for all specially interested persons to read our explanation of the Mars influence, beginning on page 168 of our 1904 Almanac. A brief partial respite from great warmth will probably succeed the disturbances of this period.

On and touching the 27th and 28th reactionary storm conditions will return with more than ordinary intensity. At this time the earth will be nearing the opposition of Saturn—that is, passing between the Sun and the great planet, Saturn. The Moon will also be in opposition with Earth and Sun, or at its full, and the Mars period will be exactly central. Great warmth will, in every probability, reach a climax on and next to these dates. This is also a time when many seismic disturbances may naturally be expected—probably not dangerous or destructive in any place, but quite general along the sensitive earthquake zones of the globe. This period will also be within the brace of the Mercury disturbance, receiving the perturbing force of this planet added to the other causes mentioned above.

MR. JOS. B. BOYLE:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very trouble some cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but TEMPORARY RELIEF. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough and through a friend was induced to try YOUR Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost INSTANT RELIEF, but a PERMANENT CURE. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended.
