Republican Ticket.

For President,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT,
of New York.

For Vice-President,
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS, of Indiana.

For Congress,
ROBERT GARRETT,
OF BALTIMORE COUNTY.

From the way the Democratic press has been hammering at Roosevelt's letter of acceptance, there must be something in it that hurts.

The Philippines are asking for increased tariff protection for their newly established industries, convinced that they can only be developed under the system that has produced such marvelous results in the United States. Incidental protection has no advocates over there.

On the question of tariff protection its "Good Lord, good devil," with the Democrats. A protective tariff is "robbery" says the platform. "Well," say both Messrs. Parker and Davis, in substance, "we'll only partially modify the 'robbery.'" And so say Democratic leaders and spokesmen generally, in localities where protection is popular.

GREAT REPUBLICAN MEETING.

"A magnificent audience assembled last night at the Lyric, formerly Music Hall, to hear Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, the Republican nominee for Vice-President," was the way the Baltimore Sun prefaced its account of the great meeting in Baltimore, on Tuesday evening, at which Senator Fairbanks was the principal speaker; and all other accounts of the event fully confirm the accuracy of the Sun's statement.

All accounts agree, too, that the Senator and Vice-Presidential candidate is an able, forcible, effective, and magnetic speaker, and that his address at the Lyric was a cogent and convincing presentation of the reasons why the best interests of the country will be promoted by the continuance of the administration of the government in the hands of the Republicans.

Other able speeches were made on the occasion by Senator Dillingham, of Vermont; Senator Louis E. McComas, of Maryland, and Hon. Jno. V. L. Findlay, of Baltimore.

A big overflow meeting was held in connection with the meeting inside, and this was also addressed by Mr. Fairbanks and others.

"FREE FOR ALL; GO AS YOU PLEASE."

On the part of the Democratic party the Presidential campaign of 1904 is a "free for all; go as you please" event. The party's national platform, adopted at St. Louis, expressly stigmatizes tariff protection as "robbery," while both its national candidates, if their declarations are sincere, are not favorable to such a revision of the tariff law as will withdraw protection from industries that require it. This is practically the Republican attitude on the subject; but the Republicans hold that whatever revision may be necessary in tariff schedules should be made by representatives of the voters who are favorable to it. Democratic candidates for Congress presumably subscribe to the articles of the party's platform, unless explicitly declaring otherwise, and few, if any, of them have done so. Following the example of Messrs. Parker and Davis, however, they are free to reject any plank of the platform, or to inject into that instrument any political doctrine they may see proper. It is a "free for all; go as you please" campaign, by the Democratic side, on the tariff question.

A similar condition exists in that party in relation to the currency question. By a large majority the committee on platform of the St. Louis convention refused to incorporate in it a plank declaring the question settled in favor of the gold standard. Mr. David B. Hill, of New York, who represented Judge Parker in the convention, assured his associates on the committee that the judge would accept the nomination on a platform which ignored the subject; but Mr. Hill reckoned without taking into consideration the influence of Wall Street and the power of the press, which, combined, drove the nominee, after it had become too late for the convention to select another candidate, to notify it that he was a gold standard man. The woods, even in the Eastern States, are full of free silver Democrats, and almost the entire body of the party, with Bryan at its head, in the Western States as well as in the South, believes in the 16 to 1 theory. Naturally, therefore, many of the Democratic congressional candidates subscribe to that doctrine, and, if elected, may be expected to keep up the free silver racket in the House of Representatives. On the money question then, as well as in relation to the doctrine of protection, two of the most important subjects for the consideration of voters, the Democratic attitude in the campaign is that the race is "free for all, you may go as you please," without regard to principle, expediency being of more consequence than common doctrine or consistency.

It would be one of the marvels of this period of the twentieth century if a party with so little coherence should achieve a victory in this important Presidential campaign. Fortunately for the country the prospect of such a result is infinitessimally small.

The will of Charles Burke, of Hoffmansville, was admitted to probate on Tuesday in the Orphans' Court at Towson. He bequeaths $3,000 to be divided among the children of Elizabeth Hilker, Albie J. Hoffman, Mary Dixon and David H. Burke.

Which should the voter prefer, a party which sets forth its principles and policies distinctly and nominates candidates in accord and sympathy with them, or a party which equivocates in its national platform and nominates candidates who at once begin to apologize for actual declarations or omissions? Certainly the former; and tried by that standard the victory of the Republicans in this campaign should be overwhelming.

The Democrats condemn President Roosevelt for the manner in which he made possible the construction of an isthmian canal, but approve the purpose of the government to build that great waterway. Their attitude on the subject is tantamount to saying: "The goods were stolen, but we are willing to keep them nevertheless." The stand they have taken on the subject is utterly indefensible. If Colombia were wronged by any act of this government, that wrong should be righted at all hazards. The truth is, however, that this country perpetrated no wrong act in the premises. This is shown conclusively by the prompt recognition of the independence of the Republic of Panama by the leading foreign powers. To assert otherwise, and make that assertion a pretext for attacking the integrity of the Roosevelt Administration, and then resolve to profit by the alleged wrong, is the height of dishonesty.

WHAT WILL THE ANSWER BE?

There is wise legislation on the statute books, put there by a Republican Senate, which was elected by the people for that express purpose. It would be possible to partly nullify the beneficent effect of that legislation through hostile administration. The elections this fall cannot change the Government. A Republican Senate will still be the fly-wheel of the machine. But a hostile President and cabinet could do a great deal toward crippling and hampering the perfect and harmonious working of the machine.

The question is, do the voters of this country desire to cripple and hamper it?

The answer to the question will be found in the verdict of the ballot box next November. Many thoughtful people predict now that the verdict will be overwhelmingly in favor of continuing the wise administration of existing legislation. Whatever the outcome, there is certainly logic and force in the argument in favor of continuing conservative administration.

In the first place, if the Democrats should elect the House and should elect the President, they could not accomplish any progress. It is not to be supposed that a program drawn up by the Hon. Champ Clark, of Missouri, who would "demolish the tariff from turret to foundation stone," would be endorsed by the Senate. It is not to be supposed that the soft money, populistic, socialistic ideas of Mr. Bryan which are secretly approved by the Southern wing of the Democracy and that wing is in the ascendant in the Democratic party would be approved by a Republican Senate. It is not to be supposed that the existing status in the Philippines, which was established by McKinley, and approved in subsequent elections, could be upset with the approval of the Republican Senators who labored so patiently to fix it.

Then it follows that the Democratic House and the Democratic President, if elected, could not "get anywhere." They could not build up a different structure. They could only stand and heave rocks at the windows of the present structure.

Would that experiment pay the country? Would it demonstrate any great economic or government fact?

Why would it not be better, saner, safer, altogether more in keeping with American ideas of business and progress, to maintain the Administration, in the House, the Presidency and the Cabinet?

After all, the questions which are presented to the voters in the election are not abstruse. They do not involve questions beyond the ken of the average man, the man in the street. They are largely questions of common sense, "horse sense," as they call it in the West, and it has been claimed that the American people are peculiarly proficient in that kind of sense.

If that is the case, it ought not to take the average voter long to make up his mind. He does not have to be a trained collegian to tackle the tariff question. Brought down to the last analysis, it is merely whether we shall make our own goods, pay our own people living wages, or throw down the bars to European competition of underpaid labor. The people understand the financial question, as they have shown, and nobody undertakes to instruct them. We have a safe system, as good as the best in the world, and we will not be content with less. The Filipinos are in better shape than they have ever been and it is due entirely to the policy inaugurated by McKinley, approved by the people, carried out by Taft and Wright (and Wright a Southern Democrat) and insisted upon by Roosevelt and the Republican party.

It seems difficult to believe that the people want a change of administration.

Senator Fairbanks' Letter of Acceptance.

The formal reply of Senator Fairbanks to the letter of the committee of the Republican National Convention, notifying him of his nomination for the Vice-Presidency, was made public yesterday and is a strong and forcible argument in favor of the continuance of the Republicans in control of the General Government. Following is a summary of some of the points made in the letter, taken from the Baltimore Sun, which is not supposed to be friendly to the Republican cause in this campaign:

Thirty treaties have been concluded and proclaimed and stand to the credit of the Administration. "We are without an ally and without an enemy."

A revision of tariff duties should be made only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration, and they should be so revised as to preserve and not destroy the protective principle.

The law, which was regarded as ineffective by a Democratic administration, has been invoked by the President against combinations in restraint of wholesome commerce, and it has been upheld by the courts.

The Republican party has been essentially the guardian of the financial credit of the country and the steadfast supporter of sound currency.

The gold standard is no more "irrevocably established" than are our tariff schedules. The one may be changed as readily as the other.

The administration in the Philippines * * * has been in conformity with the best traditions of the Republic.

We are gratified that sectional differences have disappeared and that a fraternal spirit pervades the people of all sections of the country. Republican policies are as broad as our country's needs. They are neither sectional nor racial in their generous design.

Does Not Like Mr. Talbott's Course.

Mr. W. Bernard Duke, president of the Towson Democratic Club, resigned on Wednesday night of last week because he does not approve of the course of Congressman J. Fred C. Talbott in accepting a renomination when, as Mr. Duke claims, he promised two years ago not to again be a candidate. Mr. Duke says he will vote the full Democratic ticket as a matter of party loyalty, but in view of Mr. Talbott's candidacy he could not remain president of the club.

The War in Manchuria.

The Japanese, under Gen. Kuroki, are said to be fighting their way toward Mukden, but no general engagement has occurred during the past week. Reports from St. Petersburg are to the effect that the Russians hold all the mountain passes and are thwarting the Japanese efforts to outflank them. It is impossible to form a thoroughly correct judgment of the possible outcome of this movement of the Japanese armies, but while full success has not thus far attended their fierce conflicts with the Russians, the advantage has evidently been with them.

At Port Arthur the Japanese are said to have occupied a fort of the Russians on another height overlooking the Port. A general attack on the place is reported to have been made on Tuesday, but the result is not given. It is now said that the Japanese do not expect the fall of the stronghold before next spring. Indications point to a long continuance of the deadly strife between these opposing nations.

President Roosevelt has returned to Washington for the winter from Oyster Bay.
