TAKING UNFAIR ADVANTAGE.

The evidence taken in the Jackson-Smith contest for the seat in Congress from the First district of Maryland, comprising the Eastern Shore counties, furnishes the best reason that could be offered in favor of a Republican victory at the election next fall. This evidence demonstrates clearly that the election law, as it is now stands, after having been tinkered by a Democratic Legislature, affords ample opportunity to the party having a majority of the supervisors of election to so arrange the official ballots as to make it more difficult for the voters of the minority party to mark their ballots properly than for those of the majority. It scarcely needed the investigation which has been made in this contest to satisfy any intelligent person of the fact stated. The supervisors, without violating the law, were able in every case to give the Democrats a great advantage over their opponents in this respect, and, as the SENTINEL observed preceding the election last fall, their doing so would be a natural consequence of the opportunity and they could not be held as violating the law passed for their government.

The gist of the matter lies in the fact that the law was made to promote violations of the very essence of the principles underlying Democratic government—the right of the majority to rule. It was a bold and shameless declaration, under the color of law, that it is right to take an unfair and dishonest advantage of your political opponents and to thus prevent the due effect of their ballots. True, this was arranging to do under color of law what the Democrats had been doing in Maryland by other methods for many years, until they were circumvented by the election law enacted after the Republicans gained control of the legislature, for a time, eight or ten years ago. But the iniquity of it all, amply apparent before this Jackson-Smith contest, is made doubly so by the facts thereby elicited.

Congress will be given an opportunity in this contest to consider whether so obvious a trick to defeat the will of the voters shall receive the sanction of the House of Representatives of the United States, or, at least, whether such a question can properly be considered by that body. It certainly will be raised, as, it is alleged, the examination of the ballots shows that the intention of a majority of the voters was to cast their ballots for Mr. Jackson.

But it is useless to look to congressional interference to right the flagrant wrong of this law. If ever righted it must be done by the people of the State themselves. There are many independent voters in both parties and the solution of this question lies with that element in the Democratic party. The maintenance of the integrity of the ballot rises above all other questions of importance. The regular Democrats have demonstrated their purpose and intention to debauch and degrade it. They should be overwhelmingly defeated at the next election, and this can be done if the independents will regard the matter in its true light.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S INAUGURATION.

The ceremonies incident to the inauguration of Theodore Roosevelt, elected President of the United States in November last by an unprecedented popular majority, were of the most imposing character in the history of such events. While Mr. Roosevelt has succeeded himself in the Presidential office, he came to it first through the death of Wm. McKinley, at the hands of an assassin, and then, as was befitting, by simply taking the oath prescribed by law and without any display. He was the fifth Vice-President to attain the high station of President by the death of the people's choice, and the only one of the five afterwards elected by the people. His inauguration, therefore, was made the occasion of an extraordinary demonstration and untold thousands of people flocked to Washington to see and participate in the mighty outpouring.

The parade was one of the features which attracted most attention, but it is said that the crowd which listened to the inaugural address covered about eight acres of ground and numbered 50,000 to 75,000 people. The subsequent procession was reviewed by the President who stood for hours as the marchers filed past him. Maryland was largely represented in the parade to the Capitol and Governor Warfield, who rode at the head of the State's contingent, shared the honors with the President, having been loudly cheered at every step of the march.

The inaugural address was brief and only dealt in a general way with the problem of self-government and the the responsibilities which rest upon the nation in the greatness of its power. We append it, as follows.

"My Fellow Citizens—No people on earth have more cause to be thankful than ours, and this is said reverently, in no spirit of boastfulness in our own strength, but with gratitude to the Giver of good, who has blessed us with the conditions which have enabled us to achieve so large a measure of well-being and of happiness.

"To us as a people it has been granted to lay the foundations of our national life in a new continent. We are the heirs of the ages, and yet we have had to pay few of the penalties which in old countries are exacted by the dead hand of a bygone civilization. We have not been obliged to fight for our existence against any alien race, and yet our life has called for the vigor and effort without which the manlier and hardier virtues wither away. Under such conditions it would be our own fault if we failed; and the success which we have had in the past, the success which we confidently believe the future will bring should cause in us no feeling of vain glory, but rather a deep and abiding realization of all which life has offered us, a full acknowledgment of the responsibility which is ours and a fixed determination to show that under a free government a mighty people can thrive best alike as regards the things of the body and the things of the soul.

Our Foreign Relations.

"Much has been given to us and much will rightfully be expected from us. We have duties to others and duties to ourselves, and we can shirk neither. We have become a great nation, forced by the fact of greatness into relations with the other nations of the earth, and we must behave as beseems a people with such responsibilities. Toward all other nations, large and small, our attitude must be one of cordial and sincere friendship. We must show not only in our words but in our deeds that we are earnestly desirous of securing their will not their good will by acting toward them in a spirit of just and generous recognition of all their rights. But justice and generosity in a nation, as in an individual, count most when shown, not by the weak, but by the strong. While ever careful to refrain from wronging others, we must be no less insistent that we are not wronged ourselves. We wish peace, but we wish the peace of justice, the peace of righteousness. We wish it because we think it is right and not because we are afraid. No weak nation that acts manfully and justly should ever have cause to fear us, and no strong power should ever be able to single us out as a subject for insolent aggression.

The Industrial Problem.

"Our relations with the other powers of the world are important; but still more important are our relations among ourselves. Such growth in wealth, in population, and in power as this nation has seen during the century and a quarter of its national life is inevitably accompanied by a like growth in the problems which are ever before every nation that rises to greatness. Power invariably means both responsibility and danger. Our forefathers faced certain perils which we have outgrown. We now face other perils, the very existence of which it was impossible that they should foresee. Modern life is both complex and intense, and the tremendous changes wrought by the extraordinary industrial development of the last half century are felt in every fiber of our social and political being. Never before have men tried so vast and formidable an experiment as that of administering the affairs of a continent under the forms of a democratic republic. The conditions which have told for our marvelous material well-being, which have developed to a very high degree our energy, self-reliance, and individual initiative, have also brought the care and anxiety inseparable from the accumulation of great wealth in industrial centers. Upon the success of our experiment much depends; not only as regards our own welfare, but as regards the welfare of mankind. If we fail, the cause of free self-government throughout the world will rock to its foundations; and therefore our responsibility is heavy, to ourselves, to the world as it is today, and to the generations yet unborn. There is no good reason why we should fear the future, but there is every reason why we should face it seriously, neither hiding from ourselves the gravity of the problems before us nor fearing to approach these problems with the unbending, unflinching purpose to solve them aright.

Self-government Difficult.

"Yet, after all, though the problems are new, though the tasks set before us differ from the tasks set before our fathers who founded and preserved this republic, the spirit in which these tasks must be undertaken and these problems faced, if our duty is to be well done, remains essentially unchanged. We know that self-government is difficult. We know that no people needs such high traits of character as that people which seeks to govern its affairs aright through the freely expressed will of the freemen who compose it. But we have faith that we shall not prove false to the memories of the men of the mighty past. They did their work, they left us the splendid heritage we now enjoy. We in our turn have an assured confidence that we shall be able to leave this heritage unwasted and enlarged to our children and our children's children. To do so we must show, not merely in great crises, but in the every day affairs of life, the qualities of practical intelligence, of courage, of hardihood and endurance, and above all the power of devotion to lofty ideals, which made great the men who founded this republic in the days of Washington, which made great the men who preserved this republic in the days of Abraham Lincoln."

The President's Cabinet.

President Roosevelt nominated the members of his Cabinet to the Senate on Monday, all of whom were promptly confirmed. They are as follows:

John Hay, District of Columbia, Secretary of State.

Leslie M. Shaw, Iowa, Secretary of the Treasury.

William H. Taft, Ohio, Secretary of War.

William H. Moody, Massachusetts, Attorney General.

George B. Cortelyou, New York, Postmaster General.

Paul Morton, Illinois, Secretary of the Navy.

Ethan A. Hitchcock, Missouri, Secretary of the Interior.

James Wilson, Iowa, Secretary of Agriculture.

Victor H. Metcalf, California, Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

He also made many other appointments of ambassadors, ministers, consuls &c. Among these were Henry White, of Baltimore, Ambassador to Italy, and W. W. Rockhill, of Montgomery county, Minister to China. Neither of these appointments, however, were credited to Maryland, Mr. White's name having been sent in as of Rhode Island, and Mr. Rockhill's as of the District of Columbia.

Not Guilty of Perjury.

Alfred Steinert was acquitted in the United States District Court, in Baltimore, Tuesday, of having committed perjury in his testimony in this city, October 7 last in support of the applications for naturalization of Jacob Urbietis and Leon Jakubietis. The verdict was agreed upon by the jury at 1.45 P. M. after about an hour's deliberation. Urbietis and Jakubietis were naturalized on minors' papers. Steinert was charged with falsely swearing that he had known both of them in this country before they were 18 years old and at least five years before they applied for naturalization.

Steinert denied that he swore falsely. He said he had known the two men six or seven years in Baltimore and that was all he swore to. He also claimed that he was not questioned as to his acquaintance with the two men before they were 18 years old.

Judge Thomas and Deputy Clerk Geo. A. Miller were witnesses in the case but could only testify in a general way that the necessary questions were asked the witnesses in the several applications for naturalization. The editor of the SENTINEL was present in the court room here while Judge Thomas was hearing many of the applications and noted particularly that the Judge asked the witnesses, in the cases of minors, whether they knew that such minors had been in the country before the age of 18 years. It is possible that the question might have been overlooked in the cases in which Steinert was a witness; but with the care exhibited by Judge Thomas the probability is otherwise, and while Steinert raised a question of doubt by his testimony, juries in the indictments yet to be tried, of which there are eight or nine, should not take his case as a precedent.

The Good Roads Enterprise.

The State Geological Survey Commission, consisting of Governor Warfield, Comptroller Atkinson, President Sylvester of the Maryland Agricultural College and President Remsen of the Johns Hopkins University, held a meeting on Wednesday in the Fidelity Building, Baltimore, to consider various matters in connection with the construction of improved county roads with State aid. Dr. William Bullock Clark, State Geologist, was also in attendance.

Dr. Clark furnished the following revised list of all the counties which applied for the State aid within the specified time (on or before March 1), with the number of miles which each county proposes to improve this year:

	Miles.		Miles.
Allegany	5	Howard	3
Anne Arundel	10	Montgomery	9

The War In Manchuria.

Desperate Fighting Continues.

Japanese Force Russians to Retreat.

Kuropatkins' Army in Danger of Capture.

The fight which was on between the Japanese and Russian armies in Manchuria last week still continues, with the Japanese uniformly successful. It can scarcely be called a battle, as the fighting seems to have been of a desultory character, with many engagements at different points along the lines of the opposing armies. From the first the Japanese have appeared to have no fears of defeat, but have, with apparent recklessness, engaged in flanking movements for the purpose of cutting off the Russian lines of retreat from Mukden. In these movements the Japanese lines have been stretched out to the extent of sixty miles in which many weak points must necessarily have occurred, and of which a skilled opponent could have taken advantage. But Gen. Kuropatkin seems only, from the beginning, to have been anxious to keep open his lines of retreat, and, while occasionally assuming the offensive, has only done so, apparently, with that object in view and with no thought that the forward movement of the Japanese might be arrested and their victorious legions turned back in confusion.

And yet, apparently, the Russians have fought with as desperate courage as the Japanese and have suffered immense losses. It is estimated that the combined losses of the opposing armies, since the battle, or series of battles, now raging began, is far above 100,000. The latest predictions of the result are that within a week Gen. Kuropatkin will be compelled to surrender to the victorious legions of Marshal Oyama, but this may be an oversanguine opinion of sympathizers with the latter. It is certain, however, that the Russian army is in danger of capture and that it is no match for its opponent.

Letter to Chas. V. Wantz.

WESTMINSTER.

Dear Sir: Some think we take a good deal of risk in inviting complaints of Devoe lead-and-zinc—we authorize our agent to sell it under this guarantee:

"If you have any fault to find with this paint, either now in putting it on, or hereafter in the wear, tell your dealer about it.

"We authorize him to do what is right at our expense."

The following story tells how little the risk is:

J H Asher & Co, hardware dealers, Rhinebeck, N Y, have sold Devoe from '76 to now; have sold thousands of gallons and have had just one complaint in all this time.

Three sides of a house were perfect; the fourth was as bad as the three were good.

Explanation—It rained the night before the fourth side was painted; and the painters didn't wait for the wood to dry.

What is done in such a case? Whatever the dealer, who sold the paint, considers it fair to do. We leave it to him. He may not do exactly what we should do if we were there; but we are not there. The best we can do is to leave it to him.

Yours truly
