EXPERIENCE.

I've shot the chutes and bumped the bumps,
And had the measles and the mumps,
Experience;
And also signed some notes for chumps,
Experience.

I've hit the pike and looped the loop
And had bronchitis and the croup,
Experience:
And also floundered in the soup,
Experience.

To friends I've loaned my hard-earned cash,
For breakfast I have eaten hash,
Experience;
I've had the hives, the grip and rash.
Experience.

In cable cars I've suffered jars,
And dodged a million autocars,
Experience;
And through a brick have witnessed stars,
Experience.

I've had a lot of dopy dreams,
Been up against great gold-brick schemes,
Experience;
I've heard a cracked soprano scream,
Experience.

I've heard a lot of vaudeville,
And smoked cigars that made me ill,
Experience;
I've written verse, am at it still,
Experience.

A Woman's Wit.

A good illustration of the quick wit of a woman appears in the following incident of the old coaching days of the far West. The man of the tale does not show off in the best of light and did not deserve his reward. The coach was on its way over a lonely road and carried among its passengers a lady going to join her husband and a man traveling by himself.

"I have $1,000 in my pocket book," confided the lone traveller to the lady, "and I feel very uneasy. Would you mind concealing it in your dress? If we are held up they are less likely to search you."

The lady consented and hid the roll of bills. Toward evening the shout of "Through up your hands!" brought the coach to a stand still, and four men, masked and on horseback, demanded at the point of the pistol that all money should be immediately given up. The lone traveler passed over all his remaining cash, consisting of a few dollars and was congratulating himself on his escape when, to his horrow, he heard the lady say:

"I have a thousand dollars here, but I suppose I must give it up." And without further hesitation she handed over the precious pile of greenbacks.

The robbers rode off in high good humor, but as soon as they were gone the traveler let loose his wrath. He abused the lady in no measured terms and hardly stopped short of calling her a coward. The accused said little, but when the end of the journey was reached she invited the angry man to her house.

"I shall have to accept," he said sulkily. "I haven't a cent in the world through your stupidity."

As he was dressing for dinner that night his host came to his room.

"Here is the thousand dollars," he said, "which my wife ventured to borrow. You see, she had $20,000 hid in her gown, and she thought if she gave up your thousand it would save further search. Thank you for the loan which saved me a heavy loss."

Her Figure Her Fortune.

It was at a semi-Bohemian reception, where the artists and writers were wondering who had money and the other half were wondering what this or that long-haired man or queerly dressed woman did. The stranger guest sat in a corner and asked questions about everybody, wondering at the queer assortment of ex-husbands and ex-wives and all the would-bes. At length a woman of middle age but superb figure entered.

"Well, who is she?" he asked. "I don't believe she does anything."

"Oh, doesn't she? She makes a lot of money. Don't you notice what a stunning figure she has?"

The man admitted that he had observed it.

"Surely not an artists' model?" he exclaimed.

"Not exactly, but she poses for the figure of a fashionable photographer's."

"But not in the——"

"Of course not. But you know lots of would-be beauties who get their pictures in the magazines are sadly lacking in fine figures and especially smooth necks and statuesque arms. Hers are simply perfect and she poses for the figure and then the clever photographer fastens on the other woman's head, and everybody is delighted. Don't you ever tell, though, for nobody is supposed to know."

He—"At last we're alone. I've been hoping for this chance—"

She—"So have I."

He—"Ah! you know then that I wanted to tell you that I love—"

She—"Yes, and I wanted to say 'No' and get it over with."

One day last week a train on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad ran the 45 miles between Atlantic City and Camden at the rate of 96 miles an hour, or equal to 143 feet per second.

Claude—Don't you think my mustache is becoming?

Maude—Well, it may be coming, but it hasn't got there yet.

Mr. Lodger—Why do you always lock you door when you are out?

Mr. Boarder—How do you know I always do?

The Hour Before Breakfast.

Romance is coy in the morning; courtship thinks it requires moonlight, but the hour before breakfast is the best in the day, and it is the hour that lovers should settle the all important step in life. We do not half appreciate the morning, when the faculties have come from their rest with new lights and garnered energies.

Supposed Newton had been sitting under that apple tree after dark, how could he have known what hit him? A happy marriage is quite the biggest thing any man can achieve for himself. Millions are poverty without it. Does it not follow that the wise young man of this generation ought to apply the best rules of human experience to the great moment of his life? The hour before breakfast ought to be his time. If she looks well then she will look lovely all the other hours of the day. It is not only an opportunity for the man; it is a test of the girl. Moonlight has its uses, moonlight has its beauty, but the flowers bloom unseen. It is the hour before breakfast that all nature is brightest, and it is the hour before breakfast that love should be up and doing.

Evelyn is the little daughter of a Marshall county family, relates the Kansas City Journal. She is very timid. Her father, finding that sympathy only increased this unfortunate tendency, decided to have a serious talk with his little daughter on the subject of her foolish fear.

"Papa," she said, at the close of his lecture, "when you see a cow ain't you 'fraid?"

"No; certainly not, Evelyn."

"When you see a horse, ain't you 'fraid?"

"No; of course not."

"When you see a dog, ain't you 'fraid?"

"No!"—with emphasis.

"When you see a bumblebee, ain't you 'fraid?"

"No!"—with scorn.

"Ain't you 'fraid when it thunders?"

"No!" with a loud laughter. "Oh, you silly child."

"Papa," said Evelyn, solemnly, "Ain't you 'fraid of nothin' in the world but mamma?"

The reason that some men do not run after an heiress is not because they fear that they might catch her.

He—What makes you think this hammock will hold two?

She—I've tried it.

Pittsburg is again responsible for a report that the Little Kanawha syndicate has made an agreement with enemies of the Wabash Railroad for the sale of the syndicate's interest in the rights of way of the connecting link of railroad between the Wabash and West Virginia Central, and of the valuable coal lands in West Virginia held by the organization. The report may be true, but must be taken with many grains of allowance. It probably emanates from the same source as similar stories heretofore reported but subsequently proved false.

Why Not Cure Your Cough or Cold?

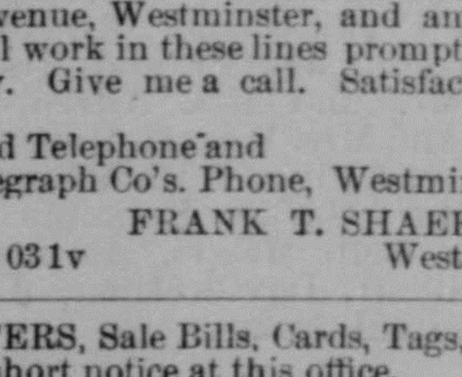

WESTMINSTER, April 10th, 1890.
MR. JOS. B. BOYLE:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but TEMPORARY RELIEF. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try YOUR Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost INSTANT RELIEF, but a PERMANENT CURE. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am, Truly yours,
