The anti-amendment Democrats of Baltimore are making a very vigorous fight against the adoption of that measure. They have a committee of five hundred engaged in working up hostile sentiment on the subject. This committee met on Tuesday evening and adopted the name, The Democratic Anti-Poe Amendment Association, and also elected an executive committee of thirty to manage the campaign. They are determined to make it hot for the ring advocates of the amendment.

If there be a redeeming feature of the Poe disfranchising amendment it is difficult of discovery. Its submission to the suffrages of the voters is a palpable effort to deprive the colored people of the right of suffrage enjoyed by them under the State constitution, without injury to the State, for more than thirty years. It makes a distinction between the young white men who will attain their majority in 1906 and those who will become 21 years of age in time to vote in 1907. It is a flagrant violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of the constitution of the United States. It proposes to leave to the judgment of uneducated laymen the interpretation of the meaning of constitutional questions about which even learned constitutional lawyers may differ. It proposes, in the very outset, to class foreign born citizens with negroes and to lay upon them disabilities neither contemplated by the constitution and laws of the United States nor of the State of Maryland. Can these propositions be successfully denied? Who will have the hardihood to attempt to controvert them?

Two weeks ago the Advocate asked upon what sufficient data the SENTINEL based its assertion that the statement of a Westminster correspondent of the Baltimore Evening News that, so far as known, the Democrats of Carroll county will be solid for the amendment while a considerable number of Republicans will support the measure, was too optimistic. In this connection, also, the Advocate says it is reported that two Democrats in the county are opposed to the amendment, while it knows of twice that number of Republicans in Westminster who favor its adoption. In reply to all this the SENTINEL has simply to say that it has information of a reliable character, from several districts in this county, indicating a considerable Democratic vote against the amendment. That certain influential Democrats in this city have intimated their intention to oppose it and that the figure 2, which is the extent of Democratic disaffection reported to the Advocate, may be multiplied by 50 without exceeding the real extent of Democratic opposition to the monstrous propositions of the Poe amendment. This is not guess work as the Advocate intimates, but is based upon information of a trustworthy character.

HIRAM YOUNG.

Hiram Young, editor-in-chief of the York Dispatch and the York Daily and president of the Dispatch Publishing Company, owner of the two papers, died at his home in York, Pa., at 3.45 Friday afternoon of gangrene of the left foot. His illness had kept him confined to his room since last December. His wife and four sons were with him when he died. Mr. Young was born in Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, May 30, 1830. He has been in the newspaper business in York since 1864. Before the Civil War Mr. Young was a Democrat, but strongly espoused the Union cause and finally became identified with the Republican party of which he was a prominent member until his death. He was postmaster of York, by appointment of President Harrison, for four years, and in 1882 was the Republican candidate for Congress in his district. He was the founder of the York Weekly Dispatch and True Democrat and of the Daily York Dispatch and did very effective work in exposing crookedness in the Democratic administration in York county.

DEATH OF GEN. BLACKMAR.

Gen. W. W. Blackmar, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, died on Sunday last, at Boise, Idaho, while on a tour of inspection of G. A. posts throughout the Northwest. Gen. Blackmar was a native of Pennsylvania, but his home was in Boston, Mass., where his body was sent for interment. Gen. Blackmar was approaching the 64th anniversary of his birthday, having been born July 25, 1841. By the death of General Blackmar, Capt. John R. King, senior vice-commander in chief, becomes the commander. Captain King is a Marylander, and is Pension Agent in Washington, a position to which he was appointed a few years ago through the influence of Senator McComas. He maintains a residence, and is a voter in Howard county. Captain King is 60 years old. He entered the Sixth Maryland Infantry at the age of 17, and came out of the Civil War with a gallant record. He was wounded three times.

DANGEROUS POSSIBILITIES.

A feature of the disfranchising amendment, concerning which but little has been said, is the provision that, after 1906, the grandfather clause is to be inoperative. This means that all white men coming of age in this State after that date will be required to demonstrate their knowledge of the constitution as the negroes will have to do; that is, they will be compelled to satisfy the registrar, or registrars, that they understand and can interpret the meaning of any section of the constitution which they may be called upon to read, or which may be read to them. Cursory examination of this provision leaves nothing but surprise that negroes are to be placed on political equality with the whites after the negroes shall have been disfranchised if the amendment shall be adopted. A close inspection or analysis, however, would seem to suggest a reason for treating white men differently after 1906 from the course laid out to be pursued toward them during that year. Without doubt the Democratic managers are convinced that, if they can succeed in securing the adoption of the amendment, they will, beginning with 1906, have the political affairs of the State in their own hands for an unlimited time. Then they will either be independent of the young white men approaching their majority and can afford to accord to them the same sort of treatment meted out to the negroes, or they can, by amending the election law, provide for a single officer of registration and select such men for that position as will make it easy for white Democrats to registrer and difficult for Republicans to do so, whether white or black. In either case it is apparent that the amendment is designed to give the Democratic party managers an unfair advantage in the politics of the State, and honest Democrats should give this whole subject careful analysis before irrevocably deciding to vote for an amendment to the constitution that is so full of dangerous possibilities.

According to a dispatch from Yellowstone Park, Wyo., very little summer is experienced in the Grand Canyon, where snow lies now to the depth of three feet. Snow has been falling nightly and the temperature has been hovering around the freezing point, 35° being the mean. It is expected the snow will have disappeared about the 15th of August.

A. F. Reynolds, a brakeman on the Western Maryland railroad, died at the City Hospital, Baltimore, on Tuesday morning, about 10 o'clock, from injuries received at 2 o'clock, A. M., by being run over by a freight car at Glyndon. Coroner Hayden, of the Central district, decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

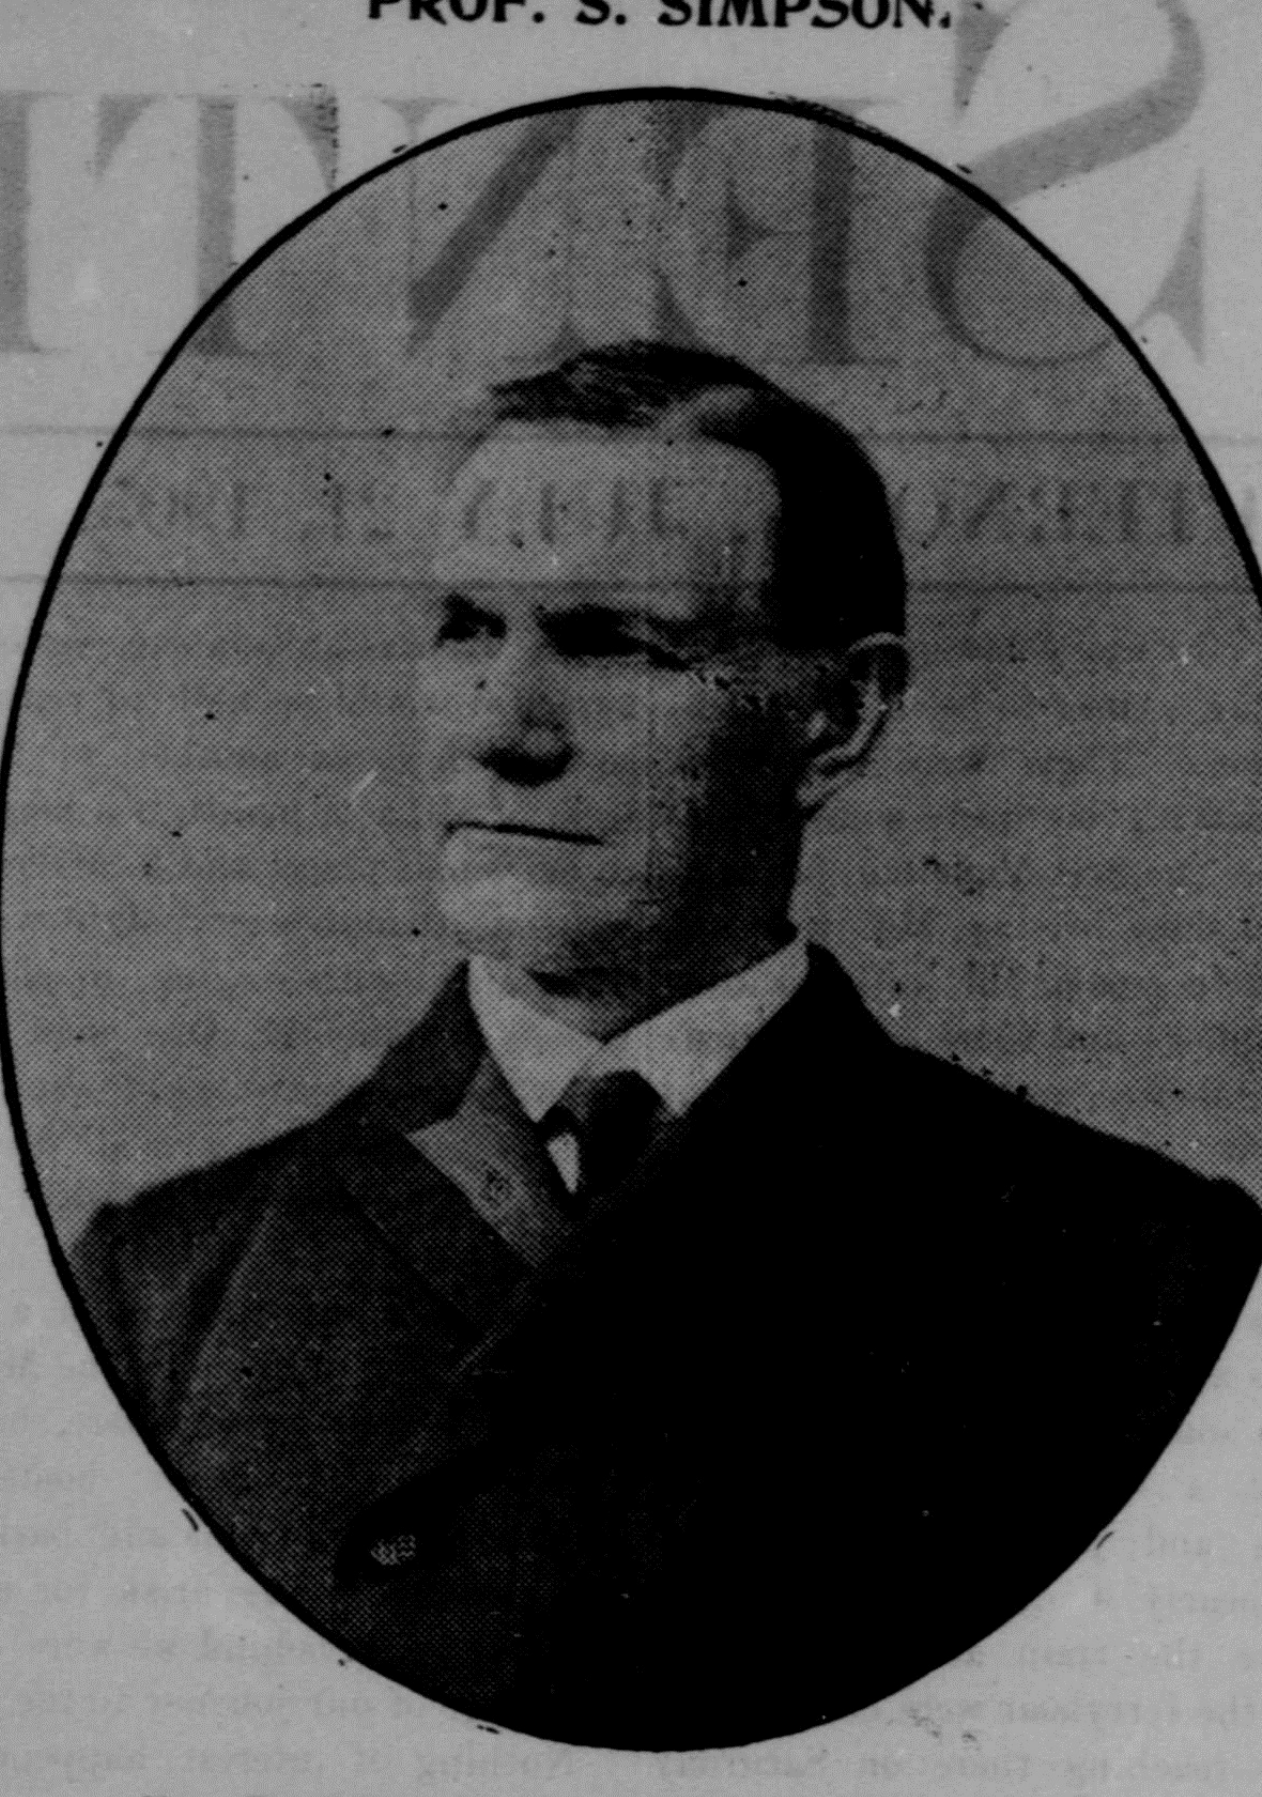
PROF. S. SIMPSON.



New President of the State Teachers' Association.

State Teachers' Association.

As was indicated by the SENTINEL last week, Dr. S. Simpson, superintendent of the schools of this county, was elected president of the State Teachers' Association for the ensuing year, at the annual meeting held at the Blue Mountain House. This was a well deserved compliment. As chairman of the executive committee Dr. Simpson's efforts and energy had made this year's meeting the most largely attended, successful and profitable in the history of the association, in which he has been a leader since his connection with it. He has done as much as any other man to make it an institution of value to the teachers and his recognition in this manner is very gratifying to his friends.

And not only has he been made president of the association, but by the adoption of the following resolution he is continued as chairman of the executive committee:

RESOLVED, That the president of the association should appoint the executive committee and be the chairman thereof.

Another resolution that caused discussion among the county superintendents was:

RESOLVED, That it is the sense of this association that the county institutes should be abolished and a state summer school or schools be substituted therefor; that the expenses of the school or schools should be paid from the general educational fund prior to its apportionment."

The resolution was adopted and a special committee was appointed to make suitable recommendations for the summer school at the next session of the association. Dr. Fell tendered the use of buildings of St. John's College for such a school.
