other thing, you will have in two Dolls which my Sister intends to dress up for her two little Nieces — You say, I have asked to day, & shall go on, providing every thing in time that I may depart at a Moments Warning — Every thing that is possible shall be Made up in the best way, they will Not even that risque, in case of Capture by either Side, as they would do, if in whole pieces — —

In 3 or 4 days, I shall go to Bristol — I have been detained here, by the settlement of some of Rey gold & Hemsleys affairs, which I should Not have gone to far into, before I had been in Bristol, If Mr. Randolph, had Not wrote me upon my first arrival here, that he intended to be in London almost immediately after, and to stay 10 days or a fortnight at — This time I thought I might employ in settling some of affairs Mr. Hemsley, Walters here, as to go to Bristol to be in some Measure idle — as I must have been with Mr. Randolph. However he did Not come up & I have been kept by an Arbitration which I expect will be finally settled tomorrow — — My Sister, told me as soon as I got here that she had been informed from Bristol, that Mrs Stevenson, had Rec. Letters from Her Brother dated some time after I had left Maryland And

And that she had spoke of me, with some bitterness — probably on Acct. of what had passed between her Husband & me, before I set off — I am afraid I shall not get much good out of them tho' I have several methods in contemplation to try with her — My Brother Dan, thinks he can guess where the Books & papers are lodged; he shall try to get at the knowledge of them Quietly, and then, when once their place of concealment is found out, it is Not in the power of any person to withhold them from us — Poor Dan — he has been most cruelly used, Not only unjustly, but most ungratefully — Indeed it too plainly appears, that in their conduct to us all, No one good principle had the least Weight — their own advantage, even at the expence of every other consideration, was their only View, And God knows even in that, what they intended should promote it, was the Means of Disappointing their Expectations — However, altho' I have heard a great deal from Dan only, yet a great deal remains yet to be unravelled, the particulars of which that, won't do to communicate on paper; One thing I am pretty well convinced of, that is, Nothing can come only to set his conduct in a better point of view. With respect to My affairs here, I know but very
