Election TUESDAY, November 7th.

Could anything be more absurd than the Ring Democratic plea that the adoption of the Poe amendment is necessary to prevent negro supremacy in Maryland?

It is not a very edifying spectacle to witness five white men fleeing before one black one and frantically exhorting their followers to save them from negro supremacy. But that is about the picture presented by the Ring Democracy of Maryland at this time.

Those profiting by the theft of the ballots and burning of same in 1875, are now endeavoring to make you believe it is a good thing to vote your rights into their hands. Note them: Gorman, Carroll & Co. The firm is strong, but not sufficiently so to convince the public that it is safe.

It was a common saying among secession sympathisers in Maryland, at the outbreak of the Civil War, that one Southern man could whip five Yankees. How different the apprehension of Ring Democrats, now, that five white men are in danger of being brought into subjection to one negro. The one was a bold, though mistaken notion, the other is sheer poltroonery, or worse, and a vastly greater error.

The issue is plainly made up. On the one side the Democratic Ring is endeavoring to take from a large class the right to self-government by fastening upon the State a Constitutional provision giving to a few individuals, and those of partisan selection, in the election booth, the right to pass upon the qualifications of their fellow-man to cast his ballot. To such a preposterous proposition the Republicans, together with a vast majority of the Independent Democrats, are unalterably opposed. Maryland will hardly endorse such a measure as this.

The submission of the Poe amendment to the voters of Maryland for their adoption or rejection creates a crisis involving the individual rights of a large body of citizens, white and colored. In this emergency, is it too much to expect that every true Republican will be found voting against this iniquitous measure and for the candidates of his party, who stand for opposition to unfair restrictions upon the suffrages of their fellow-citizens? Republicans who hope and long for the future supremacy of their party in Maryland should be a unit against the amendment and its supporters.

It is reported from Japan that Admiral Togo attributes his great naval victory over the Russians to the interference of the spirits of his forefathers, and has worshipped in a heathen temple in deference to this belief. Admiral Togo seems to be too great a man and naval commander to believe such nonsense. He probably is fully conscious that he won in his great battle by his naval skill and the efficiency of his sailors and equipments against a poorly disciplined and unskillful enemy. His own interpretation of the causes which led to his triumph is but a poor compliment to his men, to say nothing of himself.

An inconsistent feature of Senator Rayner's recent address to the Democrats of Maryland is his declaration that—while denouncing the measure and its sponsors—he and other Democrats holding similar views mean to vote for the party nominees. Yet these candidates are utterly under the domination of the bosses and must do their bidding uader all circumstances. If the amendment should fail and the regular Democratic candidates for the legislature be elected, they may be counted upon to support any measure decided upon by the bosses to prevent fair elections. Mr. Rayner may be sure that the only method of suppressing boss rule in Maryland is to defeat the amendment, and also the bosses' candidates for the legislature. Halfway measnres will not avail against the skill, cunning and corruption of the "organization."

Has any voter stopped to consider, when told if the amendment carries and he is refused registration, that he has the right to appeal to the courts, for an enforcement of his right to vote, that such an appeal would be impossible and utterly useless, because of time limit? It is plain. The registration days are usually the first and second Tuesday in October, revision the 3rd. Judges are generally hard to find, and by the time a petition of a voter is prepared, signed and served and the slow process of time to answer is given, a hearing had, defective and technical questions passed upon, the election is over and the voter deprived of his right of suffrage. There is no room on the statute books or in the constitution of the State for such a monstrosity as the Poe amendment. And further, it is extremely doubtful whether an appeal from the decision of the registrars, under the amendment, will lie at all.

The name of Fairview Station, on the Baltimore and Harrisburg division of the Western Maryland Railroad, has been changed to Boring, the name of the postoffice at that place.

President Roosevelt, who is making a tour of the Southern States, is experiencing a constant ovation and delighting the people with his speeches. The trip, on which he is accompanied by a numerous party traveling by special train, will cost about $15,000, which the President insists on paying out of his own pocket, being unwilling to accept free transportation from the railroads.

Is there any probability that the Democratic element which roughed the city of Baltimore at the election of 1875, and subsequently changed an overwhelming Ring defeat into a stolen victory by purloining Reform ballots from the strings in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court and substituting tickets with John Lee Carroll for Governor at their head, will mend its ways if entrusted with unlimited power through the adoption of the Poe amendment? Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots?

The Carroll county Prohibition convention, which met in this city on Monday, declared the "suppression of the legalized liquor traffic to be the paramount issue before the people." A more pressing question is the Poe amendment. That is the question of the moment. It is not only a question of morals, but of politics as well. It is a movement to hamper citizens in the exercise of rights that should be inalienable, and to turn the State over to the permanent control of a conscienceless autocracy. It is to be regretted that our Prohibition friends didn't have a word to say concerning it, pro or con.

The autocratic character of the Democratic Ring is forcibly illustrated by its action toward the executives of four wards in Baltimore. These executives were elected by a majority of the Democratic voters of their respective wards, at legalized primaries. They were voted for as opponents of the Poe amendment. Now, without a particle of legitimate authority, they have been practically deposed by the Ring State Central Committee, acting under the orders of the bosses, and committees have been appointed, in the four wards, to supplant these executives in the conduct of the campaign. This high-handed action only demonstrates the extremity to which the Ring is driven in its frantic efforts to perpetuate its power by depriving the people of their rights.

Senator Rayner Bitterly Hostile to the Poe Amendment.

Hon. Isidor Rayner, Senator Gorman's colleague from Maryland in the United States Senate, is out in an address to the Democrats of the State, bitterly opposing the Poe amendment, the vicious effect of which on the rights and privileges of many white citizens he denounces in the graphic language of which he is a master. The address occupied about five colums of the Baltimore Sun in which it was published on Wednesday. He places the number of whites of Baltimore who can be disfranchised under the amendment at 30,000, but says that is far below the mark. His principal objection to the measure seems to lie in the power it confers upon officers of registration to discriminate against citizens in passing upon their qualifications as interpreters of the constitution.

"Look for a moment," he says, "at the infamy of this transaction that ought to bring the burning blush of shame to every honest party man in Maryland that registers of voters, overwhelmingly illiterate as a rule, who have never read a line of the Constitution and could not comprehend it if they did, have the right to take away the suffrages of thirty thousand citizens because they cannot answer questions that the registers themselves can neither understand nor answer."

"What," he asks, "will be the result of this change? By it you will not only have succeeded "in eliminating the naturalized voter and his descendants from the polls," but you will "have driven the Independent Democratic vote from the party," and you will have your party shorn of its vitality, the lifeblood withered in its viens, prostrate in the dust and the 'organization' supreme upon the throne."

The amendment, he says, "places in the hands of our political rulers the right to enfranchise whoever will bow his body or bend his neck to their authority and to disfranchise those who question and challenge their right to dominate our destinies. It will, if it is adopted, perpetuate them in power and convert the free institutions of this State, not into an oligarchy—because an oligarchy they have never been—but into an autocracy—that does not know what public opinion is and does not care; that never comes in contact with the people; that would pay not the slightest attention or regard to their wishes or petitions and that would wield the same unlimited power and dominion within the party councils as has ever been wielded by the most absolute depotism that ever trampled upon the liberties of the human race."

This sounds very much like the Carroll county resolutions denouncing Gorman and Gormanism, passed by a Democratic convention some years ago. In the concluding portion of the address Mr. Rayner says:

"I want it to be distinctly known that there is no one in this State who feels more strongly than I do upon the subject of an educational test as a qualification for the right of suffrage, and the stronger this test is made within proper bounds the more it meets with my approval, and as an honest standard of this sort would have substantially eliminated the negro and maintained the absolute supremacy of the white race in this State, it should have been submitted to the people in lieu of the proposition that is now before us. This wretched piece of jugglery which now confronts us was conceived in fraud and it will be executed in iniquity. It disfranchises thousands upon thousands of my fellow-citizens, lays low their hopes, deprives them of their vested political rights, places them upon a par and equality with every illiterate negro in every registration booth of Maryland, tosses away their citizenship, and makes it the toy and plaything of an irresponsible body of election officers; and right in this community, where they have lived an orderly and law-abiding people, invades their homes and firesides and proclaims the hideous doctrine that their posterity shall be forever, politically, banished and expatriated, because their ancestors selected the shores of Maryland as a congenial soil upon which to plant the tree of civil and religious liberty, under whose shade they could defy the oppressor's hand and breathe the unpolluted air of freedom.

My friends of the Anglo-Saxon race, you have made this distinction in your convention, not I—a race that, it may be casually remarked, has in its day been guilty of as many acts of cruelty and inhumanity as any race that ever peopled the face of this earth—let me say this to you in conclusion: You have declared in your convention and through your committee that any man who will not sell his birthright and support this amendment shall be driven, like an outcast and a Pariah, from the Democratic ranks. I accept this challenge, and in order to show you how little a threat and menace of this sort affects men who cannot be scourged, like quarry slaves, to their dungeons, let me also now declare that if there is to be any political immolation in Maryland you may report to your master of ceremonies that if by sacrificing myself I can save the people of this State from the bondage and captivity which it is proposed to impose upon them, then I shall cheerfully submit myself as an offering for this purpose, and I shall proceed to the place of torment with a spirit of exultation and with a smile of triumph. I am so solemnly and profoundly imbued with the convictions that I have expressed that I would rather sever the strongest and tenderest ties of friendship that surround me than become a party to this hateful conspiracy against the rights of my fellow man. I would rather never have held an honor at the hands of the people, and at this moment would surrender any ambition that I may cherish for the present or the future in the public service of my State or country, and would rather that my name should be forever buried in oblivion than either by active participation or silent acquiescense assist in inflicting this outrage upon the people of my State.

CHAPTER 97.

AN ACT to amend Section 34 of Article 3 of the Constitution of this State.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of the two Houses concurring), That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof, as herein provided, it shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 34 of Article 3 of said Constitution.

SECTION 34. No debt shall be hereafter contracted by the General Assembly unless such debt shall be authorized by a law providing for the collection of an annual tax or taxes sufficient to pay the interest on such debt as it falls due, and also to discharge the principal thereof within fifteen years from the time of contracting the same, and the taxes laid for this purpose shall not be repealed or applied to any other object until the said debt and interest thereon shall be fully discharged. The credit of the State shall not in any manner be given or loaned to, or in aid of any individual association or corporation; nor shall the General Assembly have the power in any mode to involve the State in the construction of works of internal improvement, nor in granting any aid thereto which shall involve the faith or credit of the State; nor make any appropriation therefor, except in aid of the construction of works of internal improvement in the counties of St. Mary's, Charles and Calvert, which had no direct advantage from such works as have been heretofore aided by the State; and provided that such aid, advances or appropriations shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of five hundred thousand dollars, and they shall not use or appropriate the proceeds of the internal improvement companies, or of the State tax now levied or which may hereafter be levied to pay off the public debt, to any other purpose until the interest and debt are fully paid, or the sinking fund shall be equal to the amount of the outstanding debt; but the General Assembly may, without laying a tax, borrow an amount never to exceed fifty thousand dollars to meet temporary deficiencies in the treasury, and may contract debts to any amount that may be necessary for the defense of the State.
