WESTMINSTER, - MARYLAND.

W. L. W. Seabrook, - Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1906.

Fifty-one students of the sophomore class at Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, were indefinitely suspended on Saturday last. The "Sophs" had a banquet in the town on Thursday evening and upon their return to the college found several freshman flags displayed on the campus. They took the queer way of breaking in doors, smashing windows and otherwise destroying property to resent what they regarded as an insult. Some members of the class were called before the faculty whereupon, pending action, the 51 signed a paper acknowledging that they were all equally guilty of the offence charged. Their suspension followed. There seems to be needed an addition to the curriculum of most institutions of learning in this country, just now, that students may be instructed in the exercise of common sense and common decency.

It may be considered an open secret that the appointment of Chas. E. Fink, Esq., as one of the Democratic Supervisors of Election for this county, was simply the selection, by Governor Warfield, of one of his close personal friends who is, in the main, in sympathy with the course and policy of the Governor in relation to party as well as to public affairs. It can be said truthfully, we believe, that the Republicans of Carroll county were accorded about as fair treatment by the old board as was experienced by their party friends in any other county of the State, and hence, we presume, the change is due to the natural desire of the Governor to be represented in the execution of the laws by gentlemen in agreement with him in the affairs of his party. Whatever the cause, however, it is undoubtedly true that the new board is composed of gentlemen, representing both parties, who can be depended upon to faithfully and honestly discharge the important trust committed to their hands.

ARE THESE NECESSARY MEASURES?

Bills have been introduced in the Legislature to create the office of guard at the jail of this county, and also of police justice in this city. The provisions of these measures have not publicly transpired and it is therefore impossible to comprehend their scope and meaning; but without further and better light on the subject a guard at the jail, in addition to the officers now having custody of its inmates, would appear to be unnecessary and superfluous. The Carroll county jail rarely contains desperate and dangerous criminals and the sheriff and his deputies are as well able now, as they have been in all the past years, to hold those who may be committed in safe custody.

The creation of a police justice would probably be of more moment to the other justices of the peace in this locality than any other person, unless, indeed, it be proposed to make him a salaried officer. In that case the taxpayers might have an objection to the measure as it would probably cause the county additional expense, and taxes, instead of diminishing, are higher than they were thirty-five years ago, in the depreciated currency of that period.

A DISCORDANT NOTE.

The Longworth-Roosevelt wedding had excited so much interest and had been the subject of so much approbatory comment in the daily newspapers of the country, for weeks before its occurrence, that adverse criticism from the pulpit, on Sunday last, awoke a discordant note in the otherwise kindly, if exaggerated, stories in relation to it poured upon their readers by the journals referred to. It is a Chicago pulpit from which the discordant note emanated, and the preacher who gave it expression is Rev. W. B. Leach, pastor of the Sacramento Avenue Methodist Church, that city.

In his sermon on Sunday morning Mr. Leach referred to the President as "Lord" Roosevelt, and said the extravagance of Saturday's wedding and the newspaper publicity given it wearied him exceedingly.

"'Princess Alice,' who is nothing more nor less than a plain American girl, outdid any of the efforts of Queen Victoria," he said.

"Although I think both the President and the bride are partly to blame for this vain display of would-be royalty, the American people likewise are deserving of criticism for their apparent endeavor to make a lord of the President and a princess of his daughter. I appeal to the American people not to forget that we are a great common people, and that simplicity, especially on the part of those in authority, should be our watchword."

We are not inclined to find fault with Mr. Leach for these utterances. There is much of truth in them, but the circumstances attending the courtship and marriage of Mr. Longworth and Miss Roosevelt were unique from the beginning to their culmination, and while it must be admitted that there was rather too much in the newspapers every day concerning the affair while it was pending, and too much in relation to the sayings and actions of the prospective groom and his bride, it may be taken for granted that it will not set a precedent to be followed in America in the future. It would, indeed, be a pity if it should have that effect.

Then, again, it must be remembered that much of what was alleged to have occurred, was manufactured by newspaper reporters. For instance, it was stated, and generally believed, that King Edward VII, of England, and the Queen, had each sent a handsome present to the bride, and these presents were minutely described. Then it was denied that either of them had sent a gift of any sort. This in turn is contradicted, so that today the public is really ignorant of the truth of the matter.

This is only a sample of the unreliability of many of the stories given out by the newspapers. It is probably true, however, that the presents received by Miss Roosevelt and Mr. Longworth, are worth more than a quarter of million of dollars. But Mrs. Longworth's father, though President of the United Ssates, is only His Excellency for the time being, and after the expiration of his term will be plain Mr. Roosevelt, while she is not Princess Alice, but Mrs. Nicholas Longworth. There is no aping of royalty in the affair.

Rev. Dr. Thos. H. Lewis, president of Western Maryland College, and Rev. Dr. H. L. Elderdice, president, of Westminster Theological Seminary, assisted at the dedication of three Methodist Protestant Churches at Cumberland, on Sunday last. They are the Bedford Street Church, of which Dr. Lewis was pastor about thirty years ago; Maple-side Church, and Melvin Chapel. The last two churches are located in suburbs of Cumberland. Their acquisition was made through the efforts of the pastor of the Bedford Street Church, Rev. W. A. Melvin, who is now serving all three of them, and who has also been instrumental in the erection of a new brick church on Bedford street, at a cost of $12,000. Rev. J. M. Gill, of Washington, D. C., preached the dedicatory sermon at the Maple side Church, Dr. Elderdice, the Melvin Chapel sermon and Dr. Lewis the sermon at the Bedford Street Church.

Homicide Near Woodsboro.

On Thursday of last week a fight occurred between the employees at Barrick's lime kilns, near Woodsboro, and three tramps in which Charles Gibson, one of the workmen, was stabbed to the heart and killed by Charles Cline, one of the tramps. Cline was arrested and taken to the jail in Frederick. He had a hearing before Justice Smith, of that city, on Saturday, and in his own defence testified that his home was in New York, and that he was on his way to that city from Atlanta, Ga., when the fight occurred. He said the cutting of Gibson was done in self-defence.

He and his companion, he averred, were set upon by Gibson's crowd, and he had been knocked down three times before he drew his pocket knife. He slashed about with his knife to drive off his opponents, he said, and did not know that he had cut Gibson until sometime after the cutting was done.

William Gibson, a brother of Cline's victim; John Potts and others also gave testimony, which was to the effect that the tramps had been ordered away from the kilns, and because of their delay in going Potts shoved Cline, who fell down. Cline then threw a stone at Potts, but hit Charles Gibson, and this precipitated a general fight, in which Gibson was killed.

Cline was held for the action of the grand jury.

Alfred Brunk, one of the men who was with Cline at the time of the fight, was caught on Friday at Taneytown, by Carroll county officers, and was also given a hearing on Saturday afternoon and was held for the grand jury's action on a charge of assault upon Calvin Grabill.

A WORD TO EARLY BUYERS.

Where will you do your early Spring buying? All persons have their own reasons for shopping at certain places.

It may be you have in the past been forced to the inconvenience of making long and tedious trips to the larger towns and cities, involving both loss of time and money, simply because you could not have your needs supplied at home. We have made and are making a constant study of these conditions, and have consequently put ourselves in a position to give you up-to-date and dependable merchandise at a saving of both time and money.
