WESTMINSTER, - MARYLAND.

W. L. W. Seabrook, - Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

FRIDAY, MARCH 30, 1906.

By constitutional limitation the present session of the Maryland Legislature will terminate at midnight on Monday, April 2.

Monday will be April Fool's day. Those who may be fooled on the occasion will not always be greater fools than those who will fool them.

A general anthracite coal miners' strike has been ordered and all the bituminous coal miners are expected to join at once in the movement. Nearly 500,000 men will stop work. The miners' union is said to have $3,000,000 in funds. The anthracite operators have 15,000,000 tons of coal stored and the struggle between the contending employers and employees is likely to be a prolonged one. In the end, no doubt, consumers will be the principal sufferers.

At a conference in which the Governor, Comptroller, Treasurer and members of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees participated it was decided to fix the state tax rate at 16 cents. They desired to lop off the free school book tax and so reduce the rate to 15 cents, but through the strenuous efforts of Dr. Simpson, of this county, and others, were induced to agree to the additional one cent, which, with receipts from other sources, will, it is expected, provide the funds necessary to supply the free books.

By a vote of 58 to 41 the consideration of the Seth Haman oyster bill was postponed from last night until to-morrow. The result, it is alleged, was brought about by the Republican members, who, in their indignation at the action of the Senate on the bill to correct election abuses, voted with the opponents of the bill for the postponement. Whether this foreshadows their final action on the measure we cannot say, but we hope otherwise. We believe the Republicans will make a serious mistake if they become responsible for the defeat of oyster legislation at this session of the Legislature.

The bill of Delegate Murphy to correct trick ballot and other abuses in the election law of this State will not pass the Senate, the Democratic Senators having agreed upon a substitute bill which, it is stated, utterly destroys the value of the measure as a remedial agent. As the SENTINEL has never expected any legislation by the present General Assembly calculated to reform existing election wrongs and outrages upon the rights of the people it is not surprised, though disappointed, at the outcome of the efforts exerted for that purpose. Fair elections and Ring Democracy are antipodes.

The State Board of Public Works received a bid on Wednesday, from the Maryland Trust Company, of $2,500,000 for the $5,500 shares of stock in the Washington Branch, B. & O. Railroad, held by the State. The Trust Company was the only bidder and its offer was accepted by the Board. It is understood that the purchase was made for the B. & O. Company. The fact that only one bid was received is reliable evidence that the price offered and accepted is satisfactory. It was known to the world that the railroad company was willing to pay the sum named for the property. In fact, President Murray had so notified the State authorities. If the stock had been of greater value other bidders for it would doubtless have appeared.

David H. Fenton.

Mr. David H. Fenton, the only Republican member of the House of Delegates from Montgomery county, and the recognized leader of his party in that body, died suddenly of heart disease, Washington, D. C., on Sunday night. He had been visiting a friend and was returning to his apartments in the city, when he was stricken and fell on Fifteenth street, N. W. He was removed to Garfield Hospital in an ambulance, but died on the way.

Mr. Fenton was a native of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, and was about 41 years old. He had held several important positions in the departments at Washington, but studied law and has been engaged in its practice for some time in Washington. His legal residence was in Montgomery county. He leaves a widow by whom the news of his death was received at their Washington home and who was utterly prostrated by the sad intelligence.

Mr. Fenton was a man of ability and high standing and his death is a severe blow to his Republican associates in the House of Delegates, who had implicit confidence in his leadership.

Reformed Church Re-Union.

The Pen-Mar Reformed Reunion Committee held a meeting last week at Harrisburg, and partly arranged a program for the annual gathering at Pen-Mar on July 26th. Judge Kunkle, of Harrisburg, and Rev. Dr. T. J. Hacker, of Roanoke, were selected as the speakers. Committees were appointed as follows: Program, Rev. Robert J. Pilgram, Baltimore, and Mr. D. M. Hurley, Hagerstown; Transportation, Rev. Robert J. Pilgram, and Rev. J. B. Shontz, Carlisle; Printing, Rev. Dr. J. B. Shontz; Auditing, D. M. Hurley, H. T. Weaver, Gettysburg. There was a large attendance of the committee. Efforts will be made to get the Glee Club from Mercersburg Academy and a ladies' chorus from Woman's College at Frederick to furnish music for the occasion.

N. E. Foard.

Mr. Norval E. Foard, the veteran State editor of the Baltimore Sun, died at his home on Linden avenue, Baltimore, on Monday last, in his 69th year. Mr. Foard had been connected with the Sun about 41 years. He was widely known to public men and others in this State, and the Senate, upon learning of his death passed a resolution of regret. He was a native of Alexandria, Va. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters.

Walter Potee, a young man whose mind had been affected by an attack of typhoid fever, became acutely insane at his home in Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, last Saturday, and shot eight persons, wounding some of them seriously, though none of them fatally. He then set fire to the house and shot himself in the heart. The tragedy began just as the funeral services for a child of Potee's brother were about to take place at the house. The demented man was armed with three revolvers and a shotgun, and most of the shooting was done with the latter named weapon. The body of the dead child was rescued from the burning house, but that of Potee was not gotton out until the flames were suppressed and was badly charred.

Fire destroyed buildings and other property in Johnstown, Pa., valued at $500,000, on Wednesday morning.

Special from the United Telephone and Telegraph Company to the SENTINEL.

WINDER HANGED.

Isaac Winder, the colored murderer of Frederick T. Rinehart, was hanged at Towson at 11.42 o'clock today.

For the Sentinel.

"JAMAICA THE GEM OF THE ANTILLES."

We were expecting to stay two or three days in Jamaica but after being here nearly a week, we wish we had a whole month. We know now why it is called "The Gem of the Antilles," and we know too the meaning of that term as never before.

It is impossible to describe the luxuriance and beauty of the tropical foliage. The rank growth of palm trees and banana plants which one meets everywhere is simply bewildering. The chief fruit of the island is the banana.

There are several large fruit companies in the United States engaged in raising the fruit here and in transporting it. In addition to their own immense plantations they buy all they can get from the natives—everybody raises "bananas." They grow wild almost like plantains and docks do with us, and seem to spring up over night like Jonah's gourd. They attain a much larger size, however, and bear finer fruit in larger clusters when cultivated.

There is an agricultural school in Kingston where the natives are being trained in scientific agriculture. We had the pleasure of talking with one of the graduates of this school, who now has charge of a beautiful house and plantation belonging to one of the wealthy residents of Port Antonia. This fellow was a typical Jamaican, a coal black negro, and barefooted, (very few of the natives wear shoes,) but he was highly intelligent and gave us not only interesting descriptions of places and scenes on the Island, but much information regarding the culture of bananas and other fruits. We also found the carriage drivers very interesting and extremely polite—indeed politeness seems to be characteristic of the natives. To see the conductor of our train, a coal black negro, while en route from Port Antonia to Kingston, go out on the platform and after waving his hand to the engineer, who was also a negro, say "Go ahead sir," I could not but think was slightly different from the way we do in the states.

But to return to the bananas. This plant grows from ten to twenty feet high, has long thin leaves ten to twelve inches wide and six to ten feet long, of a bright glossy green, branching out from the stalk in all directions. The fruit is ready to cut in eighteen months from planting and is not good unless cut green. For that reason the bananas sold a thousand miles from where they grow are as perfect and just as delicious as those served three times a day on the table here, with the plants growing right by your window. If allowed to ripen on the stalk the fruit is soft, sappy and mushy. Being cut while green a certain quantity of the sap runs out through the stem, and the fruit becomes firm and palatable. The stalk of the plant is of a soft sappy growth, like a stalk of corn, except it reaches a size at the base of six to twelve inches in diameter. As soon as the fruit is cut the plants are hewn down and left to decay, thus keeping the soil enriched. Another plant at once springs up from the roots and in another eighteen months has a new bunch of bananas. A plant will only yield one bunch and if not cut down dies of itself. After five or six years the fruit and the size of the bunches become smaller, and those who cultivate them carefully set out new plants. This is done by taking the suckers which shoot up around the large plants like corn suckers.

If this land had been called Banana Island we would think it most appropriately named. Everywhere you go you see not acres but miles of banana fields; whole mountain sides are covered with them.

The price here is from thirty-five to seventy-five cents a bunch, according to size and condition of the market. They have no particular season but are planted and harvested any month in the year.

Another one of the wonders of the island to a northerner is the cocoanut palms which one sees everywhere, almost as plentiful as bananas, and almost everyone loaded with cocoanuts. We are told the trees come into bearing in five to seven years and last a great while. They ripen at all seasons and one can see trees with ripe cocoanuts and tiny green ones side by side. The beauty of the cocoanut palm is in its vivid green foliage tinged here and there with bright yellow. The colors are the most brilliant imaginable and a grove of cocoanut palms waving in the wind is a sight not soon to be forgotten. A great many other varieties of palms grow here, each possessing its own peculiar beauty, but no other is so abundant as the cocoanut.

We also passed many fields of pineapples. These required about four months to ripen and the fruit is just now beginning to show out of the tops of the plants.

Considerable quantities of sugar cane are grown here, but it does not form one of the chief products of the island. The natives eat it as one would a stick of candy. I tried it but did not find it to my liking.

About one hundred years ago, when slavery was in existence, there were many large sugar plantations, the ruins of which are still seen, but of late years they have been allowed to go down, and now almost the entire island is given over to the banana.

We spent two very pleasant days at Kingston, the metropolis of Jamaica. This is a city of seventy or eighty thousand people, and while it has many squalid dwellings and narrow streets, in the main it is up to date and modern. American built trolley cars carry you swiftly to any part of the city, and some miles into the country on either side. The fare is 2 d. (4 cents) and the service in every way equal to our best trolley systems. They follow the English custom of taking the left instead of the right track which is somewhat confusing at first.

Hope Gardens is a beautiful spot about six miles out by trolley and is kept up by the city. Here all kinds of tropical plants are brought to perfection. We spent a most enjoyable half day wandering through its walks and lanes, and were shown the coffee plant, the cocoa bean from which chocolate is made, the date palm, and many others just as interesting.

We found the stores up to date and attractive, and in looking through them I found many goods of American manufacture, with which I was familiar, but the linens, silks, and many of their cotton goods come from England and are sold at much lower prices than at home, because of the difference in duty. Jamaica being an English possession they are allowed to come in almost free, while in the United States the duty is considerable.

The roads of Jamaica are fine, are kept in repair by the government, and tollgates are unknown. They are made of limestone, are hard and smooth, well graded and free from dust. Few roads in Carroll county equal them. The stone is broken by hand, most of it being done by women, and is measured in barrels. Eighteen cents a barrel is paid for breaking it, and we were told an industrious woman could break two to three barrels a day working ten hours.

The women do most of the work here and carry everything on their heads. A woman will take two bunches of bananas and place one on top of the other on her head and walk a mile to a R. R. Station or boat landing. The bananas are loaded on the ships by hand, a gang of seventy or eighty men and women will be put in line carrying the fruit, all singing as they work, and in half a day fifteen or twenty thousand bunches will be stored and packed in the hold of the ship.

There are but a few of the interesting sights we have seen on this island, but I do not wish to tire my readers.

We sail from here to Santiago, Cuba, where we shall exchange the ways and customs of the English for those of the Spaniards.
