TIMELY WORDS.

At the laying of a corner-stone for a new office building for the House of Representatives in Washington, on Saturday week, President Roosevelt delivered an address in which he spoke strongly against venality in public officials and denounced all manner of graft. At the same time, however, he took occasion to suggest, indirectly at least, that all public officers and legislators are not rascals, while some of the critics may be liars and slanderers. Among other things he said:

The liar is no whit better than the thief, and if his mendacity takes the form of slander he may be worse than most thieves. * * *

It puts a premium upon knavery untruthfully to attack an honest man, or even with hysterical exaggeration to assail a bad man with untruth. * * *

The soul of every scoundrel is gladdened whenever an honest man is assailed. * * *

One of the chief counts against those who make indiscriminate assaults upon men in business or men in public life is that they invite a reaction which is sure to tell powerfully in favor of the unscrupulous scoundrel who really ought to be attacked, who ought to be exposed, who ought, if possible, to be put in the penitentiary. * * *

These are timely words. Just now there seems to be an epidemic of denunciation launched against public men and measures through the magazines and other publications of the country. Indiscriminate attacks are made upon actions of public men who may be perfectly innocent and free from all intention of self-aggrandizement. One man may, with perfect integrity of purpose, favor a measure which another may regard as utterly detrimental to the public welfare. The judgment of one of them may be widely erroneous, or both may be in a measure mistaken. There is, however, neither rime nor reason in stigmatizing the action of either as corrupt or venal. A perfectly upright legislator may be guilty of error in judgment and vote for a measure "with a snake in it." It is unsafe and unjust, therefore, to class all men as rascals because of mistakes of this character. Yet this is the tendency of the flood of criticism that is now being poured upon the country through the channels referred to. The virulence and injustice of much of this criticism are calculated to defeat its purpose, if it has any other purpose than to give vent to the spleen of the critics. Overdoing the business is probably already creating a revulsion in public sentiment and the President has done well in sounding, even indirectly, a word of warning on the subject.

That Mr. Roosevelt is honestly anxious to purify the public service cannot be successfully controverted and he lets it be thoroughly understood that, while he has no sympathy with sensational attacks upon honest men, he is in perfect accord with all proper methods of exposing the guilty and imposing the penalties incurred by corruption in high and low places. And this should become the purpose of the honest people of the country and it should be relentlessly, but fairly, pursued until fear of the law shall make the rascals tremble with alarm and abandon their evil practices.

MARVELLOUS LIBERALITY.

It is said that "every cloud has its silver lining." This may or may not be strictly accurate. Certainly there are many clouds which exhibit no brightness to the human vision. So, many disasters have occurred, in the history of the race, the horrors of which have been utterly without mitigation. This, however, cannot be said of the recent fearful visitation at San Francisco and elsewhere in California. The gloom of the direful occurrence has been brightened by the substantial sympathy and generous relief extended by the people of the whole country to the hundreds of thousands of sufferers by the unparalleled calamity. It required no appeal from the stricken people to prompt this sympathy and the speedy efforts to extend this relief. Such action has been spontaneous throughout the land. Those soulless corporations, the railroad companies, have given the most efficient service, without fee or reward, in carrying supplies to the famishing people and in giving transportation, free, to the thousands of those who have found it necessary to flee from the scene of the disaster. Other corporations have donated food supplies in the most liberal manner. Individuals have furnished clothing for the half-clad and helpless victims of earthquake and fire, while, also, individuals, societies, churches, and other agencies, including the General Government, State and municipal organizations have contributed, approximately, about $20,000,000 in money.

This is a marvel of generous liberality and is exceedingly creditable to our common humanity. It shows that the great American heart is true to the highest and best motives of the race and it was almost worth the disaster to our faraway fellow-countrymen to realize so magnificent an outburst of spontaneous sympathy and charity all over the land.

Somebody once said or wrote that "one touch of nature makes all the world akin." This quotation may not be given here in perfectly accurate language, but it conveys the meaning of its author. In this case it may be amended by substituting the word "sorrow" for "nature," as the great sorrow which has fallen upon the people who looked out upon the Pacific through the Golden Gate of San Francisco, makes all the nation feel that they are our brethren and should be treated as if of this relation.

The Great Council of the Improved Order of Red Men completed its session at Brunswick on Thursday and selected Snow Hill, Md., as the place for holding the next great council in April 1907. The following great officers were elected and raised up to their respective offices by Great Incohones J. W. Cherry and Past Great Sachem T. K. Donnally: Walter B. Hubbard, of Baltimore city, Great Sachem; Edward E. Allison, of Baltimore, Great Senior Sagamore; P. E. Porter, of Annapolis, Md., Great Junior Sagamore; K. I. Rinker, Great Prophet; Dr. J. C. Littleton, Great Chief of Records, and Elisha E. Twiley, Great Keeper of Wampum.

A bulletin from Bowie, Texas, at 10 o'clock Wednesday night says there is little doubt of the destruction of Belleview and Stoneburg, 10 and 15 miles, respectively, north of Bowie, by tornadoes that afternoon. Fifteen lives are known to have been lost at Bowie and several at Belleview and Stoneburg. The injured in the two places are estimated at 75 to 100.

The California Disaster.

It would take volumes to give a detailed account of the fearful disaster which befell the State of California, and especially the city of San Francisco, through the earthquake reported last week. While the convulsion of the earth's surface caused much damage to buildings and the loss of many lives, this destruction was slight in comparison with that caused by the fire which resulted from the earthquake in San Francisco. Thus briefly summed up the consequences were as follows:

1. The destruction of three-fourths of the City of San Francisco, including many of the most valuable and important buildings and causing a loss of probably $300,000,000. The area burned over, all of which was thickly covered with buildings, is estimated at about seven square miles.

2. The loss of about 1000 lives and injuries, more or less severe, to many persons.

3. The exposure of hundreds of thousands of people to the elements, without shelter, for several days, and without sufficient food until supplies could be sent them from other points, or they were enabled to leave the city. Careful estimates of the exodus places the number who have left at 225,000, about half or nearly half the whole population.

4. The destruction of every stone and brick building at Santa Rosa, where not less than 10,000 people were made homeless. Oakland, opposite San Francisco, on San Francisco Bay, also suffered considerably from the earthquake, but escaped the consuming flames which destroyed the greater city. Several other places were also damaged to some extent by the seismic disturbance.

Elsewhere the SENTINEL tells of the unparalleled generosity of the people of the whole country in their contributions for the relief of the sufferers. It may be added that, with the usual enterprise of the American people, the work of reconstructing the desolated city has already been begun.

HONORING PAUL JONES.

The remains of Paul Jones, the father of the American Navy, were removed from the receiving vault at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and taken to the Academy Armory, where, on Tuesday, fitting ceremonies were held in honor of the great naval commander, the history of whose heroic deeds will ever thrill the hearts of those who venerate true manhood and indomitable courage.

For more than a century the remains of the hero lay in an obscure cemetery in Paris, until through the personal efforts of General Horace Porter the locality in which the body had been entombed was discovered and after expensive excavation was disinterred and brought to this country with every mark of honor and respect that a great nation could extend.

The identification of the body was perfect, incontrovertible evidence thereof having been found.

From the armory where Tuesday's ceremonies were held it was taken to Bancroft Hall, where it will remain until the completion of the splendid Naval Academy Chapel now in course of erection, when it will find its last resting place in that sacred edifice, And no more fitting spot for its sepulture could be found in all the world. The presence of the tomb of the mighty conqueror will ever be a stimulus to gallent deeds on the part of those who will learn the science of naval warfare in the halls about it.

The principal features of the ceremonies on Tuesday were addresses by President Roosevelt, Gen. Horace Porter, the French Ambassador, M. Jusserand, and Gov. Warfield. About 5,000 people attended the ceremonies, among them many distinguished civilians and officers of the Navy and Army.

Following is a brief summary of the birth, life, death and burial of the great naval hero:

July 6, 1747—John Paul, born at Kirkbean, Scotland.

1773—Assumes surname of Jones.

December 22, 1775—Made a lieutenant in the Continental Navy.

October 10, 1776—Promoted to captain.

April 24, 1778—Captured British sloop-of-war Drake.

September 23, 1779—Battle between the Bonhomme Richard and Serapis, off Flamborough Head, in which Jones wins immortal fame.

1788—Jones becomes a rear-admiral in Russian Navy.

June 16, 1788—Defeats Turkish fleet in Black Sea.

October 8, 1788—Promoted to vice-admiral by Empress Catharine.

July 18, 1792—Dies in Paris.

April 12, 1905—Body found after years of search.

July 24, 1905—Body landed at Annapolis.

April 24, 1906—Final ceremonies at Naval Academy.

A CARNEGIE HERO AT HOME.

What is the standard of heroism established by the Carnegie hero fund?

R. P. E., Easton, Md.

The secretary and manager of the Carnegie hero fund thus defines the standard. "A hero is a person who saves, or attempts to save, the life of another at extraordinary risk or peril to himself. This is the definition recognized by the commission. But one can not emphasize the word extraordinary too much. Life saving of any kind is of the most commendable character, but a person may save another life without any risk whatever of losing his own. The commission wishes every citizen to feel that it is his duty to call to the attention of the commission such acts of heroism as may come to his notice, that are within the scope of the fund."

While reading the above I recalled a certain act performed by one of our citizens about three years ago, which, to my recollection, never was published. The story is this: A colored boy, of about ten years, fell into a well about 45 feet in depth, with about ten feet of water therein. An alarm spread and many neighbors gathered for the rescue, but seeing the dangerous surroundings none seemed willing to make the descent with a frail windlass as the only ready means for use. It was then that our friend ——— offered to go down to get the body, dead or alive. He was told, however, by others, that he was too old a man to take that risk, but his answer was: "Oh, no, I have been in such places before," and then having had lines fastened to him he, with a long handled hook in hand, made the descent and soon fished the body up, (dead) himself remaining below until the body was drawn up and out then himself being drawn out. Some said to him again that he was too old a man for such an undertaking, but he remarked that he was yet young enough, as he was only 72 years old. He is still living amongst us and now calls himself a tired (not retired) farmer. In his younger days he worked in mines, later in limestone quarries and kilns. He is now aged 75 years.

A WESTMINSTERIAN.

The SENTINEL is not violating confidence when it adds that the hero of the act above described is Mr. George C. Crass a well known and estimable resident of this city and a veteran of the Civil War.

Mr. Oscar S. Grimes, of near Ladiesburg, and Miss Martha O. Bond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius O. Bond, of near Johnsville, Frederick county, were married at the Lutheran parsonage at Woodsboro yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Poffenberger, pastor of the Lutheran Church.

The planing mill, lumbersheds and several smaller buildings in D. W. Hess' lumber yards at Waynesboro, Pa., were destroyed by fire on Tuesday. The sheds were heavily stocked with lumber, which was also destroyed. The residences of Messrs. D. W. and James Hess were slightly damaged by fire.

Mrs. Emma Catharine Koontz died at the home of her son-in-law, Dr. M. I. Zimmerman, at Walkersville, Frederick county, on Wednesday evening. She was 80 years old. Death was due to general debility.

For a little while snow fell in large flakes on the mountain near Pen-Mar Monday morning. Men who were working on the mountain were surprised to find themselves suddenly enveloped in a snow storm.

The Y. W. C. T. U.

A most enjoyable meeting of the "Y" was held on Monday night at Carroll Hall.

Mrs. Tiffany presided. Mrs. Helen G. Rice, of Boston, state secretary of the Loyal Legion in Massachusetts, gave a most helpful talk to the members and visitors.

Many suggestions of a practical nature were offered, and various departments of work recommended. Several of these will be introduced at once. Rev. Mr. Warner was present, and pronounced the benediction.

During the past month, the following members have been enrolled: Misses Helen Northrop, Blanche McGowan, Florence Ogg, Nellie Bowers, Blanche Williamson, Mamie Zepp and Blanche Baer.

The next regular meeting will be held at Carroll Hall, Monday, May 7th, at 7 30 P. M.

The "Y" is very anxious to enroll as many young people as possible and extends a hearty invitation to all to attend the meetings.

Bachman's Valley Items.

After several days of warm weather it seems as though we were going to have winter; the ground was frozen and ice formed at several places on Tuesday morning.

Peach trees are in full bloom but it is feared the blossoms are damaged.

The Reformed Communion service on Sunday at Jerusalem (Bachman's) Church was well attended.

Sunday school will be organized on Sunday, at 9 A. M. prompt, at Jerusalem (Bachman's) Church.

The farmers have their oats sowed and are now getting ready to plant corn.

The grain and grass fields are looking well in this locality.

Most of the farmers have their potatoes planted in this locality.

Our enterprising lime burners are very busy this week but say that no more orders can be filled until they are able to get coal, a difficult matter on account of the great coal strike which is going on in the mining regions.

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Sterner, of Hanover, Pa., were the guests of Mr. C. H. Smith and family on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne W. Kroh, of Hanover, Pa., visited Mr. John N. Kroh on Sunday.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving but sad remembrance of our dear grandmother, Annie Starner, who died one year ago, April 29th, 1905.

"Gone but not forgotten."

In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
In her lonely silent grave.

Farewell, grandmother, may your slumber
Be as gentle as your love,
And when God will call us homeward,
May we meet in Heaven above.

By her granddaughters,
A. J. and R. Starner.

Why Not Cure Your Cough or Cold?

WESTMINSTER, April 10th, 1890.

MR. JOS. B. BOYLE:

Dear Sir:—For many years I have suffered intensely, on taking cold, from a very troublesome cough, for which I have used a number of various remedies, and obtained but TEMPORARY RELIEF. During the past Spring I was again troubled with the same cough, and through a friend was induced to try YOUR Pectoral Syrup, which not only gave almost INSTANT RELIEF, but a PERMANENT CURE. It gives me great pleasure to say that I believe it to be the best remedy I ever used for the purpose for which it is recommended. Hoping that any person afflicted as I was may be fortunate enough to give it a trial, I am,

Truly yours,
EDWARD LYNCH.
