SIDE ONE

9th Septr — This days post brought me yours My dear Neice of the 15th of May — you will perceive the interval has been written some days, it only waited till Thornhill went to town to forward it for me — The one you feared had been lost — reached me after my last was dispatched to you in Decr I have already accounted for my time since a long silence — our young party are n at home again, & Fanny at present, free from a complaint — but delicate & must be taken of this Winter — you are perfectly right change the scene & air — Nervous complaints in particular are benefitted by such a plan — & by this time I hope you have experienced the benefit of it — Tell your Mother I often feel what she says of herself, I am not so strong as I was — but I hope she is as I am, wonderfully well age considered, suffering under no particular malady age in general is incident to — I wish I could say as much for my dear Husband — His mind is as vigorous as ever, but in various ways he is a sad sufferer — I should have had pleasure in hearing from James but I am so accustomed to gentlemen that hate writing but when necessity compels — that I readily forgive — My love & best wishes attend himself & family — It will be a great gratification to me ever to see any friends of yours that may visit this country — once more my Dear Neice Adieu — kindest love to your Mother from your affectionate
