1790 Nov. 28

SIDE TWO

is at present no prospect of he must make up for it, by being as intimate as he can be by letter, & you all must write to me very frequently whether I am punctual in answering or not — but Observe I mean to be so, ~~this~~ London is a sad busy bustling sort of a place that doubt but good sort of folks (like me) do what they wish — Indeed my dear Neice or I will say Nieces) I have no doubt but we should like one another wonderously if we had but an opportunity of making the experiment — I think one of you ought in due time to make choice of an English Husband for my sake — for I dread growing old & having no young folks to take care of me or come a Larking about me — particularly as I shall never be rich enough to bribe any my what they may get by me — Remember me with affection to the Stevensons when you see them & tell me about them when you write — particularly to Mary give both our loves — she is Mr Gensley's God Daughter — James I should suppose he remembers me he was a stout fellow — When you see Mrs Talang tell her she is in my debt a letter & that I am glad to hear she is better in health — I haven't to say a word more than God bless you all believe your very affectionate Aunt

T. H. Bensley

Mr B sends affectionate remembrance to Mrs Stevens & Mrs