My dear Mother,

Here I am writing instead of talking to you as I hoped to do a day or two since. Thursday afternoon I got a telegraph fr. father from Lyons saying that Caspar was better — the first news I had of his being sick: so I started in the night train & got here Friday morning — found Caspar had had a bilious attack, very like Cholera Morbus, but was much better. We concluded to go home Monday night — & I thought of running down by Saturday's boat returning so as to meet them at Magnolia Monday eve, but didn't get off — it is very well I didn't for last night C. had
